Suburb housing sought for poor families

by KURT BAER

Suburban officials and apartment building owners are being asked to help find apartments for 400 families who are living in public housing in Chicago.

The search for suburban housing for the low-income families is a voluntary attempt to implement an April Supreme Court decision that said the federal courts could order low-income housing in the suburbs to relieve inner city segregation.

The Chicago office of the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development and the Leadership Council for Metropolitan Open Communities are cooperating in the effort.

AREA MAYORS have received a letter from HUD regional administrator John Waner explaining the plan and the Leadership Council, a nonprofit citizens' group created to end housing discrimination, has started to contact landlords.

Plans are to relocate 100 to 150 public housing families in suburban Cook County. An additional 250 to 300 low-income families would be relocated in other suburban counties.

Officials hope to use the federal government's Section 8 subsidy program under which a family puts 25 per cent of its income toward the monthly rent in a private apartment building with HUD paying the balance of the rent.

Kale Williams, Leadership Council director, said Monday he hopes to start notifying families in October of the possibility of moving from public housing in Chicago to the suburbs. Actual moves could start by November, he said.

"We're encouraged that most of the building owners at least are willing to talk with us about the plan and see the value of a voluntary program rather than the alternative of a court-ordered plan," Williams said.

IN APRIL, the U.S. Supreme Court in Gautreaux vs. Hills, ruled unanimously that the U.S. District Court can order an areawide low-income housing plan to alleviate segregation caused by the concentration of public housing in the city. The original discrimination suit was filed in 1966 by residents of an all black public housing project in Chicago against HUD and the Chicago Housing Authority.

Williams said the HUD and attorneys for Gautreaux agreed in June to "experiment" for one year with ways to implement the decision before going back to U.S. District Court Judge Richard B. Austin for a court-ordered desegregation plan.

A contract between HUD and the Leadership Council to promote the Section 8 rent subsidy program was signed last month, he said.

Williams said that 400 families is "large enough to be a significant sample and small enough to be within the realm of possibility for one year's time."

He estimated that 10 to 15 per cent of the families living in public housing in Chicago would be interested and able to move to subsidized housing in the suburbs.

"We've had some experience in this area," he said. "A lot of people won't be interested, won't find a suburban location convenient. But we estimate 10 to 15 per cent will want to move for future job possibilities, schools or any of the other reasons people have for living in the suburbs."

Chimney sweep has his ups and downs

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Santa Claus, Robert Ruckoldt and Richard Candler are part of a vanishing breed of men who make a living going up and down chimneys.

It's definitely a dirty job and one that requires some agility.

With that in mind, one wonders just how an overweight Santa dressed in spotless red and white manages to survive each Christmas Eve without evidence of soot or scraping.

MAYBE THE nitty gritty of this job escapes magical characters delivering presents.

But, when Rockoldt and Candler head down a chimney, they always emerge soiled from head to toe, having completed a very necessary task for those who have a fireplace.

"It's the dirtiest job in the business, and there are a lot of people who have fireplaces who need their chimneys cleaned out. But, there are so few of us left anymore," said Ruckoldt, a Mount Prospect resident who has been cleaning chimneys in the Chicago area for 38 years.

Ruckoldt refers to himself as a masonry repairer or a tuck-pointer, but he adamantly opposes the title of chimney sweep.

"A CHIMNEY sweep was the raggy fellow with soot on his nose and a funny old hat on his head who danced and sang in Mary Poppins. They're the guys who cleaned out chimneys with a broom in England. Our work is much more technical and sophisticated today," said Candler, president of Airways Fireproofing Systems Inc., Chicago, who until recently also lived in Mount Prospect.

Candler, who is a slim 130 pounds at the age of 50, has no trouble making it down a chimney or through a ventilating duct.

The ducts which comprise the exhaust system in restaurants, factories, office buildings and stores demand most of Candler's

Decision on Frenchmen's Cove buses delayed

Traffic conditions in the Frenchmen's Cove subdivision in Arlington Heights were reviewed Monday by members of the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education, but a decision on whether to restore school bus service to that area was delayed until Sept. 23.

Board Pres. Susan Rose, board members Barbara Farr and Linda Sprechman and Associate Supt. John Barger walked through Frenchmen's Cove to determine if traffic in the area creates a hazard for children walking to school.

The officials' visit was made after residents from Frenchmen's Cove last week asked the board to reconsider its decision to discontinue free bus service from that area to Irving School, 1250 Radcliffe, Buffalo Grove.

Bus service was eliminated lest month by the board because sidewalks connecting the subdivision and the students' main route to school were completed and the route was no longer considered dangerous.

PARENTS SAID, however, automobile and construction traffic in the area still creates a hazardous situation for the children. About 24 children are involved.

Mrs. Farr said the board members walked around the pathways with the parents Monday morning but no conclusions were reached on the safety of the route. She said the board committee will make a report to the rest of the board at its Sept. 23 meeting.

John Perry, a parent from Frenchmen's Cove, said he believes the board may offer the residents bus service for a fee, rather than for free. Dist. 21 offers optional bus service at a cost of $96 per child.

"I think they will offer us a compromise, with bus service at $96 a child," Perry said. He said, however, he is concerned about the cost for parents with more than one child. "I hope they will extend it for free," he said.

Mrs. Rose said there is a chance the district may be able to route one of its school buses to Frenchmen's Cove, and offer busing on a fee basis. She said this would depend on whether a bus is available in that area and whether there are spaces open on the bus.

10, 9, 8... Nike site to get name today

Arlington Heights Park District commissioners tonight will select a name for the proposed $1.5 million golf course at the former Nike site.

The name will be selected from residents' entries at the commissioners' regular meeting at 8 p.m. today in Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge St.

The winning entrant in the contest, sponsored by the park district and Paddock Publications, will receive $100 and one year's family greens' fees.

Naming of the ninety-acre proposed 18-hole course at Central and Wilke roads precedes the Oct. 2 park district referendum seeking voter approval for a $1.5 million bond issue to develop the golf course.

Auto workers prepare for strike

by EDWARD S. LECHTZIN

DETROIT (UPI) — The Ford Motor Co. offered the United Auto Workers union a third contract proposal late Monday. The union quickly rejected it and UAW Pres. Leonard Woodcock said there is only a "one in 100 chance" of avoiding a strike at 11:59 p.m. today.

Woodcock said the union refused to extend the contract covering Ford's 170,000 workers and that negotiators "are a long way apart."

For the first time, Ford addressed a top priority union demand for more paid days off. But the UAW rejected the company plan as "essentially unresponsive to putting new workers into the labor force."

IT WOULD give workers with 25 years of seniority up to 40 hours — a full work week — of extra time off if they maintained a perfect attendance record during a full year's period. The "time bank" would begin with workers who have three years' seniority and would give them 20 hours off.

Based on Ford's latest proposal, Woodcock said, "there is much too big a gap to bridge in the short time left."

The unusual third offer was made public by Sidney McKenna, Ford's labor vice president, who said the new proposal answered all of the key economic issues raised by the UAW.

"It has been our intention since the beginning of these negotiations to reach a settlement without a strike," McKenna said. "We made these proposals today with the hope that they would help accomplish that objective."

TRADITIONALLY, neither the company nor the union has made public any new offers so close to the strike deadline. Ford's stance lifted some of the pessimism surrounding the talks that a strike could not be averted.

Normally, bargainers already would have been engrossed in marathon sessions. But McKenna said he did not know if negotiations would go through the night as they have in the past as

Trustees reject new census bid

The Arlington Heights Village Board Monday night voted to accept the population count from a recent special census in which figures fell short of projections.

The board unanimously passed a motion to accept the census figures and will not ask the U.S. Census Bureau to recount portions of the village.

Final population figures for the village will be tabulated within 60 days, said Edna Kuhlmann, supervisor of the census bureau's Chicago office.

PRELIMINARY FIGURES in the special census report released last month place the village's population at 70,997, an increase of 1,794 persons since the last special census in 1972.

Village officials had projected an increase of 4,600 residents, based on birth rates and new construction figures.

"In the past, we have predicted rather closely what the census count would be, but this time we missed it and we're puzzled because we don't have a reason that is apparent," said Frank Charlton, assistant village manager.

Village officials had questioned how the population of 14 areas of the village could drop more than 10 per cent since 1972, but Monday they recommended that the board not ask for a recount because Mrs. Kuhlmann said she doubted that a new headcount would show substantial changes.

"IF YOU CAN show any specific reasons why we should recount an area, we will do it. But you must come up with a specific reason," she said.

Mrs. Kuhlmann called the village's population increase of 1,794 persons "a tidy gain."

"In towns this size we have been finding a drop. We usually try to talk older towns out of taking a census because they don't take into account the tremendous drop in the number of persons per household," she said.

Nationwide census statistics show that the average household has dropped from about four persons per household to about 2.2.

Blast destroys truck in Arlington

An explosion outside an Arlington Heights business Monday morning destroyed a flatbed truck and caused minor damage to the vacant building, police reported. The window of an overhead door of Production System Erectors, Inc., 12 W. College Dr., was blown out and other minor damage done to the building when the truck exploded, police said. Arlington Heights firefighters extinquished the blaze. Cause of the explosion is under investigation.

Stop signs for Springinsguth

The persistence of two Schaumburg women has persuaded Cook County Highway Dept. officials to reverse an earlier decision and install stop signs at Springinsguth Road and Weathersfield Way, where a village girl was struck and seriously injured in a hit-and-run accident last week. Donna Hartsburg, 324 Springinsguth Road, and Pat Layton, 320 Springinsguth Rd., placed several telephone calls to Cook County Board Pres. George Dunne and the highway department about the need for the stop sign. Recent traffic counts conducted by the county on Springinsguth Road failed to justify the need for the sign, even though studies show nearly half the drivers using the street exceed the posted 30 m.p.h. speed limit.

Authorities probing cause of fire

Mount Prospect Fire Dept. officials plan to interview key witnesses and residents of an apartment building heavily damaged Saturday in a fire. David Gold of the Mount Prospect Crime Prevention Bureau said Monday the fire at Mount Shire apartments, 1831 W. Golf Rd., caused about $53,000 damage. Evidence gathered so far indicates the fire began in the second-floor apartment on the northwest corner of the building occupied by Marchell Barry, 57, and her daughter. Mrs. Barry was in fair condition Monday at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, after treatment for smoke inhalation.

Wheeling man gets prison term

A 20-year-old Wheeling man, arrested in connection with the 1974 shooting which injured two women, was sentenced to a 2-to-6-year prison term on charges of burglary and criminal trespass. Authorities said Paul R. Gantz Jr., formerly of 945 Wilshire Dr., pleaded guilty to one charge of criminal trespass and three charges of burglary. Charges of aggravated battery against Gantz were dropped. Gregory Ginex, assistant state's attorney, said.

Residents say water rates unfair

The Mount Prospect building committee has recommended revising water rates in the wake of charges by apartmenet and condominium apartment owners that current water rates are unfair to large users. Michael H. Minton, Committee chairman, said the proposed water rate changes would cut in half the increases realized by large water users since the new rates went into effect April 1. Quarterly rates now range from 90 cents per 1,000 gallons for less than 50,000 gallons to $1.30 per 1,000 gallons for 500,000 gallons or more. The building committee's proposal would alter rates so that, for example, someone using 300,000 gallons would pay 90 cents per 1,000 gallons for the first 50,000 gallons instead of the current $1.20 per 1,000 gallons.

Promises 'appropriate action'

Kusper to probe illegal interest

by WANDALYN RICE

Cook County Clerk Stanley Kusper said Monday he is investigating allegations that a bank which had county funds on deposit paid him more interest than allowed by law on personal investment and will "take appropriate action" when he finds out the facts.

In the first interview granted since the allegations were made public over the weekend, Kusper told The Herald he is "shocked, surprised, amazed and stunned" by the charges.

He said, "I will make no comment now, but I will review the matter very carefully."

THE CHARGES center around alleged illegal high interest paid Kusper on $30,000 in short term certificates of deposit by the Ford City Bank, 7601 S. Cicero, Chicago.

The alleged illegal interest payments were made by the bank when the county had $457,000 in interest-bearing certificates of deposit in the bank. The county money was withdrawn from the bank in 1974.

Reports also have indicated afederal grand jury is investigating the Ford City Bank and the chief clerk of the Chicago Board of Election Commissioners William Rummel, in connection with an allegation that bank officials paid the clerk cash about the time city money was deposited.

Other county officials Monday indicated they will take a "wait and see" attitude toward the reports involving Kusper.

COUNTY BOARD Pres. George W. Dunne said the county board decides which banks funds will be deposited in based on the recommendation of Kusper and other elected county officials. He said, "I'm sure we'll find out in the next few days whether it's necessary to take any county board action."

Dunne said, "I would say the bank has a responsibility if they pay more than the interest allowed by law. Most petple who deposit money with a bank really don't pay attention to whether they are getting the correct interest."

Republican County Comr. Carl Hansen said from reading reports of the allegations against Kusper "I'm really not too sure what the problem is. I'd like to hear a little more about it before I say anything."

7 pharmacies offer flu-shot facts

Several local pharmacies are among 75 in the Chicago area designated by the Chicago Lung Assn. as "official swine flu alert information headquarters."

The pharmacies are offering free literature about the nationwide mass swine flu inoculation program, which is scheduled to begin in October.

Pharmacies offering the brochures include: Golf Village Drugs, Mount Prospect; Ballard Pharmacy, Des Plaines; Des Plaines Pharmacy, Des Plaines; Ford Pharmacy, Deerfield; Mark Drugs Inc., Buffalo Grove; Nisson Pharmacy, Des Plaines and Weathersfield Pharmacy, Schaumburg.

The literature, available without charge at the prescription counters through September, contains information on swine flu, including where and how to find organized health department immunization programs.

Security class for jobless set by Goodwill

The Chicago Goodwill Rehabilitation Center, 120 S. Ashland Blvd., is offering comprehensive private security training for unemployed or underemployed persons.

The six-week course goes far beyond the 30 hours of instruction required by the state, said Terrence J. Knox, program coordinator.

Applicants are carefully screened, he said. Only five of 35 original applicants were recommended for the course.

The course emphasizes human relations. Students are versed in criminal law, state statutes on human rights, the judicial process, arrests, search and seizure, how to handle firearms, first aid and fire prevention.

Specific security problems in various types of businesses also are covered.

Persons who need job training and who are interested in private security training at Goodwill should contact Ed Morman, 738-3860, for further information on entrance requirements and eligibility.

Center seeks food for needy families

The Northwest Opportunity Center is seeking donations to its food pantry which supplies food to needy families in Northwest Cook County on an emergency basis.

Canned meats, vegetables, soups, fruit and condiments as well as dessert mixes, cereals and flour, baby foods, powdered milk, juice mixes, coffee and tea can be dropped off at the Opportunity Center, 410 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

The center is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from noon to 4 p.m. Saturday.

For more information on the food pantry residents may contact Judy Gorski at the Opportunity Center, 255-3456.

Sacred Heart has five-day class cycle

Sacred Heart of Mary High School, 2800 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows, has revised its class schedule to a five-day cycle, school officials said. The modular structure of 20-minute time segments has been retained in order to continue the program of flexible class periods.

Unscheduled time has been decreased this year. The grant of time for independent study will be left to the teachers' discretion. As the students graduate through the grades and demonstrate ability to use the unscheduled time profitably, it will be increased in their schedules.

Our average graduate should read 7-10 times faster upon completion of the course with marked improvement in comprehension and concentration.

For those who would like additional information, a series of free, one hour, orientation lectures have been scheduled. At these free lectures the course will be explained in complete detail, including classroom procedures, instruction methods, class schedule and a special 1 time only introductory tuition that is less than one-third the cost of similar courses. Blast destroys truck in Arlington

An explosion outside an Arlington Heights business Monday morning destroyed a flatbed truck and caused minor damage to the vacant building, police reported. The window of an overhead door of Production System Erectors, Inc., 12 W. College Dr., was blown out and other minor damage done to the building when the truck exploded, police said. Arlington Heights firefighters extinquished the blaze. Cause of the explosion is under investigation.

Stop signs for Springinsguth

The persistence of two Schaumburg women has persuaded Cook County Highway Dept. officials to reverse an earlier decision and install stop signs at Springinsguth Road and Weathersfield Way, where a village girl was struck and seriously injured in a hit-and-run accident last week. Donna Hartsburg, 324 Springinsguth Road, and Pat Layton, 320 Springinsguth Rd., placed several telephone calls to Cook County Board Pres. George Dunne and the highway department about the need for the stop sign. Recent traffic counts conducted by the county on Springinsguth Road failed to justify the need for the sign, even though studies show nearly half the drivers using the street exceed the posted 30 m.p.h. speed limit.

Authorities probing cause of fire

Mount Prospect Fire Dept. officials plan to interview key witnesses and residents of an apartment building heavily damaged Saturday in a fire. David Gold of the Mount Prospect Crime Prevention Bureau said Monday the fire at Mount Shire apartments, 1831 W. Golf Rd., caused about $53,000 damage. Evidence gathered so far indicates the fire began in the second-floor apartment on the northwest corner of the building occupied by Marchell Barry, 57, and her daughter. Mrs. Barry was in fair condition Monday at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, after treatment for smoke inhalation.

Wheeling man gets prison term

A 20-year-old Wheeling man, arrested in connection with the 1974 shooting which injured two women, was sentenced to a 2-to-6-year prison term on charges of burglary and criminal trespass. Authorities said Paul R. Gantz Jr., formerly of 945 Wilshire Dr., pleaded guilty to one charge of criminal trespass and three charges of burglary. Charges of aggravated battery against Gantz were dropped. Gregory Ginex, assistant state's attorney, said.

Residents say water rates unfair

The Mount Prospect building committee has recommended revising water rates in the wake of charges by apartmenet and condominium apartment owners that current water rates are unfair to large users. Michael H. Minton, Committee chairman, said the proposed water rate changes would cut in half the increases realized by large water users since the new rates went into effect April 1. Quarterly rates now range from 90 cents per 1,000 gallons for less than 50,000 gallons to $1.30 per 1,000 gallons for 500,000 gallons or more. The building committee's proposal would alter rates so that, for example, someone using 300,000 gallons would pay 90 cents per 1,000 gallons for the first 50,000 gallons instead of the current $1.20 per 1,000 gallons.

Promises 'appropriate action'

Kusper to probe illegal interest

by WANDALYN RICE

Cook County Clerk Stanley Kusper said Monday he is investigating allegations that a bank which had county funds on deposit paid him more interest than allowed by law on personal investment and will "take appropriate action" when he finds out the facts.

In the first interview granted since the allegations were made public over the weekend, Kusper told The Herald he is "shocked, surprised, amazed and stunned" by the charges.

He said, "I will make no comment now, but I will review the matter very carefully."

THE CHARGES center around alleged illegal high interest paid Kusper on $30,000 in short term certificates of deposit by the Ford City Bank, 7601 S. Cicero, Chicago.

The alleged illegal interest payments were made by the bank when the county had $457,000 in interest-bearing certificates of deposit in the bank. The county money was withdrawn from the bank in 1974.

Reports also have indicated afederal grand jury is investigating the Ford City Bank and the chief clerk of the Chicago Board of Election Commissioners William Rummel, in connection with an allegation that bank officials paid the clerk cash about the time city money was deposited.

Other county officials Monday indicated they will take a "wait and see" attitude toward the reports involving Kusper.

COUNTY BOARD Pres. George W. Dunne said the county board decides which banks funds will be deposited in based on the recommendation of Kusper and other elected county officials. He said, "I'm sure we'll find out in the next few days whether it's necessary to take any county board action."

Dunne said, "I would say the bank has a responsibility if they pay more than the interest allowed by law. Most petple who deposit money with a bank really don't pay attention to whether they are getting the correct interest."

Republican County Comr. Carl Hansen said from reading reports of the allegations against Kusper "I'm really not too sure what the problem is. I'd like to hear a little more about it before I say anything."

7 pharmacies offer flu-shot facts

Several local pharmacies are among 75 in the Chicago area designated by the Chicago Lung Assn. as "official swine flu alert information headquarters."

The pharmacies are offering free literature about the nationwide mass swine flu inoculation program, which is scheduled to begin in October.

Pharmacies offering the brochures include: Golf Village Drugs, Mount Prospect; Ballard Pharmacy, Des Plaines; Des Plaines Pharmacy, Des Plaines; Ford Pharmacy, Deerfield; Mark Drugs Inc., Buffalo Grove; Nisson Pharmacy, Des Plaines and Weathersfield Pharmacy, Schaumburg.

The literature, available without charge at the prescription counters through September, contains information on swine flu, including where and how to find organized health department immunization programs.

Security class for jobless set by Goodwill

The Chicago Goodwill Rehabilitation Center, 120 S. Ashland Blvd., is offering comprehensive private security training for unemployed or underemployed persons.

The six-week course goes far beyond the 30 hours of instruction required by the state, said Terrence J. Knox, program coordinator.

Applicants are carefully screened, he said. Only five of 35 original applicants were recommended for the course.

The course emphasizes human relations. Students are versed in criminal law, state statutes on human rights, the judicial process, arrests, search and seizure, how to handle firearms, first aid and fire prevention.

Specific security problems in various types of businesses also are covered.

Persons who need job training and who are interested in private security training at Goodwill should contact Ed Morman, 738-3860, for further information on entrance requirements and eligibility.

Canned meats, vegetables, soups, fruit and condiments as well as dessert mixes, cereals and flour, baby foods, powdered milk, juice mixes, coffee and tea can be dropped off at the Opportunity Center, 410 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

The center is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from noon to 4 p.m. Saturday.

For more information on the food pantry residents may contact Judy Gorski at the Opportunity Center, 255-3456.

Sacred Heart has five-day class cycle

Sacred Heart of Mary High School, 2800 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows, has revised its class schedule to a five-day cycle, school officials said. The modular structure of 20-minute time segments has been retained in order to continue the program of flexible class periods.

Unscheduled time has been decreased this year. The grant of time for independent study will be left to the teachers' discretion. As the students graduate through the grades and demonstrate ability to use the unscheduled time profitably, it will be increased in their schedules.

N.Y. airport security absolved of skyjack blame

NEW YORK (UPI) — The five Croatian nationalists who hijacked a TWA jetliner to Paris were slapped Monday with $1 million bail tags in federal court. Just in case they were able to raise that kind of money, New York City made ready to grab them immediately on murder charges.

While the four men and one woman were being arraigned in a federal court in Brooklyn for air piracy, the Federal Aviation Administration in Washington absolved New York's airport security system of any blame for the hijacking.

The FAA said the reason the five were able to get aboard the TWA jetliner at LaGuardia Airport last Friday was that the "bombs" they had were fake — a kitchen pot and modeling clay — and not the real thing.

At the arraignment, Assistant U.S. Attorney Thomas Pattison requested and got the $1 million bail "because of the nature of the crime, the heinousness of the crime and the heavy sentences which are likely to be imposed . . ."

At the same time, Manhattan District Attorney Robert M. Morgenthau filed a complaint charging the five suspects with murder in the death of a police officer Brian Murray, a bomb squad veteran killed by a bomb the hijackers left behind.

Morgenthau's complaint was filed to ensure that if the suspects make bail they will be handed over to local custody immediately.

The bomb that killed Murray was left in a locker at Grand Central station in Manhattan. It exploded at a police firing range while bomb squad officers were trying to defuse it, killing Murray and injuring three other officers.

In the complaint, Morgenthau said a court-ordered search of the New York City apartment of the alleged leader of the hijacking, Zvonko Busic, and his American wife Julienne, 27, had discovered bomb-making equipment.

Busic, 30, his wife and the three alleged accomplices face between 20 years and life imprisonment if convicted of the federal air piracy charges. If they are found guilty of killing Murray, they could get life in prison or the death penalty.

In Washington, an FAA spokesman said the terrorists decided to use fake bombs instead of real weapons after months of observation convinced them it was impossible to beat the security measures at LaGuardia.

"The security system for TWA flight 355 was in effect and working normally," the spokesman said. "All of the hijackers, including the woman, passed through the system."

He said the hijackers used a kitchen pot, wires, modeling clay, a switch, tape and perhaps some batteries to assemble fake bombs in a lavatory of the plane after it was in flight. The items passed through security because they were not considered dangerous, the FAA spokesman said.

District Attorney Mario Merola of the Bronx, where Murray died, also is seeking an indictment against the five and any accomplices they may have had. He said a sixth person may have been involved in the plot.

In the federal court hearing, Magistrate A. Simon Chrein noted that the high bail was not meant to be punitive but only to ensure the defendants' appearance in court for a hearing Sept. 23.

The other suspects were identified as Mark Vlasic, 29, a Croatian native who is a natualized U.S. citizen living in Stamford, Conn.; Frane Pesut, 25, a Croatian native living in Fairview, N.J.; and Peter Matanik, 31, of New York City.

An attorney for Vlasic protested the high bail. "This was not a venal crime," he said. "There was no intention . . . that physical harm of any type would be inflicted on anyone."

All five suspects were charged with the hijacking of the jet with 85 passengers and a crew of seven.

Report Nixon aide offered to swap pressure for funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A White House aide offered to put presidential pressure on Japan's prime minister to buy Grumman aircraft if the company contributed $1 million to Richard Nixon's 1972 campaign, a former Grumman president told Congress Monday.

Dr. Thomas B. Cheatham, ex-president of Grumman International, testified Nixon White House aide Richard Allen promised the campaign donation would be followed by the President's intercession with Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka to buy Grumman's E2C early warning aircraft.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on multinational corporations, asked "if it had happened anywhere else, would it be a shake down?"

Cheatham replied, "Well, there are various terms in Washington" but agreed "shake down" was an apt description.

Peter Oram, current president of Grumman International and Joseph G. Gavin, President of Grumman Corp. testified they had never heard of the alleged Allen proposition until Cheatham testified. Allen was to appear before the committee later this month.

Grumman chairman John C. Bierworth released a statement later Monday saying the corporation did not contribute to Nixon's 1962 campaign "or to any other campaign at any time."

Bierworth said E. Clinton Tole, who was then Grumman's chairman, "did speak with Richard Allen on Nixon's staff at a meeting arranged by Dr. Cheatham. However, no discussion of political contributions took place. Grumman Corp. never contributed to Mr. Nixon's campaign or to any other campaign at any time."

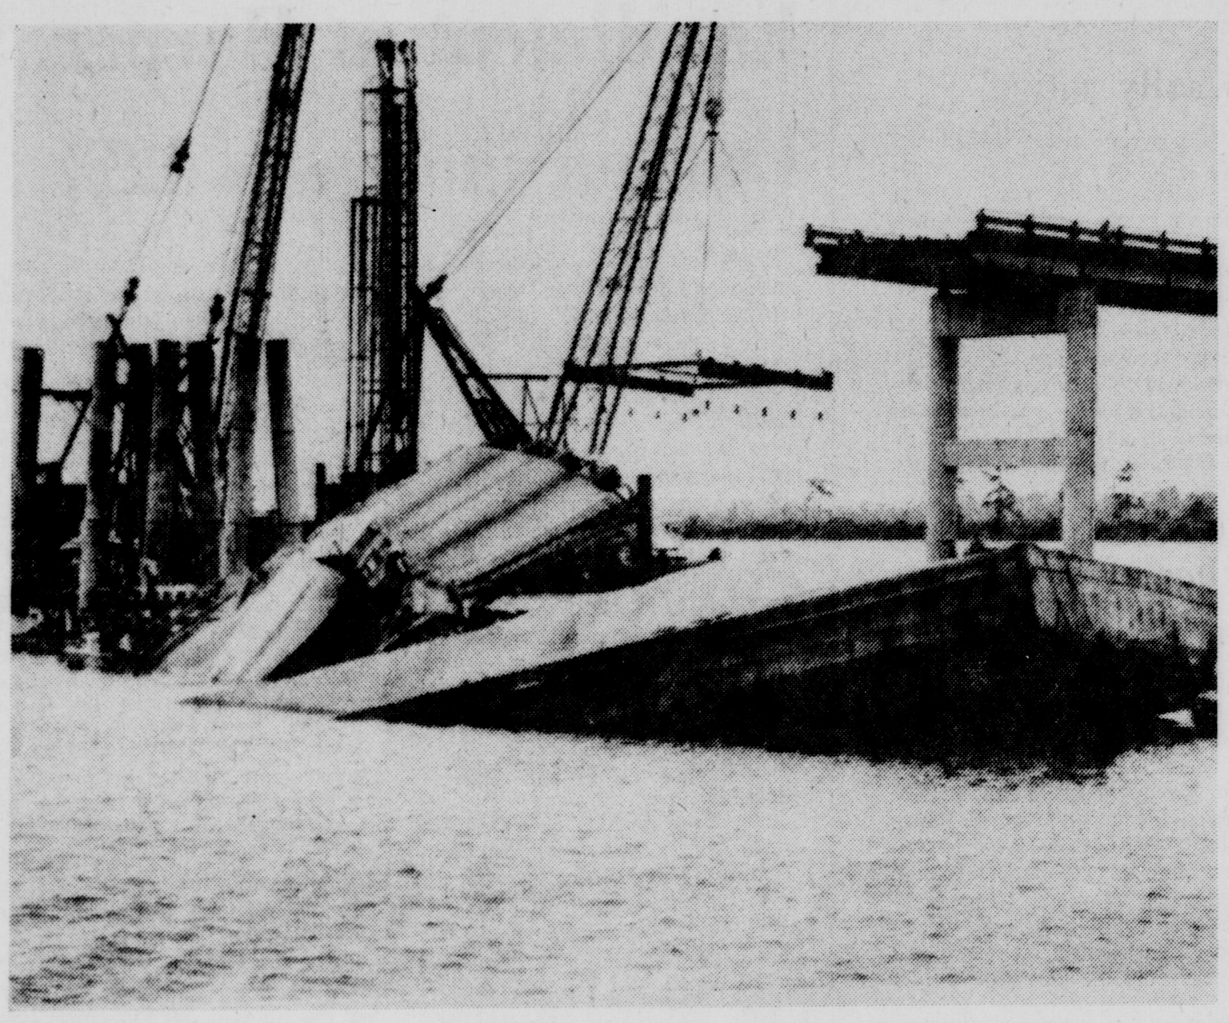
Japan did not buy the Grumman system, but shortly after the Nixon-Tanaka meeting in Hawaii the Japanese government accepted a Lockheed Aircraft Corp. contract.

Tanaka resigned two years later after the disclosure of Lockheed payments to Japanese officials.

Lockheed has denied making any contributions to Nixon, but consented in April this year to federal charges it made "secret payments" to foreign government officials, reportedly including Japanese.

Cheatham told the committee he met with Allen, then a deputy assistant to Nixon, in April, 1972 at the White House to discuss Grumman's hopes of selling the EC2 to Japan's Self-Defense Forces.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., asked if Allen had directly linked the $1 million contribution and the E2C contract. "That's exactly what I said," Cheatham replied.



A TRACTOR-TRAILER truck (left, center) lies atop barge loaded with sea shells after the barge rammed bridge in Manchac, La. knocking out two sections of the span Monday. Authorities are unsure how many cars fell into the water or how many persons are in the vehicles.

Barge crumbles bridge; car and truck hit water

MANCHAC, La. (UPI) — A barge loaded with tons of sea shells rammed an isolated bridge over a narrow pass between two south Louisiana lakes Monday, sending a truck and at least one car tumbling off the six-story-tall span.

The car plunged into the murky water and the tractor-trailer crashed onto the deck of the barge, seriously injuring the driver and a passenger.

Authorities were unsure how many cars fell into the water or how many persons were in the vehicles.

Divers were sent to the scene, about 30 mies northwest of New Orleans, but the search was called off for the night an hour after dark. "It's getting pretty dangerous out there with the currents and the darkness," a state policeman said.

"The truck landed square with the slab on the barge and the trailer broke loose from the truck and fell.

"We know there's someone in the car and we know there's one and possibly two cars," state police Sgt. Marion Moore said.

The highway bridge has a boat clearance of 85 feet and is roughly 60 feet above the water.

Blacks begin 3-day strike

S. Africa police arrest hundreds

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (U*I) — Thousands of blacks began a three-day strike Monday and police arrested hundreds of people in a house-to-house sweep against "loafers and common criminals."

Blacks who defied the call to cripple South Africa's white-owned industry clashed with militants who set fires to buses in the Soweto ghetto 15 miles southwest of Johannesburg.

Police fired birdshot and tear gas at demonstrating blacks in Soweto and at four men trying to evade arrest in Alexandra.

The strike was more successful than a similar three-day walkout three weeks ago, according to reports from businesses in Johannesburg. One factory reported an absentee rate of 70 per cent, and only about 10 per cent of workers on the bus routes serving Soweto showed up for work.

Businessmen have said the strikes together with absenteeism resulting from the general unrest have cost the economy hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Witnesses in Alexandra, a black township adjoining Johannesburg where workers joined the strikes for the first time, said between 300 and 500 police officers carried out the sweep.

Some witnesses said nearly 2,000 persons had been arrested, but Maj. Gen. Dawid Kriel, assistant police commissioner for riot control, said, "This is ridiculous."

"We are clearing the area of arsonists, instigators, loafers and common criminals," Kriel said. He reported the operation was "successful," but he gave no account of how many people were arrested.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, meantime, began another grueling diplomatic shuttle in an attempt to move the forum for southern Africa's racial strife from guerrilla camps to the negotiating table.

"The United States wants nothing for itself," Kissinger said before leaving from Andrews Air Force Base in Washington. He said the U.S. "national interest is involved in a moderate and peaceful evolution of Africa" without outside military intervention. Kissinger spent the night in Zurich.

$104.4 billion military budget OKd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate approved and sent to the White House Monday a record-setting $104.4 billion military budget which puts off a final decision on production of the controversial B1 bomber until after the presidential elections.

The Senate passed the appropriations measure by voice vote. The House approved it last week 323-45.

Although the money bill is $3.6 billion less than President Ford requested, he was expected to sign it. The appropriations bill is $13.8 billion or 15.3 per cent above the amount Congress approved last year.

The legislation, worked out by Senate-House negotiators, postpones until Feb. 1 a go-ahead on the B1 bomber-of-the-future — a bitterly fought military program for the past several years.

The appropriations bill allocated $87 million a month until Feb. 1, enough to allow work on the plane while not actually going into full production.

In his budget proposal, Ford asked funds immediately for the procurement and production of three of the controversial bombers — the first in a fleet which would cost $25 billion.

Jimmy Carter, the Democratic presidential candidate, urged postponement of the program until after the inauguration so that he can — if elected — make a recommendation to Congress.

Opponents of the B1 claimed the plane was too expensive and had not been adequately tested.

Chairman John McClellan of the Senate Appropriations Committee said the compromise on the B1 was a "prudent, sensible decision on the part of the conferees.

"The work will continue," McClellan added. "There will be no shutdown . . . but there will have to be a further decision."

Two other major weapons programs were not included. The compromise bill deleted $170 million for long lead-time procurement of a nuclear-powered strike cruiser and $858.5 million for a conventionally powered Aegis destroyer. Neither had been authorized by congressional committees.

Viet U.N. membership veto set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States will veto admission of Vietnam to the United Nations because of that country's continued refusal to make full accounting of Americans missing in action, Ambassador William Scranton said Monday.

Scranton's announcement of the formal decision, made to reporters after a White House meeting with President Ford, coincided with a statement by the North Vietnamese Foreign Ministry accusing the United States of "flagrant distortions and arrogance" on the issue.

A State Department said the charge by Hanoi "simply is not true."

Scranton said "there is nothing to indicate in any negotiations" that Hanoi officials are willing to go beyond their release of the names of 12 U.S. pilots killed in action.

"We are very anxious to talk to them about this and other issues," Scranton said. But added the Vietnamese government has demonstrated it is neither "peace loving" nor "interested in humanitarianism" to an extent warranting U.N. membership.

Miss America adds nude pose to dislikes

• New Miss America Dorothy K. Benham Monday added posing in the nude to the list of things she doesn't do, not even for $1 million. "Oh for goodness' sake," said one of Miss Benham's chaperones when informed of the $1 million offer from the publisher of one of those centerfold-type magazines. The chaperone relayed the proposal to Miss Benham who reportedly replied: "That is absurd."

• Friends told Laura Butenhoff to expect rough treatment as one of the first woman cadets at West Point. Now the teenager is back home, satisfied she was not meant for the military. The Louisiana woman said her life during the two weeks away consisted of rigorous physical training, indoctrination into military life and taunting by upperclassmen. "I couldn't see myself in the military, really," she said.

• Karen DeCrow, president of the National Organization for Women, said Monday abortion advocates should be given the same opportunity as the Roman Catholic bishops to influence President Ford and Jimmy Carter on the issue. Ms. DeCrow accused the candidates of ignoring the views of a majority of Americans by yielding to intimidation from the bishops. Neither candidate has given any indication they would comply with Ms. DeCrow's request.

• Major Gen. Robert K. Taylor, who commanded the Army Air Corps unit that dropped the first atomic bomb used in World War II on Hiroshima, died Saturday following a brief illness at South Coast Community Hospital in Laguna Beach, Calif. Taylor, 74, also served as commander of all Allied intelligence forces in Europe under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Interment will be at West Point.

• For most people, one or two rides on a rollercoaster is enough — or more than enough. Dan Whelan, however, rode the Pontchartrain beach "Zepher" 313 times during the weekend in New Orleans. The stunt was part of a Loyola University alumni weekend at the beach.

• Composer Burt Bacharach and Actress Angie Dickinson, married 11 years ago, have decided to separate for a while in an effort to save their marriage. "The trial separation will give them time to desire each other more," a spokesman explained, "and in effect make them want to be near each other."

Viking 2 soil scoop quits working

The scoop that pours Martian soil into Viking 2's test chambers quit working after dumping dirt into biology instruments — a problem which will delay, but not stop, the search for life on the planet, a project official said Monday. The scoop, called a "collector head," rotates to empty its load of dust. It may be jammed by a small pebble in a hinge, James Martin said. The boom arm and its scoop stopped working after carrying out 49 of 63 commands. It emptied dirt into the three biology chambers, but stopped before it could fill a hopper leading to another test which looks at inorganic matter.

U.S. signs 3 flu vaccine pacts

The government, far behind schedule in its mass vaccination program, Monday signed tentative contracts with three companies to buy all the swine flu vaccine they can produce for immunizing adults by Christmas. Vaccine production is well behind government expectations, according to both administration and corporate testimony. But the government's top doctor said he hoped most adults could be vaccinated by Christmas. "We are about six weeks off our schedule, and it doesn't please us that we are," said Dr. Theodore Cooper, assistant secretary for health in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Fuel stingy auto, park bills to Ford

The Senate Monday gave final congressional approval to a five-year program intended to develop a fuel-stingy, non-polluting automobile. The Senate voted 58-19 to send the compromise measure to the White House. The bill passed the House Aug. 31.

Also sent to the White House was legislation which would triple funds to acquire land for national parks and recreation areas. The bill would raise the spending ceiling form the current $300 million a year to $600 million in 1978, $750 million the following year and then $900 million annually through 1988.

New violence flares in Basque region

New violence flared in the politically restive Basque region Monday during a leftist-inspired general strike by up to 200,000 workers protesting the killing of a factory worker by police. Helmeted riot police broke up demonstrations with clubs and tear gas and warning shots fired in the air. Hospital authorities said at least 25 persons were injured, including one striker who was hit by gunfire. Labor sources said close to 200,000 workers joined a one-day strike called by the outlawed Communist-dominated Workers' Commissions labor union and other opposition groups.

Heavy fighting breaks out in Lebanon

Heavy fighting broke out Monday across the confrontation line separating Christian and Moslem forces in Beirut. Leftist and Palestinian sources said Syria threatened a new offensive unless the Palestine Liberation Organization accepts Syrian conditions for peace. Gunmen battled with rockets, mortars and machineguns in Beirut's no-man's-land and across the Lebanese countryside, leftist and rightist reports said. An agreement to halt fighting in the Arab League's "green line" buffer zone broke down with an hour-long gunbattle between rightist and leftist militiamen in front of the national museum.

N.Y. airport security absolved of skyjack blame

NEW YORK (UPI) — The five Croatian nationalists who hijacked a TWA jetliner to Paris were slapped Monday with $1 million bail tags in federal court. Just in case they were able to raise that kind of money, New York City made ready to grab them immediately on murder charges.

While the four men and one woman were being arraigned in a federal court in Brooklyn for air piracy, the Federal Aviation Administration in Washington absolved New York's airport security system of any blame for the hijacking.

The FAA said the reason the five were able to get aboard the TWA jetliner at LaGuardia Airport last Friday was that the "bombs" they had were fake — a kitchen pot and modeling clay — and not the real thing.

At the arraignment, Assistant U.S. Attorney Thomas Pattison requested and got the $1 million bail "because of the nature of the crime, the heinousness of the crime and the heavy sentences which are likely to be imposed . . ."

At the same time, Manhattan District Attorney Robert M. Morgenthau filed a complaint charging the five suspects with murder in the death of a police officer Brian Murray, a bomb squad veteran killed by a bomb the hijackers left behind.

Morgenthau's complaint was filed to ensure that if the suspects make bail they will be handed over to local custody immediately.

In the complaint, Morgenthau said a court-ordered search of the New York City apartment of the alleged leader of the hijacking, Zvonko Busic, and his American wife Julienne, 27, had discovered bomb-making equipment.

Busic, 30, his wife and the three alleged accomplices face between 20 years and life imprisonment if convicted of the federal air piracy charges. If they are found guilty of killing Murray, they could get life in prison or the death penalty.

In Washington, an FAA spokesman said the terrorists decided to use fake bombs instead of real weapons after months of observation convinced them it was impossible to beat the security measures at LaGuardia.

"The security system for TWA flight 355 was in effect and working normally," the spokesman said. "All of the hijackers, including the woman, passed through the system."

He said the hijackers used a kitchen pot, wires, modeling clay, a switch, tape and perhaps some batteries to assemble fake bombs in a lavatory of the plane after it was in flight. The items passed through security because they were not considered dangerous, the FAA spokesman said.

District Attorney Mario Merola of the Bronx, where Murray died, also is seeking an indictment against the five and any accomplices they may have had. He said a sixth person may have been involved in the plot.

In the federal court hearing, Magistrate A. Simon Chrein noted that the high bail was not meant to be punitive but only to ensure the defendants' appearance in court for a hearing Sept. 23.

The other suspects were identified as Mark Vlasic, 29, a Croatian native who is a natualized U.S. citizen living in Stamford, Conn.; Frane Pesut, 25, a Croatian native living in Fairview, N.J.; and Peter Matanik, 31, of New York City.

An attorney for Vlasic protested the high bail. "This was not a venal crime," he said. "There was no intention . . . that physical harm of any type would be inflicted on anyone."

All five suspects were charged with the hijacking of the jet with 85 passengers and a crew of seven.

Report Nixon aide offered to swap pressure for funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A White House aide offered to put presidential pressure on Japan's prime minister to buy Grumman aircraft if the company contributed $1 million to Richard Nixon's 1972 campaign, a former Grumman president told Congress Monday.

Dr. Thomas B. Cheatham, ex-president of Grumman International, testified Nixon White House aide Richard Allen promised the campaign donation would be followed by the President's intercession with Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka to buy Grumman's E2C early warning aircraft.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on multinational corporations, asked "if it had happened anywhere else, would it be a shake down?"

Cheatham replied, "Well, there are various terms in Washington" but agreed "shake down" was an apt description.

Peter Oram, current president of Grumman International and Joseph G. Gavin, President of Grumman Corp. testified they had never heard of the alleged Allen proposition until Cheatham testified. Allen was to appear before the committee later this month.

Grumman chairman John C. Bierworth released a statement later Monday saying the corporation did not contribute to Nixon's 1962 campaign "or to any other campaign at any time."

Bierworth said E. Clinton Tole, who was then Grumman's chairman, "did speak with Richard Allen on Nixon's staff at a meeting arranged by Dr. Cheatham. However, no discussion of political contributions took place. Grumman Corp. never contributed to Mr. Nixon's campaign or to any other campaign at any time."

Japan did not buy the Grumman system, but shortly after the Nixon-Tanaka meeting in Hawaii the Japanese government accepted a Lockheed Aircraft Corp. contract.

Tanaka resigned two years later after the disclosure of Lockheed payments to Japanese officials.

Lockheed has denied making any contributions to Nixon, but consented in April this year to federal charges it made "secret payments" to foreign government officials, reportedly including Japanese.

Cheatham told the committee he met with Allen, then a deputy assistant to Nixon, in April, 1972 at the White House to discuss Grumman's hopes of selling the EC2 to Japan's Self-Defense Forces.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., asked if Allen had directly linked the $1 million contribution and the E2C contract. "That's exactly what I said," Cheatham replied.

Barge crumbles bridge; car and truck hit water

MANCHAC, La. (UPI) — A barge loaded with tons of sea shells rammed an isolated bridge over a narrow pass between two south Louisiana lakes Monday, sending a truck and at least one car tumbling off the six-story-tall span.

The car plunged into the murky water and the tractor-trailer crashed onto the deck of the barge, seriously injuring the driver and a passenger.

Authorities were unsure how many cars fell into the water or how many persons were in the vehicles.

Divers were sent to the scene, about 30 mies northwest of New Orleans, but the search was called off for the night an hour after dark. "It's getting pretty dangerous out there with the currents and the darkness," a state policeman said.

"The truck landed square with the slab on the barge and the trailer broke loose from the truck and fell.

"We know there's someone in the car and we know there's one and possibly two cars," state police Sgt. Marion Moore said.

The highway bridge has a boat clearance of 35 feet and is roughly 60 feet above the water.

Viking 2 soil scoop quits working

The scoop that pours Martian soil into Viking 2's test chambers quit working after dumping dirt into biology instruments — a problem which will delay, but not stop, the search for life on the planet, a project official said Monday. The scoop, called a "collector head," rotates to empty its load of dust. It may be jammed by a small pebble in a hinge, James Martin said. The boom arm and its scoop stopped working after carrying out 49 of 63 commands. It emptied dirt into the three biology chambers, but stopped before it could fill a hopper leading to another test which looks at inorganic matter.

U.S. signs 3 flu vaccine pacts

The government, far behind schedule in its mass vaccination program, Monday signed tentative contracts with three companies to buy all the swine flu vaccine they can produce for immunizing adults by Christmas. Vaccine production is well behind government expectations, according to both administration and corporate testimony. But the government's top doctor said he hoped most adults could be vaccinated by Christmas. "We are about six weeks off our schedule, and it doesn't please us that we are," said Dr. Theodore Cooper, assistant secretary for health in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Fuel stingy auto, park bills to Ford

The Senate Monday gave final congressional approval to a five-year program intended to develop a fuel-stingy, non-polluting automobile. The Senate voted 58-19 to send the compromise measure to the White House. The bill passed the House Aug. 31.

Also sent to the White House was legislation which would triple funds to acquire land for national parks and recreation areas. The bill would raise the spending ceiling form the current $300 million a year to $600 million in 1978, $750 million the following year and then $900 million annually through 1988.

New violence flares in Basque region

New violence flared in the politically restive Basque region Monday during a leftist-inspired general strike by up to 200,000 workers protesting the killing of a factory worker by police. Helmeted riot police broke up demonstrations with clubs and tear gas and warning shots fired in the air. Hospital authorities said at least 25 persons were injured, including one striker who was hit by gunfire. Labor sources said close to 200,000 workers joined a one-day strike called by the outlawed Communist-dominated Workers' Commissions labor union and other opposition groups.

Blacks begin 3-day strike

S. Africa police arrest hundreds

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (U*I) — Thousands of blacks began a three-day strike Monday and police arrested hundreds of people in a house-to-house sweep against "loafers and common criminals."

Blacks who defied the call to cripple South Africa's white-owned industry clashed with militants who set fires to buses in the Soweto ghetto 15 miles southwest of Johannesburg.

Police fired birdshot and tear gas at demonstrating blacks in Soweto and at four men trying to evade arrest in Alexandra.

The strike was more successful than a similar three-day walkout three weeks ago, according to reports from businesses in Johannesburg. One factory reported an absentee rate of 70 per cent, and only about 10 per cent of workers on the bus routes serving Soweto showed up for work.

Businessmen have said the strikes together with absenteeism resulting from the general unrest have cost the economy hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Witnesses in Alexandra, a black township adjoining Johannesburg where workers joined the strikes for the first time, said between 300 and 500 police officers carried out the sweep.

Some witnesses said nearly 2,000 persons had been arrested, but Maj. Gen. Dawid Kriel, assistant police commissioner for riot control, said, "This is ridiculous."

"We are clearing the area of arsonists, instigators, loafers and common criminals," Kriel said. He reported the operation was "successful," but he gave no account of how many people were arrested.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, meantime, began another grueling diplomatic shuttle in an attempt to move the forum for southern Africa's racial strife from guerrilla camps to the negotiating table.

"The United States wants nothing for itself," Kissinger said before leaving from Andrews Air Force Base in Washington. He said the U.S. "national interest is involved in a moderate and peaceful evolution of Africa" without outside military intervention. Kissinger spent the night in Zurich.

$104.4 billion military budget OKd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate approved and sent to the White House Monday a record-setting $104.4 billion military budget which puts off a final decision on production of the controversial B1 bomber until after the presidential elections.

The Senate passed the appropriations measure by voice vote. The House approved it last week 323-45.

Although the money bill is $3.6 billion less than President Ford requested, he was expected to sign it. The appropriations bill is $13.8 billion or 15.3 per cent above the amount Congress approved last year.

The legislation, worked out by Senate-House negotiators, postpones until Feb. 1 a go-ahead on the B1 bomber-of-the-future — a bitterly fought military program for the past several years.

The appropriations bill allocated $87 million a month until Feb. 1, enough to allow work on the plane while not actually going into full production.

In his budget proposal, Ford asked funds immediately for the procurement and production of three of the controversial bombers — the first in a fleet which would cost $25 billion.

Jimmy Carter, the Democratic presidential candidate, urged postponement of the program until after the inauguration so that he can — if elected — make a recommendation to Congress.

Opponents of the B1 claimed the plane was too expensive and had not been adequately tested.

Chairman John McClellan of the Senate Appropriations Committee said the compromise on the B1 was a "prudent, sensible decision on the part of the conferees.

"The work will continue," McClellan added. "There will be no shutdown . . . but there will have to be a further decision."

Two other major weapons programs were not included. The compromise bill deleted $170 million for long lead-time procurement of a nuclear-powered strike cruiser and $858.5 million for a conventionally powered Aegis destroyer. Neither had been authorized by congressional committees.

Viet U.N. membership veto set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States will veto admission of Vietnam to the United Nations because of that country's continued refusal to make full accounting of Americans missing in action, Ambassador William Scranton said Monday.

Scranton's announcement of the formal decision, made to reporters after a White House meeting with President Ford, coincided with a statement by the North Vietnamese Foreign Ministry accusing the United States of "flagrant distortions and arrogance" on the issue.

A State Department said the charge by Hanoi "simply is not true."

Scranton said "there is nothing to indicate in any negotiations" that Hanoi officials are willing to go beyond their release of the names of 12 U.S. pilots killed in action.

"We are very anxious to talk to them about this and other issues," Scranton said. But added the Vietnamese government has demonstrated it is neither "peace loving" nor "interested in humanitarianism" to an extent warranting U.N. membership.

"Oh for goodness' sake," said one of Miss Benham's chaperones when informed of the $1 million offer from the publisher of one of those centerfold-type magazines. The chaperone relayed the proposal to Miss Benham who reportedly replied: "That is absurd."

"I couldn't see myself in the military, really," she said.

• Karen DeCrow, president of the National Organization for Women, said Monday abortion advocates should be given the same opportunity as the Roman Catholic bishops to influence President Ford and Jimmy Carter on the issue. Neither candidate has given any indication they would comply with Ms. DeCrow's request.

Nuclear sites need closer supervision

A federal official Monday said Commonwealth Edison Co. needs closer management supervision of its nuclear power utilities. James G. Keppler, regional chief of the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, testified before the Illinois Commerce Commission that human error and mechanical failures caused Edison'sradioactive waste treatment systems in some cases to overload.

However, Keppler said few of Edison's accidental radioactive releases violated federal safety standards and none jeopardized public safety. Keppler said the incidents at Edison's plants could be "minimized" with proper training, clear procedures and tighter management.

'Women more sexually active'

Women students are becoming increasingly active sexually on college campuses but male virginity is on the rise, Playboy magazine reported Monday. Giving the results of its annual college survey, Playboy reported that whereas 49 per cent of the women answering questions in 1970 said they graduated as virgins, only 26 per cent made the same claim this year. Male virgins increased from 18 per cent in 1970 to 26 per cent in 1976.

Playboy had this word for worried parents. "If you're wondering why parents are footing the bill so that their kids can play — don't worry about it. Our statistics reveal that initial experiences with sex may cause a drop in grades, but the longer you have been having sex, the more likely you are to be an A student. A full 67 per cent of the people who made A's have been making love for more than two years."

Thompson won't back full tax plan

Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson said Monday he will not support Gov. Daniel Walker's full $95 million tax acceleration plan because Walker has refused to say what he will do with all the money. But Thompson said he favors collecting part of the money early if the funds are specifically designated for school aid.

In Springfield, Walker accused Thompson of "political posturing" and said he is hiding behind a "smokescreen of phony political rhetoric." At issue is Walker's plan for school aid for the current fiscal year. He used his veto powers to reduce $84.5 million from the $1.287 billion school aid appropriation passed by the legislature, but said he would approve more money for the schools if lawmekers okay his plan to speed up businss tax collections and get $95 million of next year's tax revenues into the state coffers during this fiscal year.

The General Assembly is now in special session considering the matter, while Walker, Thompson and Democratic gubernatorial nominee Michael Howlett exchange potshots over the issue.

Rail service a 'burden': trustee

Losses from the Rock Island Lines railroad passenger service between Chicago and the Quad Cities and Peoria constitute "an intolerable burden," Rock Island trustee William Gibbons testified Monday. Appearing before an Illinois Commerce Commission hearing, Gibbons urged the Rock Island be allowed to discontinue the service so the money can be used for rehabilitating the rest of the line.

Gibbons, appointed by a federal court judge to oversee the reorganization of the bankrupt railroad, said the Rock Island lost $797,000 on the Quad Cities and Peoria Rockets in 1975 and another $157,000 the first three months of this year — over and above a $1 million a year subsidy from the state of Illinois. Railroad officials said an average of only 17 persons ride the two trains daily.

Police sergeant indicted

Chicago Police Sgt. Richard Scanlon was indicted Monday on charges of obstruction of justice and official misconduct stemming from an incident which an apparently innocent man spent a year in jail. Scanlon, 44, a 15-year police veteran, has been suspended from the department because of the case.

Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey said, "in this case the Chicago Police Dept., two judges, a Cook County grand jury and my office were given false and misleading evidence that resulted in the arrest, prosecution and conviction of an innocent man." James Dixon, 23, spent 362 days in the Cook County Jail after being charged with aggravated battery and attempted murder in the shooting of Scanlon Aug. 2, 1975.

Four found dead in S. Beloit home

Firemen called to a house fire Monday in South Beloit found the bodies of four persons — a man, a woman and two girls. Each had been shot. The house was tightly closed from the inside and at least four and perhaps as many as seven fires appeared to have been set, making it appear possible murders and suicide, police said. The victims were identified as Mary Leveringston, 35, her daughters, Lynette, 15, and Ramona, 8, and a friend, Eddie Warner, 32.

All three living ex-governors of Illinois will be present Thursday at the dedication of a new statue of the late Sen. Everett M. Dirksen on the Capitol lawn in Springfield. The larger-than-life size statue shows Dirksen, a Democratic donkey, a Republican elephant and marigolds — the flower Dirksen campaigned to have named the national flower.

Walker signs school bond bill

Gov. Daniel Walker Monday signed into law a bill increasing the maximum amount of school construction bonds the state is allowed to sell by $20 million. The additional bond authorization, to $420 million, will be earmarked for special education building projects. Under current law, the state uses general funds to reimburse school districts which make capital improvements for special education. The bill was sponsored by Rep. Gene Hoffman, R-Elmhurst.

Senate rejects proposal 62-14

Annual revenue sharing bid loses

by DONALD H. MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Monday rejected, 62 to 14, a proposal to require annual appropriations by Congress for federal revenue sharing to state and local governments.

The vote came as the Senate took up a bill that would promise states and localities $41 billion in revenue sharing over a period of nearly six years with no annual congressional review.

Sen. Joseph R. Biden, D-Del., lost out on his amendment to require that Congress approve the money year-by-year after 1978. He urged senators not to "tie our hands" six years ahead, with no way of knowing what the state of the economy or federal revenues will bt at that time.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., floor manager of the bill, said mayors, county commissioners, governors and state legislature need to know in advance how much money they will get so they can plan how to use it.

THE EXISTING revenue sharing program, begun in 1972, expires at the end of this year. By then, 39,000 localities throughout the country will have received $30 billion in sharing funds, with very few restrictions on how they could use it.

The Senate bill would extend the program through September 1982, providing $6.65 billion the first year, with $200 million added each year for inflation.

The House recently voted to extend the program through September 1980 at $6.65 billion a year with nothing added for inflation, a total of $25 billion.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., said it makes sense to give part of federal tax collections to state and local governments because they spend money "more wisely, more cheaply and more honestly than the federal government."

HE SAID REVENUE sharing is highly efficient federal program, operating with fewer than 100 employes, and suggested the concept someday be applied to more programs. For example, federal funds for education simply could be given to local school boards to use as they see fit, he said.

Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, denounced what he called the concept that "Big Brothers knows best."

"We (in Washington) have gone too far in specifying what the citizen needs and wants and how to achieve it," he said.

Sen. William L. Scott, R-Va., said both federal and local governments are providing "to many services for the people — services that they can perform themselves."

"We have to rethink the whole concept of the federal government raising the money and letting another level of government spend it," he said.

Scott and others also argued that with a federal government deficit of $50 billion projected next year, "we haven't any revenue to share."

Enrollment at Harper, Oakton increases 12%

Enrollment at Harper and Oakton colleges is up more than 12 per cent this fall compared to fall 1975, college officials said Monday.

More than 20,000 students have registered for classes at Harper this month, increasing the college's enrollment 12.5 per cent, said Guerin Fischer, vice president of student affairs.

At Oakton, enrollment is up 12.6 per cent to 6,237 full- and part-time students, said Arthur Klem, director of development. The Oakton figure does not include people enrolled in continuing and adult education programs as the Harper figure does, Klem said.

OAKTON OFFERS such courses through the Maine-Oakton-Niles Continuing Education Program, which does not begin classes until Sept. 23, Klem said.

Part of the increase at Oakton, 7900 Nagle Ave., Morton Grove, can be attributed to the opening of an extension center at Notre Dame High School in Niles, Klem said. More than 600 persons have enrolled in courses offered at the high school, he said.

Klem said the college had forecasted an enrollment of 6,200 this semester.

The total of 21,015 students at Harper marks the second consecutive year Harper's student population has been greater than 20,000, Fischer said. The campus is located at Roselle and Algonquin roads in Palatine.

ALTHOUGH FINAL figures are not available, Fischer said it appears more people are enrolling as part-time students than in the past and that they are taking fewer courses per semester.

The average credit load this semester is about nine hours, Fischer said. A person must take at least 12 hours to be considered a full-time student at Harper.

Fischer said the trend to take fewer courses may be caused by an increase in jobs available in the Harper area.

"When students can hold part-time jobs they're able to stretch their education over a longer period of time and consequently only attend school part time," he said.

PART OF THE 12.5 per cent enrollment increase can be traced to a 100 per cent increase in the number of people taking courses at Harper's Willow Park Center in Wheeling. The center opened in August 1975 with an enrollment of 1,400, but this fall more than 2,800 students are enrolled there.

Enrollment in adult education courses is 45 per cent higher than last fall, Fischer said, and that contributes to the increase in part-time students.

An area where enrollment is down 12 per cent is in university extension courses taught at Harper, Fischer said. Schools such as Northern Illinois University have discontinued many extension courses and rescheduled them on their own campuses to make use of their own facilities, Fischer said.

Being a chimney sweep has its ups and downs

time these days "since most of the fireplaces in homes clean themselves out, or just don't get that dirty," he said.

In any event, Candler and Ruckoldt both admit to using brooms when the need arises to scrape the inside walls of a chimney or duct free of dirt build-up.

THERE ARE chemicals, scrapers, vacuums and other tools of the trade that are used to clean out any chimney shaft.

"I would say about 30 per cent of the homes in the Northwest suburbs have fireplaces. A lot of people like them today for decoration or the atmosphere they provide," said Ruckoldt. "But, few home chimneys get dirty enough for professional cleaning."

Most fireplace owners can burn newspaper to get rid of the residue that builds up on the inside, he said.

But, if a basketball or a dead animal is stuck in the chimney and needs to be removed, if the fireplace needs repairing or if the damper gets stuck it may cost anywhere from $35 to $200 for a full day's work, depending on what needs to be done.

"EACH JOB IS a challenge, and it's good work. It's gratifying because you feel useful," Candler said. "I only wish we could hire all midgets to get into some of these really tight spots."

There are a few former chimney sweeps who couldn't be convinced of that, though.

Today

Walter Hills, owner of Hills Building Maintenance in Mount Prospect, said he stopped cleaning out chimneys six years ago.

"In our business, I can't think of a dirtier job, and people just don't want to pay you enough for the bother," said Hills, who concentrates mainly on rebuilding and tearing down chimneys, repairing and laying brick.

"SOME CHIMNEYS are 60 feet deep. That could cost more than $200. Owners might just as well take an old tree branch or a stick with a burlap bag on the end of it and clean out the chimney themselves," he said.

Those are a few suggestions for a "do-it-yourself" job in case you can't pin down one of those rare fellows who still clean out chimneys.

"Of course, there are still a lot of chimney sweeps in Ireland who still use brooms in their work," Hills said.

Maybe someone will think of importing a few who can make a clean sweep of it here in America where chimneys have a very important place in every home come Christmas time.

In Springfield, Walker accused Thompson of "political posturing" and said he is hiding behind a "smokescreen of phony political rhetoric." At issue is Walker's plan for school aid for the current fiscal year. He used his veto powers to reduce $84.5 million from the $1.287 billion school aid appropriation passed by the legislature, but said he would approve more money for the schools if lawmekers okay his plan to speed up businss tax collections and get $95 million of next year's tax revenues into the state coffers during this fiscal year.

The General Assembly is now in special session considering the matter, while Walker, Thompson and Democratic gubernatorial nominee Michael Howlett exchange potshots over the issue.

Rail service a 'burden': trustee

Losses from the Rock Island Lines railroad passenger service between Chicago and the Quad Cities and Peoria constitute "an intolerable burden," Rock Island trustee William Gibbons testified Monday. Appearing before an Illinois Commerce Commission hearing, Gibbons urged the Rock Island be allowed to discontinue the service so the money can be used for rehabilitating the rest of the line.

Gibbons, appointed by a federal court judge to oversee the reorganization of the bankrupt railroad, said the Rock Island lost $797,000 on the Quad Cities and Peoria Rockets in 1975 and another $157,000 the first three months of this year — over and above a $1 million a year subsidy from the state of Illinois. Railroad officials said an average of only 17 persons ride the two trains daily.

Police sergeant indicted

Chicago Police Sgt. Richard Scanlon was indicted Monday on charges of obstruction of justice and official misconduct stemming from an incident which an apparently innocent man spent a year in jail. Scanlon, 44, a 15-year police veteran, has been suspended from the department because of the case.

Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey said, "in this case the Chicago Police Dept., two judges, a Cook County grand jury and my office were given false and misleading evidence that resulted in the arrest, prosecution and conviction of an innocent man." James Dixon, 23, spent 362 days in the Cook County Jail after being charged with aggravated battery and attempted murder in the shooting of Scanlon Aug. 2, 1975.

Four found dead in S. Beloit home

Firemen called to a house fire Monday in South Beloit found the bodies of four persons — a man, a woman and two girls. Each had been shot. The house was tightly closed from the inside and at least four and perhaps as many as seven fires appeared to have been set, making it appear possible murders and suicide, police said. The victims were identified as Mary Leveringston, 35, her daughters, Lynette, 15, and Ramona, 8, and a friend, Eddie Warner, 32.

Dirksen statue dedication

All three living ex-governors of Illinois will be present Thursday at the dedication of a new statue of the late Sen. Everett M. Dirksen on the Capitol lawn in Springfield. Dirksen's widow, Louella, and his daughter, Mrs. Howard Baker, will join former Governors Samuel Shapiro, William Stratton and Richard Ogilvie, as will the sculptor, Carl Tolpo of Stockton, Ill., Sec. of State Michael Howlett said Monday. The larger-than-life size statue shows Dirksen, a Democratic donkey, a Republican elephant and marigolds — the flower Dirksen campaigned to have named the national flower.

Walker signs school bond bill

Gov. Daniel Walker Monday signed into law a bill increasing the maximum amount of school construction bonds the state is allowed to sell by $20 million. The additional bond authorization, to $420 million, will be earmarked for special education building projects. Under current law, the state uses general funds to reimburse school districts which make capital improvements for special education. The bill was sponsored by Rep. Gene Hoffman, R-Elmhurst.

Senate rejects proposal 62-14

Annual revenue sharing bid loses

by DONALD H. MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Monday rejected, 62 to 14, a proposal to require annual appropriations by Congress for federal revenue sharing to state and local governments.

The vote came as the Senate took up a bill that would promise states and localities $41 billion in revenue sharing over a period of nearly six years with no annual congressional review.

Sen. Joseph R. Biden, D-Del., lost out on his amendment to require that Congress approve the money year-by-year after 1978. He urged senators not to "tie our hands" six years ahead, with no way of knowing what the state of the economy or federal revenues will bt at that time.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., floor manager of the bill, said mayors, county commissioners, governors and state legislature need to know in advance how much money they will get so they can plan how to use it.

THE EXISTING revenue sharing program, begun in 1972, expires at the end of this year. By then, 39,000 localities throughout the country will have received $30 billion in sharing funds, with very few restrictions on how they could use it.

The Senate bill would extend the program through September 1982, providing $6.65 billion the first year, with $200 million added each year for inflation.

The House recently voted to extend the program through September 1980 at $6.65 billion a year with nothing added for inflation, a total of $25 billion.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., said it makes sense to give part of federal tax collections to state and local governments because they spend money "more wisely, more cheaply and more honestly than the federal government."

HE SAID REVENUE sharing is highly efficient federal program, operating with fewer than 100 employes, and suggested the concept someday be applied to more programs. For example, federal funds for education simply could be given to local school boards to use as they see fit, he said.

Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, denounced what he called the concept that "Big Brothers knows best."

"We (in Washington) have gone too far in specifying what the citizen needs and wants and how to achieve it," he said.

Sen. William L. Scott, R-Va., said both federal and local governments are providing "to many services for the people — services that they can perform themselves."

"We have to rethink the whole concept of the federal government raising the money and letting another level of government spend it," he said.

Scott and others also argued that with a federal government deficit of $50 billion projected next year, "we haven't any revenue to share."

Enrollment at Harper, Oakton increases 12%

Enrollment at Harper and Oakton colleges is up more than 12 per cent this fall compared to fall 1975, college officials said Monday.

More than 20,000 students have registered for classes at Harper this month, increasing the college's enrollment 12.5 per cent, said Guerin Fischer, vice president of student affairs.

At Oakton, enrollment is up 12.6 per cent to 6,237 full- and part-time students, said Arthur Klem, director of development. The Oakton figure does not include people enrolled in continuing and adult education programs as the Harper figure does, Klem said.

OAKTON OFFERS such courses through the Maine-Oakton-Niles Continuing Education Program, which does not begin classes until Sept. 23, Klem said.

Part of the increase at Oakton, 7900 Nagle Ave., Morton Grove, can be attributed to the opening of an extension center at Notre Dame High School in Niles, Klem said. More than 600 persons have enrolled in courses offered at the high school, he said.

Klem said the college had forecasted an enrollment of 6,200 this semester.

The total of 21,015 students at Harper marks the second consecutive year Harper's student population has been greater than 20,000, Fischer said. The campus is located at Roselle and Algonquin roads in Palatine.

ALTHOUGH FINAL figures are not available, Fischer said it appears more people are enrolling as part-time students than in the past and that they are taking fewer courses per semester.

The average credit load this semester is about nine hours, Fischer said. A person must take at least 12 hours to be considered a full-time student at Harper.

Fischer said the trend to take fewer courses may be caused by an increase in jobs available in the Harper area.

"When students can hold part-time jobs they're able to stretch their education over a longer period of time and consequently only attend school part time," he said.

PART OF THE 12.5 per cent enrollment increase can be traced to a 100 per cent increase in the number of people taking courses at Harper's Willow Park Center in Wheeling. The center opened in August 1975 with an enrollment of 1,400, but this fall more than 2,800 students are enrolled there.

Enrollment in adult education courses is 45 per cent higher than last fall, Fischer said, and that contributes to the increase in part-time students.

An area where enrollment is down 12 per cent is in university extension courses taught at Harper, Fischer said. Schools such as Northern Illinois University have discontinued many extension courses and rescheduled them on their own campuses to make use of their own facilities, Fischer said.

Being a chimney sweep has its ups and downs

time these days "since most of the fireplaces in homes clean themselves out, or just don't get that dirty," he said.

In any event, Candler and Ruckoldt both admit to using brooms when the need arises to scrape the inside walls of a chimney or duct free of dirt build-up.

THERE ARE chemicals, scrapers, vacuums and other tools of the trade that are used to clean out any chimney shaft.

"I would say about 80 per cent of the homes in the Northwest suburbs have fireplaces. A lot of people like them today for decoration or the atmosphere they provide," said Ruckoldt. "But, few home chimneys get dirty enough for professional cleaning."

Most fireplace owners can burn newspaper to get rid of the residue that builds up on the inside, he said.

But, if a basketball or a dead animal is stuck in the chimney and needs to be removed, if the fireplace needs repairing or if the damper gets stuck it may cost anywhere from $35 to $200 for a full day's work, depending on what needs to be done.

"EACH JOB IS a challenge, and it's good work. It's gratifying because you feel useful," Candler said. "I only wish we could hire all midgets to get into some of these really tight spots."

There are a few former chimney sweeps who couldn't be convinced of that, though.

Walter Hills, owner of Hills Building Maintenance in Mount Prospect, said he stopped cleaning out chimneys six years ago.

"In our business, I can't think of a dirtier job, and people just don't want to pay you enough for the bother," said Hills, who concentrates mainly on rebuilding and tearing down chimneys, repairing and laying brick.

"SOME CHIMNEYS are 60 feet deep. That could cost more than $200. Owners might just as well take an old tree branch or a stick with a burlap bag on the end of it and clean out the chimney themselves," he said.

Those are a few suggestions for a "do-it-yourself" job in case you can't pin down one of those rare fellows who still clean out chimneys.

"Of course, there are still a lot of chimney sweeps in Ireland who still use brooms in their work," Hills said.

Maybe someone will think of importing a few who can make a clean sweep of it here in America where chimneys have a very important place in every home come Christmas time.

Shuttle buses so popular more may be planned

The growing popularity of Buffalo Grove-Arlington Heights commuter bus service could lead to the addition of more buses and bus routes, according to North Suburban Mass Transit District officials.

Robert Bourne, operations assistant for NORTRAN, said new routes may be designed to meet late morning or early afternoon trains at the downtown Arlington Heights station. The service now operates only from 6 to 8 a.m. and 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Bus ridership has been high since the route began operating in June. It suffered a decline of about 17 per cent when fares were established in August but use again is increasing because of the end of the summer vacation season, he said.

IT AVERAGED 164 riders per day in August, compared with about 221 for the two weeks before fares were imposed. Ridership last week has averaged 186 per day.

Claude Luisada, a member of the Buffalo Grove Transportation Committee, said he expects ridership to increase still more this week.

"We really expect the crunch this week," he said. "A lot of people wait to take their vacations for the week after Labor Day instead of before."

The average per mile ridership for the service has been 1.58 passengers, Bourne said. He said NORTRAN may curtail a service if ridership falls below one passenger per mile, and will add service when it exceeds 1.75.

If ridership continues at last week's pace, it will average more than 1.75 per mile.

Board room puts 'cramp' in parks style of meeting

by JOE SWICKARD

The board room of the Arlington Heights Park District is so cramped that the commissioners have to go out in the hall if they want to change their minds.

Or as Park District Director Thomas Thornton says — take the old board room . . . please.

To residents who attend park district board meetings, the meeting room at Olympic Park is no joke. Small, stuffy and featuring poor acoustics, it seems designed to discourage people from attending public meetings.

TO REMEDY THE situation, Thornton is urging the board to move its meeting room to the addition being built at the Forest View Tennis Club. Plans for the addition include a large room that could more than double the seating for residents attending board meetings, he said.

The Olympic Park room has seats for about 10 spectators. When additional seating is provided, it often blocks off the doorway.

Even with standing-room-only conditions, such as at the recent hearing on the Oct. 2 bond referendum called to get citizen reaction, only about 25 persons could crowd into the meeting and some people were forced to stand in the hall.

"The new room would have more seating and would have better ventilation," Thornton said. "The Olympic room is air conditioned, but when you get a crowd and people smoke, it just doesn't do the job."

WHEN COMMISSIONERS approved plans for the tennis club addition, Thornton recommended that the board move to the new facility.

"But no action was taken on it. I'm going to recommend it again," he said.

One drawback is the location of the tennis club, 800 E. Falcon Dr., at the extreme southern end of the district. Olympic Park is centrally located at 660 N. Ridge Ave., across from Arlington High School.

"The objection anyone would have would be the location. But everyone drives to the meetings anyway," Thornton said.

IF THE PARK district does approve moving its meeting site, the change probably will not come until April. The board sets its meeting locations at the beginning of each fiscal year, which runs from May to April.

Thornton said another advantage of the move is that the park administration offices already are located in the tennis club building. Holding board meetings in the same building would eliminate the need for transporting files, charts and maps to Olympic Park and back again for the

3 talks slated to explain parks vote

The Arlington Heights Park District's $2.8 million golf course-park improvement referendum, to be decided Oct. 2, will be explained at three public meetings this month.

The sessions are scheduled for 8 p.m. Sept. 22 at Camelot Park, Sept. 28 at Pioneer Park and Sept. 29 at Heritage Park.

The park district board of commissioners will have its regular meeting Sept. 27 at Recreation Park. A presentation of the referendum is included on the agenda.

The special meetings were scheduled in different areas of the park district to allow all residents to attend, said Lloyd W. Meyer, park board president.

THE REFERENDUM will be submitted to voters in two parts: one seeking approval to develop a $1.5 million golf course at the site of the former Nike base and the other for $1.3 million to fund improvements at 22 other sites.

Approval of the golf course development proposal would end a long struggle by the park district, the village and other organizations to acquire land at the former Nike base and develop it for recreational use.

The 90-acre, 18-hole course would be completed by mid-1978. Park district officials have predicted the course would show a $200,000 profit by its third year of operation.

Included among the improvement plans are construction of 20 tennis courts, lighting at five existing courts and three softball-baseball diamonds, construction of two meeting rooms at Heritage Park, fieldhouse remodeling at Recreation Park and Hasbrook Park and bathhouse remodeling at Pioneer Park.

Dist. 59 reviews six applicants

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education reviewed six candidates in a closed session Monday for the vacant position created by the resignation of Lynne Helvie.

The candidates include: Donald Zommer, 817 Delphia, Elk Grove Village; Sharon Chavoen, 641C Burgundy Ct., Elk Grove Village; Erwin Poklacki, 1223 S. Fernandez, Arlington Heights; Gerald Smiley, 1156 Cheltenham Rd., Elk Grove Village; Lynn Clapper, 1523 S. Kaspar, Arlington Heights; and Saul Cohen, 312 Dorchester Ln., Elk Grove Village.

Board Pres. Judith Zanca said Friday that the board plans to select the new member by the Sept. 20 meeting.

ZOMMER IS A former president of the Elk Grove Village Jaycees and is active with the Elk Grove Village United Fund Board and the Elk Grove Village Community Service Board.

Mrs. Clapper is on the Dist. 59 Communications Committee and has actively opposed the Dist. 59 area unit school district movement. Mrs. Chavoen has served as president of the Marshall School PTC in Elk Grove Village.

Smiley and Poklacki are former Dist. 59 board members. Smiley served on the board from 1972 to 1975, but resigned from his post in July 1975. Poklacki, who served on the board from 1971 to 1973, replaced Smiley on the board last summer but was defeated when he ran for a 3-year term in April.

Cohen said he is seeking the position because he feels his background as a certified public accountant would be useful to the board.

Truck destroyed in blast at firm

An explosion outside a building owned by an Arlington Heights business early Monday morning destroyed a flatbed truck and caused minor damage to the building, police reported.

Police said the truck exploded, blowing in a window on an overhead door of Production System Erectors Inc., 12 W. College Dr., and causing other minor damage to the vacant building.

Arlington Heights firefighters quickly extinguished the blaze. Cause of the explosion is under investigation.

Fashion show set by tennis club

The latest in tennis wear and savings on tennis clothes will be featured at Forest View Tennis Club's third annual fashion show and salad luncheon at 1 p.m. Friday.

Tickets for the event at the tennis club, 800 E. Falcon Dr., are $2.50 and are available at the club or by contacting Linda Gibbins at 956-1588. The deadline for reservations is Thursday. Reservations for babysitting services can be made at Forest View Tennis Club.

All proceeds from the fashion show will be donated to the Northwest Special Recreation Assn.

Seminars on stress offered by center

A series of seminars on stress will be offered this fall by the Arlington Heights Counseling Center in conjunction with the Harper College Community Leadership Training Center and the Hoffman Estates Youth and Family Services Dept.

The four sessions will feature experts in different areas of stress research. Starting Sept. 28, the seminars will continue on successive Tuesdays until Oct. 19. The seminars will be from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

The fee is $3.50 per session or $12 for the entire series.

To register, call 882-4445.

Seminar topics will include a panel discussion on stress and mental health, a lecture on nutrition and mental health, a discussion on the crises of death and dying and a seminar on altered states of consciousness such as meditation.

Shuttle buses so popular more may be planned

The growing popularity of Buffalo Grove-Arlington Heights commuter bus service could lead to the addition of more buses and bus routes, according to North Suburban Mass Transit District officials.

Approval of the golf course development proposal would end a long struggle by the park district, the village and other organizations to acquire land at the former Nike base and develop it for recreational use.

The 90-acre, 18-hole course would be completed by mid-1978. Park district officials have predicted the course would show a $200,000 profit by its third year of operation.

Included among the improvement plans are construction of 20 tennis courts, lighting at five existing courts and three softball-baseball diamonds, construction of two meeting rooms at Heritage Park, fieldhouse remodeling at Recreation Park and Hasbrook Park and bathhouse remodeling at Pioneer Park.

Dist. 59 reviews six applicants

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education reviewed six candidates in a closed session Monday for the vacant position created by the resignation of Lynne Helvie.

The candidates include: Donald Zommer, 817 Delphia, Elk Grove Village; Sharon Chavoen, 641C Burgundy Ct., Elk Grove Village; Erwin Poklacki, 1223 S. Fernandez, Arlington Heights; Gerald Smiley, 1156 Cheltenham Rd., Elk Grove Village; Lynn Clapper, 1523 S. Kaspar, Arlington Heights; and Saul Cohen, 312 Dorchester Ln., Elk Grove Village.

Board Pres. Judith Zanca said Friday that the board plans to select the new member by the Sept. 20 meeting.

ZOMMER IS A former president of the Elk Grove Village Jaycees and is active with the Elk Grove Village United Fund Board and the Elk Grove Village Community Service Board.

Mrs. Clapper is on the Dist. 59 Communications Committee and has actively opposed the Dist. 59 area unit school district movement. Mrs. Chavoen has served as president of the Marshall School PTC in Elk Grove Village.

Smiley and Poklacki are former Dist. 59 board members. Smiley served on the board from 1972 to 1975, but resigned from his post in July 1975. Poklacki, who served on the board from 1971 to 1973, replaced Smiley on the board last summer but was defeated when he ran for a 3-year term in April.

Cohen said he is seeking the position because he feels his background as a certified public accountant would be useful to the board.

Police said the truck exploded, blowing in a window on an overhead door of Production System Erectors Inc., 12 W. College Dr., and causing other minor damage to the vacant building.

Arlington Heights firefighters quickly extinguished the blaze. Cause of the explosion is under investigation.

The way we see it

Standards seem clear

Much like the proverbial good news, bad news stories, Michael Bakalis has put forth some new ideas for standards of conduct for politicians and the media which are:

Good, because it is always healthy to see politicians thinking about ethical conduct;

Bad, because there already are numerous codes of conduct that could be observed.

Bakalis, the Democratic candidate for comptroller, said he has noticed a decline in respect for various institutions. He singled out politicians and media.

He proposed that politicians and the news media adopt new codes of professional conduct to ensure quality, issues-oriented campaigns and equally high quality news coverage.

His intent is good, but it should be noted that there already are ethical standards for both species, some in law and some in written codes of ethics.

Common Cause, the citizen's lobbying group, asks candidates to subscribe to a pledge calling for campaigns to be conducted on the issues, urging financial disclosure and calling for frequent news conferences.

The Fair Campaign Practices Committee also has standards and a mechanism to handle complaints about violations of the standards.

While Bakalis' proposal generally has merit, he should be encouraging fellow candidates and the media to follow established standards rather than calling for the duplication of what exists. His suggestion that boards be established to oversee adherence to the codes smacks of a quasi-legal agency that might be difficult to administer.

Besides the standards for political comment, the news media already have a number of professional codes to follow. Bakalis suggests the media code establish specifications for what events to cover, aim for fair and accurate coverage and attempt to ensure all charges are authentic before reporting them.

Another good idea, but the media has already beat Bakalis to the punch and gone much further. Standards applied to reporting cover all types of news and not just politics.

What is needed in Illinois is not another set of conduct standards, but a rededication to the standards that already have been adopted and seem quite adequate.

What isn't artificial?

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Let us pause for a moment and salute a remarkable achievement in the field of artificial simulation.

The feat we are honoring came to light with the recent revelation that the government was considering a ban on "carbon black," a food coloring used in licorice and jelly beans.

A spokesman for the nation's candy makers said such a ruling by the Food and Drug Administration would have little impact on their business.

"They have other substitutes," he said.

This means, if I read it right, that the candy makers have come up with a substitute for an ingredient that was already artificial.

Could this be the long awaited breakthrough we've been looking for — the creation of pseudo-synthetics?

Apparently so.

I have in my desk a pack of my favorite jujubees. On the wrapper in large type it says "LICORICE." Elsewhere, in much smaller sype, the ingredients are listed.

The ingredients, in the order of their appearance are: "sugar, corn syrup, artificial flavor and color."

Notice, Dr. Watson, that something is missing from this list.

Namely, licorice.

The candy industry, it appears, has succeeded in making licoriceless licorice.

Creation-wise, that may not be in the class with test tube babies, but it is nevertheless an impressive development.

As a jujube or jelly bean consumer, you may be curious as to how the miracle of licoriceless licorice came to pass. If so, you have come to the right place.

Licorice, real licorice, that is, comes from the roots of glycyrrhiza glabra, a luguminous herb grown in Turkey, the Mesopatomian valley and points east.

Anyone who likes the stuff is in good company. The Shen Nung Pen Ts'ao King, one of man's earliest medical records, made mention of licorice, as did Theophrastus, a doctor friend of Aristotle.

Licorice was known in those days as a tonic and elixir purported to impart youthful vigor to aging men. A quantity of it was found in King Tut's tomb. Which indicates that its medicinal properties were somewhat overrated.

Licorice candy may have originated in England. In any event, the English were exceedingly fond of it. Chaucer, for one, spoke highly of it, avowing that people who "cheweth licorys" would "smellen swete."

But then someone discovered that the oil of anise, another herb, could be substituted for glycyrrhiza glabra. And someone else discovered that Anethole, a derivative of anise, could be produced synthetically.

Eventually, an artificial coloring was added to the synthetic flavor substitute.

And they say the age of miracles is over!

Who is Jimmy Carter?

HUGH SIDEY

Does Jimmy Carter have too much religion?

That's a possibility. Self-righteousness — the notion that you're right and everybody else is wrong — can get a lot of people into trouble. There was an element of that in both Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon. They burned very fiercely. They had enemy lists in various ways. Mr.Johnson had his in the back of his head and Mr. Nixon had his on paper. I'm trying to find out whether Mr. Carter comes more out of the Old Testament or the New Testament.

As I grew up in the Presbyterian Church, those Old Testament fellows were a good deal rougher than the New Testament variety. They hated better back then and they were continually making wars. Mr. Carter, of course, professes more of the New Testament doctrine but he does make personal judgments about people that are quite harsh and he's quite quick to do it.

(As for his announcement before the American Legion that he would pardon draft evaders), I think that there may be an element of courage involved to go before 6,000 people and have them boo you. But I suspect that in political terms, he knew, and I suspect that he's right, that he gained across the nation. His stand seems right. I suspect the majority of the American people will side with Mr. Carter.

How does Jimmy Carter compare with past presidents?

There are certain qualities that seem to be similar between Mr. Carter and Mr. Nixon. Now let's back up just a litle bit and say that Mr. Nixon was many people. I was in Peking that Monday night when he and Chou En-lai — men who had been bitter enemies for 22 years — clinked glasses and hugged each other. That was an amazing moment. And three months later in the Kremlin, they began to work on that first arms limitation agreement. So there were elements of Mr. Nixon that were very good.

Jimmy Carter is hard to get to know. There is a sense of purpose about him like there was about Mr. Nixon. Mr. Carter clings to his poverty-ridden early life with some of the same mannerisms of Mr. Nixon. So there are these similarities. But at this point, I stop a long way from suggesting that he really is anything like Mr. Nixon.

You finally come down to character of the man and that intangible something we describe as what's in his heart. And that changes the whole equation. I've seen certain qualities (in Carter) that are much like Kennedy. He's a reader for instance. I rather like that quality. But I want a little more time before we size him up to other presidents.

Does the public see the real man, or just a public relations facade?

I think we went through a sound barrier here after Watergate on knowing presidents. We know Gerald Ford probably better than any president, at least in modern times. We know about his family, we know about his sex life, we know about his finances. In the short range, people maybe can fool us a little bit. Nixon did back in 1968. We should have been more diligent. But overall, this scrutiny finally strips the man and you see him.

JACK ANDERSON

Does Jimmy Carter have too much religion?

I've always found Jimmy Carter to be inaccessible and difficult to understand. I sent a reporter to Plains to work on a peanut farm and get down at the grass roots and try to find out what the people really thought about him. That didn't help an awful lot. He found that Jimmy Carter was popular among blacks.

He found that Jimmy Carter was regarded as fair — that the people in his Baptist Church still talk about the time at the height of the racial turmoil, when Jimmy Carter stood up in his little church and told the congregation that they ought to open the church doors to their black brothers. It wasn't a popular thing to do. And after he finished his sermon, he had six votes, fiv e of them Carters. One recruit. This indicates some courage yet at the same time he stayed in the church. It's still a segregated church.

Those who have gotten to know Jimmy Carter lately, tell me that the easiness of manner, engaging sincerity and the smile, are sort of the moss on a character of granite. One of our professionals, who has been meeting almost daily with Carter, said he's tough as a warehouse rat. He said it admiringly. He felt that presidents of the United States needed to have that inner toughness. I think Carter is probably able. That he's got courage.

How does Carter compare with past presidents?

I was originally suspicious of Jimmy Carter, more suspicious than I am now. I thought that some of the things that he was saying were pure political rhetoric . . . his attacks upon bureaucracy. I thought this was what he thought people wanted to hear and I was suspicious of his true feelings about it. Then I got to talking to Hyman Rickover. Jimmy Carter once worked for Admiral Rickover and of all the men in Washington, Rickover has the least patience for the bureaucracy. He slashes red tape.

He remembered his first meeting with Carter. Carter had just come out of the Naval Academy and Rickover asked him where did you stand in your class. And Jimmy Carter, a little proudly, said, "I stood 89th in a class of 820." And then Rickover asked, "Did you always do your best?" And Carter thought about that a moment. He said, "No sir, I guess I didn't always do my best." And then Rickover said, "Why?" Carter has told Rickover since that this is an incident he always remembered. This is one of the things that always motivated him. So I think maybe Jimmy Carter did mean those speeches.

Does the public see the real man or just a public relations facade?

I think that there is merchandising that goes on. We saw how Richard Nixon was wrapped in cellophane and tied in blue ribbons. But he still came out Richard Nixon. They weren't really able to change his image. I think the spotlight on the president is sufficiently bright that we can see through. Gerald Ford, in my opinion, is not really being merchandised. We're seeing thr real Gerald Ford. We've known him a long time and it would be pretty hard for him to hide from us. He's a decent man, an honorable man, a man of integrity.

Worthy of note

Thanks for calling attention to the elimination of WMAQ-TV's signed news program for the deaf. I affectionately disagree with Rabbi Doug Goldhamer whom I don't know personally that the deaf have not lost one iota of dignity (but perhaps the recognition thereof) and it is NBC and the hearing public (those who felt distracted by signs, at least) who have lost or abandoned humane dignity in this regard. The general public needs this exposure to the deaf culture as much as the deaf need current news.

O'Hare statistics too much for area

I recently came upon some interesting statistics on the utilization of runways for arrivals at O'Hare International Airport. In 1974, 31 per cent of the arrivals landed on either Runway 14 Left or 14 Right. These are the runways which go across Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Palatine. This 31 per cent represents 108,000 arrivals. In 1975, these runways jumped from 31 per cent to 37 per cent. This represents a little less than 125,000 arrivals. In comparing these percentages with the remaining pairs, the range for the remaining runways range from 19 per cent down to one per cent. In other words, the Northwest suburbs receive almost twice as much arrival traffic as any other pair. In fact, you can add up six different runways and their percentages would not equal that of 37 per cent.

Recently, I read an article that quoted Secretary Colman as stating that 80 per cent of the jet aircraft flying today exceed the maximum standards of noise pollution. Putting together this last statement with the statistics I quoted above, it seems that the Northwest suburbs are being treated unfairly. Recently, I went to the dedication of the Arlington Heights' new golf course. During the dedication, many dignitaries gave speeches. Because of the noise of the airplanes, we were unable to understand many parts of the speeches due to the excessive noise levels. These speakers were using microphones and we were standing no more than 50 feet away. Even the mayor of Arlington Heights commented on the jet aircraft.

For the last two years I have written to our two senators and to my representative, Philip Crane, R-12. In these letters I have complained about the excessive noise and the excessive usages of these runways. As the statistics bear out, nothing positive has been done to alleviate this problem.

This being an election year, I call on all of the people to question the candidates on their policy for noise control from O'Hare Field. If anybody is concerned, they should bring out the issues, get commitments from the representatives and their senators. If they cannot then I urge the people to vote for the competition, for they will fulfill the wants and needs of the public or else they will not be re-elected. I will definitely question and get commitments from Mr. Crane on this touchy subject or else he will lose my vote come Nov. 2, 1976.

And Jimmy Carter, a little proudly, said, "I stood 89th in a class of 820." And then Rickover asked, "Did you always do your best?" And Carter thought about that a moment. He said, "No sir, I guess I didn't always do my best." And then Rickover said, "Why?" Carter has told Rickover since that this is an incident he always remembered. This is one of the things that always motivated him. So I think maybe Jimmy Carter did mean those speeches.

Does the public see the real man or just a public relations facade?

I think that there is merchandising that goes on. We saw how Richard Nixon was wrapped in cellophane and tied in blue ribbons. But he still came out Richard Nixon. They weren't really able to change his image. I think the spotlight on the president is sufficiently bright that we can see through. Gerald Ford, in my opinion, is not really being merchandised. We're seeing thr real Gerald Ford. We've known him a long time and it would be pretty hard for him to hide from us. He's a decent man, an honorable man, a man of integrity.

Worthy of note

Thanks for calling attention to the elimination of WMAQ-TV's signed news program for the deaf. I affectionately disagree with Rabbi Doug Goldhamer whom I don't know personally that the deaf have not lost one iota of dignity (but perhaps the recognition thereof) and it is NBC and the hearing public (those who felt distracted by signs, at least) who have lost or abandoned humane dignity in this regard. The general public needs this exposure to the deaf culture as much as the deaf need current news.

O'Hare statistics too much for area

I recently came upon some interesting statistics on the utilization of runways for arrivals at O'Hare International Airport. In 1974, 31 per cent of the arrivals landed on either Runway 14 Left or 14 Right. These are the runways which go across Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Palatine. This 31 per cent represents 108,000 arrivals. In 1975, these runways jumped from 31 per cent to 37 per cent. This represents a little less than 125,000 arrivals. In comparing these percentages with the remaining pairs, the range for the remaining runways range from 19 per cent down to one per cent. In other words, the Northwest suburbs receive almost twice as much arrival traffic as any other pair. In fact, you can add up six different runways and their percentages would not equal that of 37 per cent.

Recently, I read an article that quoted Secretary Colman as stating that 80 per cent of the jet aircraft flying today exceed the maximum standards of noise pollution. Putting together this last statement with the statistics I quoted above, it seems that the Northwest suburbs are being treated unfairly. Recently, I went to the dedication of the Arlington Heights' new golf course. During the dedication, many dignitaries gave speeches. Because of the noise of the airplanes, we were unable to understand many parts of the speeches due to the excessive noise levels. These speakers were using microphones and we were standing no more than 50 feet away. Even the mayor of Arlington Heights commented on the jet aircraft.

For the last two years I have written to our two senators and to my representative, Philip Crane, R-12. In these letters I have complained about the excessive noise and the excessive usages of these runways. As the statistics bear out, nothing positive has been done to alleviate this problem.

This being an election year, I call on all of the people to question the candidates on their policy for noise control from O'Hare Field. If anybody is concerned, they should bring out the issues, get commitments from the representatives and their senators. If they cannot then I urge the people to vote for the competition, for they will fulfill the wants and needs of the public or else they will not be re-elected. I will definitely question and get commitments from Mr. Crane on this touchy subject or else he will lose my vote come Nov. 2, 1976.

Alcoholism costs firms money

Employes asked to 'take the cure'

by LEA TONKIN

Alcoholism takes a slice out of company profits, one reason why a small number of Illinois companies have launched employe referral and treatment programs.

"In any company, you can assume 5 per cent of their employes are probably alcoholics," said Jack Callaghan, executive director of the Maine Township Council on Alcoholism in Des Plaines. "It's a $15 billion hangover for industry in the U.S."

Employers pay a hefty price for looking the other way when a worker's job performance suffers due to alcoholism. Increased absenteeism, poor attitude, inefficiency and greater risk of on-the-job accidents generally cost a company 25 per cent of the alcoholic's salary.

TOO MANY employers become enablers, Callaghan said. "They cover up for the alcoholic, they keep him on the job as long as possible. They're supporting the drinker and enabling him to drink."

Firing an employe is another costly reaction to the illness. Recruiting, training and overtime salary costs add up quickly.

One nearby business facing up to the problem of heavy drinkers is Kemper Insurance Companies in Long Grove. John Lavino Jr., director of health services, said alcoholism and drug dependence counseling reaches both the alcoholic and immediate family members.

Kemper steps in to offer assistance when personal problems cripple on-the-job performance. A supervisor's evaluation of the employe's work rather than invastion of the person's private life is stressed, and the service is confidential.

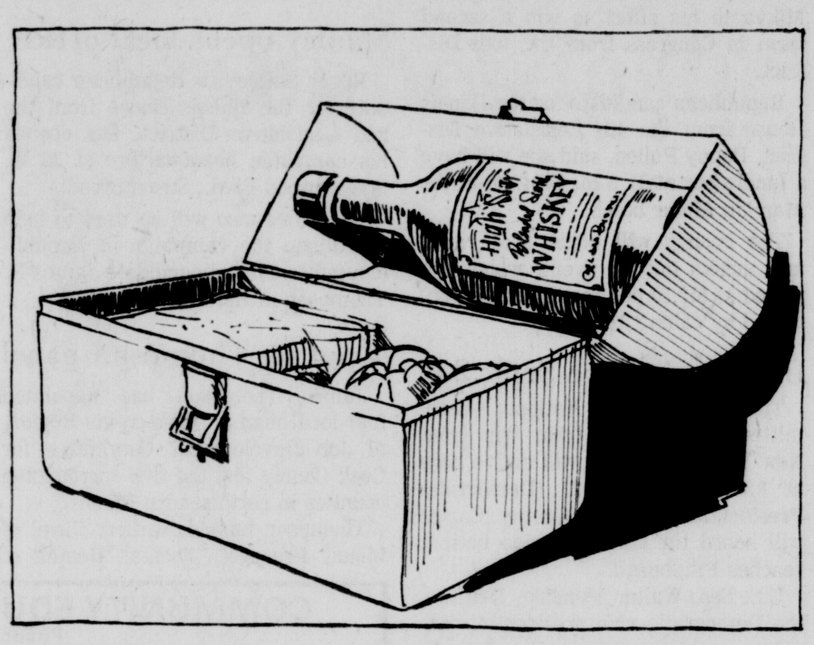
"We ask them to come in for a talk, using the leverage of discipline," Lavino said. The alcoholic employe will be counseled by Kemper personnel. Referral to professional agencies and hospitalization may be recommended.

DENIAL OF A DRINKING problem is common. That's when a supervisor's documentation of job performance is important said a recovering alcoholic who works for Kemper. He acknowledged that delusion and a certain amount of cunning allow an alcoholic to postpone the day when he faces up to the illness.

Lavino points to actual results as a measure of the Kemper alcoholism program's success. 63 Kemper employes participated in the company-wide program from October 1974 to May 1976.

All except 17 of the managers, supervisors, professional, technical and clerical workers stayed on the job. They included men and women ages 22 to 60, with an average $12,667 annual salary and more than seven years' average experience. Total salaries stacked up to $798,066 for the period.

The double whammy of alcoholism in the workplace is apparent in Kemper's counseling of 52 employes with alcoholic family members during the same period.



KEMPER COUNSELOR Mary Ellen Kane said the alcoholic and close relatives typically face a clutch of job, family, financial and spiritual proglems. Denial of the progressive illness brings no relief. "Either you have it or you don't. It's like being a little bit pregnant," she said.

"Too many people still have the idea that the alcoholic is a skid row bum, a park bench sleeper," said Ray Kelly, state coordinator of industry alcoholism referral programs. "Less than 5 per cent are on skid row. Ninety-five per cent are priests, doctors, lawyers, any profession. It's a very democratic disease."

As a representative of the Illinois Dept. of Mental Health, Kelly encourages Illinois industries to set up alcoholism programs. Companies should give alcholic workers "the same chance they've been giving their other sick employes for years," he said.

"The problem is that most companies still don't think they have this problem," Kelly said. "They base this on how many alcoholics they've seen over the years coming to work drunk, drinking on the job or going on a 10-day binge. For every one who is visible, there are 25 employes who have the same problem." Kelly estimates there are 546,000 alcoholics in Illinois alone.

COMPANIES SUCH AS Illinois Bell Telephone Co. claim multiple benefits Kelly said. "We have yet to sell a company on a strictly humanitarian basis," he said. "It means economic savings. A company can expect a $5 return for every dollar invested."

A joint union-management program at Elk Grove Township-based United Airlines benefits everyone involved, and Clarence Jones Jr. of Hoffman Estates, program coordinator for Dist. 141 of the International Assn. of Machinists and Aerospace Workers. Jones said the union also has a separate counseling program started in 1968.

"Money is the biggest motivator," Jones said. "A company supplies the job, the job supplies the money, the money supplies the booze." Jones said that's the reason why some problem drinkers lose their family, home and friends to the illness, but they'll sign up for treatment to stay on the job.

A triad of company, union and medical staff assistance accounts for the 65 to 70 per cent success rate of recovering alcoholics, said Norman Schuller, a personnel representative at United. "We don't mention alcoholism problems to an employe," he said. "We send them to the medical staff for counsel." Schuller serves as coordinator of the company-union alcoholic assistance program for the airline's Central Division, O'Hare region.

COMPLETE ANONYMITY is maintained for all individuals served by the Alcoholic Rehabilitation and Education Program within Sheriff Richard J. Elrod's office. The new program is patterned after private industry and government plans.

Small and medium size companies generally lack the medical and personnel staff to tackle the employe alcoholism problem alone. Roger Boekenhauer of the Alcoholism Drug Dependence program in Rolling Meadows suggests contact with an existing agency for referrals. He noted that "It is not uncommon for people who have a drinking problem to use some type of drug."

Employers can realistically expect a 70 per cent or higher recovery rate when alcoholic workers enroll in a treatment program, said the Rev. John Keller, administrative director of the alcoholism treatment center at Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge. "There will be a bottom line savings," Rev. Keller said. "Absenteeism, poor job performance, attidunal changes are all costs."

Once the stigma of alcoholism is removed, employes will more readily accept rehabilitation programs, Rev. Keller believes. Employe anonymity and the treatment of alcoholism as an illness must be understood.

As more companies adopt alcohlism policies, Rev. Keller said they'll discover "It's just plain good management. It is a positive stance toward employes."

Sadlowski in bid to head steel union

Union rebel Edward E. Sadlowski Monday announced his candidacy for president of the 1.4 million member United Steelworkers Union. Sadlowski, 38, director of the union's largest local district in the Chicago-Gary area, will challenge Lloyd McBride, director of the St. Louis area steelworkers, who has the backing of the outgoing union president, I.W. Abel. "The membership of this union needs and deserves a different kind of leadership than they have been getting from the Abel regime," Sadlowski said. "Abel's handpicked candidate, McBride, is pledged to give us more of the same and knowing him I doubt we can even count on that much."

Strike ends at transformer plant

Worker callbacks at the National Transformer Corp. plant in Johnston City, Ill. will start Tuesday after employes voted during the weekend to end a strike that began Sept. 1. Terry Hutson, manager of the National Transformer Corp. plant, said employes Sunday ratified a three-year contract proposal providing pay hikes of 20 cents an hour the first year, 17 cents the second year and 15 cents the third year.

Auto workers prepare to go on strike tonight

the strike deadline approached.

Ford's new offer highlighted the reduced-work-time proposal. It also called for an extension of dental coverage to retirees and eligible dependents, changes in the special fund that gives idled workers up to 95 per cent of their regular take-home pay and transferring $1.02 of the $1.14 workers have earned in cost-of-living raises over the last three years into base wages.

The union did not respond to those proposals.

THE REDUCED-work-time proposal is a version of the "time bank" that the UAW pioneered in the agricultural implement industry.

McKenna said workers would "bank" hours — up to 40 for high seniority employes. A one-day unexcused absence during a week would remove one hour from the bank, but an unexcused absence on Friday or Monday — days that absenteeism soars in auto employes — would subtract two hours.

Despite the unusual third offer, Woodcock remained pessimistic.

"There's too much work to be done and, in my opinion, it's impossible" to avert a strike, he said.

The union busied itself completing preparations for a strike, which would be the second in nine years against the No. 2 auto company. The UAW closed Ford for 66 days in 1967.

Dow drops 5 points to 983.29

NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite an early buying surge, prices fell Monday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange amid fears an auto industry strike was about to begin and a lull in steel orders has become a lag.

The Dow Jones industrial average, up more than three at the outset, lost 5.07 points to 983.29. Despite a 1.49-point gain Friday, the blue-chip average lost 0.75 last week.

The NYSE common stock index lost 0.16 to 55.70 and the average price of an NYSE common share decreased by nine cents. Declines topped advances, 741 to 647, among the 1,878 issues crossing the tape. The 490 unchanged issues reflected investor uncertainty.

(Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, lost 0.36 to 104.29.)

Volume totaled 16,100,000 shares, compared with 16,540,000 traded Friday.

Prices closed lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share decreased by four cents. Volume totaled 1,630,000 shares, compared with 2,130,000 traded Friday.

Tax hikes opposed: Mugalian

State Rep. Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine, has released the results of a new survey of constituents that shows opposition to raising taxes to maintain state services or to finance the cost of education.

Mugalian noted the survey results also show voters favor primary elections without declaring party preference, no fault divorce, branch banking, ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment and a ban on throwaway bottles.

The state representative said that although the 300 persons responding to the poll favored the right of public employes to form unions, 77 per cent opposed public employes striking.

He said 60 per cent of the respondents opposed a constitutional amendment banning abortion.

Mugalian's poll was printed in a newsletter sent residents in the 2nd Legislative District.

He noted that 42 per cent of the residents would favor hiking the state income tax, before any other tax, if a tax increase were required.

U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., will appear at a fund-raising dinner for U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, Sept. 23 at the Palmer House hotel.

U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-23rd, will be master of ceremonies for the $25 a plate dinner.

The dinner program will be followed by the first in the series of televised debates between President Gerald R. Ford and Jimmy Carter.

Kennedy is the latest in a series of prominent Democrats to campaign for Mikva in his effort to win a second term in Congress from the 10th District.

Republican candidate for the Illinois House from the 4th Legislative District, Penny Pullen, said she will have a fundraiser at 11 a.m. Sept. 26 at the Marriott Motor hotel.

The brunch will begin at 11 a.m. and tickets for the event, which are priced at $12.50 per person, can be obtained by calling 823-1004.

Dems train here Sept. 21

The Democratic National Committee's whistlestop train trip from New York to Chicago will arrive here at 8:50 p.m. Sept. 21. Democratic Presidential nominee Jimmy Carter will board the train and ride until it reaches Pittsburgh.

U.S. Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., the Democratic vice presidential candidate, and Carter's wife Rosalyn will ride the train along with numerous local candidates until it reaches Chicago.

Okasas criticizes fee hike

Republican candidate for Cook County Recorder, Casi Okasas, has attacked a decision to raise fees at the county recorders office.

He called the act an "unconscionable attempt by Cook County Democrats to look good in an election year."

Okasas will be honored at a testimonial dinner Sept. 22 at the Martinique Restaurant in Evergreen Park.

Stanley opens local office

Roger Stanley, a Republican candidate for the Illinois House from the 2nd Legislative District, has opened his campaign headquarters at 32 W. Streamwood Blvd., Streamwood.

The office also will be used to help coordinate the campaign of Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson in Hanover Township.

4 put on Thompson panel

James Thompson has appointed four local men to serve on his Regional Job Development Committee for Cook County and the five surrounding counties in northeastern Illinois.

Thompson named Norbert Ciesil of Mount Prospect, Thomas Benton of Arlington Heights, Ray Hollis of Park Ridge and Arnold Pederson of Deerfield to serve on the committee.

The Republican gubernatorial candidate has appointed regional committees throughout the state to study economic conditions and suggests methods to improve the business and labor climate.

Paul urges handgun ban

Tom Paul, Democratic candidate for the Illinois Senate in the 5th Legislative District, told the Des Plaines Kiwanis Club recently there should be a complete ban on the sale of cheap handguns.

Paul's comments on handguns came as he was speaking about his concerns on rising crime rates in the district, which includes the southern part of Des Plaines.

"What we need is a criminal justice system that delivers swift but even-handed justice. I pledge to work toward this goal," Paul said.

Young urges more flights to Midway

by STEVE BROWN

Republican congressional candidate Samuel H. Young of Glenview Monday called for airlines to shift 15 per cent to 20 per cent of their flights from O'Hare to Midway to reduce airplane noise.

Young admitted the proposal was "not a new suggestion" and noted that a mass transit link, such as the Crosstown Expressway, might be needed between O'Hare and Midway.

The former congressman's comments came during a press conference in his Morton Grove campaign office. He outlined a number of other issues that he will use in his effort to unseat U. S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th.

While discussing the differences between himself and Mikva on taxes, Young said, "Mikva, however, has taken the position that all income belongs to the government and any deductions and credits are subsidies to the taxpayers."

UNDER QUESTIONING, Young backed down and admitted his opponent had not made that statement.

"But it is implicit. He has said all tax deductions are government subsidies," Young said. An aide to Mikva said there would be "no comment" on Young's statement.

He also criticized budget deficits approved by Congress and charged that organized labor will attempt to dominate the fall election campaign.

In outlining his airplane noise proposal, Young said that shifting 15 per cent to 20 per cent of the flights to Midway will result in a 15 per cent to 20 per cent reduction in airplane noise at O'Hare.

He also said the government probably will act soon on a policy requiring airlines to "retrofit" older jets to reduce noise. The retrofitting process, a muffling system, should be financed through a tax surcharge on tickets and use of federal airport construction funds, Young said.

"YOU CAN'T REALLY expect any tremendous improvement in the reduction of noise," Young said. He also advocates the development of a federal authority to acquire residential property around airports so that fewer persons wold be affected.

Young said he has three positions on the abortion issue. He said if he is returned to Congress, he will vote according to the citizens' wishes. However, from a legal viewpoint he said the U. S. Supreme Court should have "never got involved in this legal thicket."

Personally, Young said he believes abortion should be permitted for reasons such as rape, incest or to save the life of the mother.

Tax hikes opposed: Mugalian

State Rep. Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine, has released the results of a new survey of constituents that shows opposition to raising taxes to maintain state services or to finance the cost of education.

Mugalian noted the survey results also show voters favor primary elections without declaring party preference, no fault divorce, branch banking, ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment and a ban on throwaway bottles.

The state representative said that although the 300 persons responding to the poll favored the right of public employes to form unions, 77 per cent opposed public employes striking.

He said 60 per cent of the respondents opposed a constitutional amendment banning abortion.

Mugalian's poll was printed in a newsletter sent residents in the 2nd Legislative District.

He noted that 42 per cent of the residents would favor hiking the state income tax, before any other tax, if a tax increase were required.

Stylish women favor haberdashery look

Sketch by Diane Syverson

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

She may not be giving up her electric rollers and eye makeup, but this fall's fashion-conscious woman will definitely be taking a cue from the men in her life as she shops for that new winter wardrobe.

The haberdashery look of crisp, man-tailored blazers and trousers — often completed with fitted shirts and men's ties — is an important one this season. And while the masculine influence hasn't edged out dresses, it has made an impact in the store windows.

According to representatives of local department and women's clothing stores, the haberdashery look appeals to a business-like, on-the-go woman who prefers pants for their versatility. Sales are aimed at the 18-40 age bracket, and while the look can be adopted to many different figures, the three-piece suit tends to flatter tall and slim women more than their shorter sisters.

Popular fabrics include grey flannel, wool and gabardine, even though they hike the price tag. The herringbone hacking jackets and pinstripe suits can be teamed with a variety of shirts, bow blouses and trousers to add variety.

THE POPULARITY of the haberdashery look isn't due so much to the desire to look like men as it is to a greater appreciation for well-made clothes, says Martha Ferris at Lord and Taylor.

"Man tailoring has always connoted better fabrics and workmanship," she adds. "It doesn't have to mean giving up your femininity."

The staid banker's image can be softened with the addition of a crepe bow blouse, a few gold chains and a pair of sporty earrings, Ms. Ferris says. Other important accessory looks include a small envelope handbag, low-heeled shoes and a fedora hat.

While much of the haberdashery look depends on narrow-belted, straight-leg trousers, dresses also have their place. Tailored shirtwaists and vested dresses are popular, and many of those pinstripe suits and sometimes-severe blazers are shown with soft skirts to help feminize the look.

THE MANAGER of the Muriel Mundy shop in Arlington Heights emphasizes that skirts are making a strong showing this fall —"pants are always big, but the blazer and skirt combination has been selling well, too," she says.

But if you're worried about the demise of the sexy little cocktail dress, you can relax. The spokesmen agreed that grey flannel, no matter how snappy, isn't about to crowd out satins, taffetas and silks for gala evenings out.

And if the thought of imitating your husband doesn't quite strike home, the stores emphasize that the haberdashery look is only one of several to make fashion news this fall. There's also the ethnic influence with Western boots and plaids, and the great outdoors look with its brushed fabrics and layered separates.

As a spokesman from Charles Stevens puts it, "Sure, it's a snappy look. But I don't think you'll be seeing pinstripe suits seven days a week."

Self-service dry cleaning cuts cost

Although dry cleaning your clothing is considerably more expensive than laundering, self-service dry cleaning machines can reduce the cost.

But before you dry clean or launder a garment, read the label carefully to determine the proper care method. Marjorie Mead, University of Illinois Extension clothing specialist, points out that some dyes won't hold in dry cleaning solvents, but they can take water.

If the label recommends dry cleaning, you can use coin-operated machines to help reduce the expense.

Machine cleaning isn't designed to give clothing a professionally pressed look, but it gives good results for articles that don't require careful pressing, for instance sweaters, knit wear, non-electric blankets, draperies or slip covers.

MACHINE CLEANING does not always remove wear wrinkles, but the process itself does not add any new ones either. Some coin-cleaning establishments provide a water spray to use on clothing before you put it into the machine. The water helps remove wear wrinkles.

Ms. Mead offers this list of items you should not clean in self-service machines and reasons why:

- Raincoats with a non-permanent water-repellent finish that must be replaced.
- Electric blankets may have their insulation damaged.
- Pillows and comforters may lose their shape and resiliency.
- Leather may become brittle.
- Rubber loses its elasticity.
- Felt may shrink.
- Metallic yarn tarnishes sometimes.
- Plastics may dissolve or become stiff or soft.
- Flock and lacquer prints frequently lose their pattern.
- Stiffened fabrics may become soft.
- Embossed fabric often loses its texture.

When using coin-operated machines you'll get best results if you take time to prepare the clothing for cleaning. Turn cuffs down and pockets inside out. Close zippers and turn sweaters and othtr knit items to the wrong side.

Prevent curtains and draperies from twisting by folding the panels once from top to bottom and pinning the ends with large safety pins.

Sort articles by weight and color. For example, don't put heavy items with lighter ones in the same load. And separate dark-colored garments from light-colored ones because dark fabrics pick up lint easily.

IF SPRAY GUNS are available, spray food and perspiration stains with water. But don't use water on oil or grease spots or on fabrics that show water marks, Ms. Mead warns. Have a professional dry cleaner treat garments that contain spots of unknown origin or stains, such as blood or milk, that may not dissolve in dry cleaning solvent. The solvent used in coin-operated machines could set such stains.

Remove all items from the machine immediately after it stops, and hang each garment on a hanger. Creases and pleats usually improve with hanging. Ms Mead points out that most items will be ready to wear when they come out of the machine, but some may need touching up with an iron. It's usually best to let coin-cleaned garments hang overnight before pressing them.

Tested tips make packing a cinch

by ELLIE GROSSMAN

Now that you've limped home from Europe, or the Orient or the Caribbean, each arm half an inch longer from hauling luggage, here's just what you need: packing advice.

Well, there's always next year or next month. The principles themselves are timeless.

The expert in this case is Pamela Ashley, an attractive blonde who represents Mark Cross, Fifth Avenue leather goods store in New York.

(Actually, her name is Joan Westberg and she's an actress from Chicago. "I'm the original Organized Woman for Mark Cross," she says. "They came up with the name Pamela Ashley because it sounds English. The firm was started in Boston in 1845 by a saddlemaker from England. If I leave, the name Pamela Ashley will provide continuity.")

TO BEGIN with, a woman should choose a soft-sided piece of luggage because "it's lightweight and expands. The added weight comes when the sides of a suitcase are molded."

The 26-inch suitcase she used for demonstration was made of canvas and leather and had no compartments inside. "If you don't fill up the compartments, you're left with empty spaces and you should pack a suitcase as full as you can. The more you put in, the more protection the clothes have."

TRAVEL ADVISER Pamela Ashley tells women to put back half the clothes they think they will need for travel. She suggests soft-sided luggage because it's lighter and expands.

Now, go to the closet and take out everything you're convinced you'll need. "Then put half of it back. Fashionwise, it's best to work around one or two colors and to use lightweight clothes you can add layers to.

"In this suitcase, I have three skirts, one dress, two pairs of slacks, four tops and an evening dress. All the separates mix and match.

"OF COURSE, you have to take into account the time you're spending, the distance and activities," she says. "If you're touring, you won't need as many clothes as you would at a resort."

Who's to know the outfit you wore this morning on the Champs Elysees is the same one you're wearing tonight — with different accessories — in Piccadilly Circus?

All right, you know generally what you're taking; here's how to take it.

Toiletries and bulky items get packed first, except for aerosol cans and cosmetics which you'll carry in a separate tote. "The air pressure on planes will cause the aerosol cans to expand and you don't want them to burst in the cargo area. Don't forget to transfer anything in glass bottles to platic bottles and fill them only three-fourth full."

PLACE THE heaviest items — a hair dryer, for instance — opposite the handle of the suitcase "so when you lift the suitcase, they don't fall down on your crushables.

"You're already wearing walking shoes, so pack a pair of sandals if you need them, sneakers and evening shoes. Put your nylons, socks and jewelry pouches inside the shoes and then put the shoes in shoe mittens or plastic bags so they're cushioned and won't dirty your clothes."

When you've completed that initial layer, making sure there are no spaces ("I always have a lot of little stuffers like underwear sets to keep shoes from sliding around"), you take a piece of cardboard which you've cut to size and lay that on top."

Why?

"Because at your hotel, instead of unpacking everything to get to your toiletries, you simply lift out the cardboard with the clothes."

HER STRATEGY for clothing is "fold and cushion." "The secret," she says, "is to have as few folds in your clothes as possible to prevent creases. You do this by protecting every fold with a rolled item: tissue paper, plastic bags, or all the garments you can roll such as scarves, sweaters, knits and jerseys."

She starts with the longest items first such as slacks and skirts. "I put one waistband against one side of the suitcase. Don't fold it; let the bottom hang out of the suitcase. I put the next waistband at the opposite side, letting the excess hang out and I go back and forth that way.

"On top, I put blouses and jackets. Incidentally, you fold a jacket inside out with the collar up and the sleeves flat against each other. Then you fold it in halves or thirds.

"Next, I take the rolled items and fill the spaces. When I have all the layers in, I just bring up the bottoms of the slacks and skirts and fold them across. There's no room for creases in them this way."

DON'T FORGET, she says, to pack a flat clutch for evening use, and a collapsible flight bag "to take all your presents home in."

Make a list of everything you're taking for future reference, a check against leaving things behind, and heaven forbid, "for your claim if the baggage is lost."

Finally, see to it that your business address is on the tag and not your home address. "You never know who's lurking in the airport to see which families are going away, leaving an empty house."

You see, if it's not totally empty when you leave, it just may be when you return.

SPLIT ENDS? We asked the leading hair stylists in Paris and New York what was the best way to "treat" split ends. In most cases the answers were the same: there is no real way to correct split ends. They advise to cut them off and then give the hair a special treatment and special care to avoid them (most important is LESS heat and more conditioning treatments). Now New York '76 G.J.L.

Her line: neckties for women

by ELLIE GROSSMAN

No, no, no. You twist the wide end around the narrow end, and then you pull the wide end through the loop . . .

Its a good thing Corinne Pulitzer, 29, is providing hang-tag instructions with her Pulitz-Her neckties for women.

Otherwise, how will the ladies down the block manage? And why should they?

"If you're wearing a skirt, a shirt and a vest, a tie just belongs there," says the shirt designer, a gay, self-tied bow-tie sprucing up her own three-piece suit.

"I always loved ties personally and a lot of my line, Pulitz-Her, is very personal, very traditional.

"My tie is shorter than a man's and the neckband fits easily under our shirt collar, but it will take time for women to adjust because a tie has never been given a feminine image."

"NO," SHE ADDS, anticipating the question, "it's not dikey or lesbianish to wear one."

Husband Bert says, "Only to women. Men love ties on women." He the president of the Bert Pulitzer Co., a menswear firm. Taller than his wife, he's still short, balding and easygoing.

Well, time will tell if women's ties will catch on outside the chic tennis and boating crowd the Pulitzers design for and belong to, especially since the Pulitz-Her ties will sell for $12.50 to $20.

Last year, Bert, 34, went back to college to get the degree he never got in business because "the people we socialize with all are Harvard and Dartmouth, and when they start talking, there are a lot of things I don't know about.

Then, too, I don't want to g oup and down in business the way my father and a lot of his generation did. I don't know if they were passed by by technology or what, but I don't want that to happen to me."

KNOWN AS A quality shirt and tie company, the family business started in 1941. At 19, Bert left college to take over when his father became ill. "In '68, I bought the company from him and four months later, Consolidated Foods bought it from me. I was 26 and it was hard to be a millionaire."

Not hard, though, to go through $262,000 in cash in one year, he says, smiling. "I bought a huge house, two boats, I spent a lot on clothing and I lost a lot loaning money to people."

Pulitz-Her is in its fourth season and came about as a result of some persistent nagging.

Corinne says, "When Ber tand I got married in 1974, we bought the company back from Consolidated Foods and I said, 'Why don't you do a ladies line?' "

AS SOON AS we're settled," he said. Then later, she asked again and he replied, "When we get everything going" and she said, "You'll never do it, I'm going to do it."

She did and it is a small, tailored line featuring, for fall, a three-piece corduroy suit for $185, trousers for $95-$125, and lots of classic, man-tailored shirts and sweaters, everything in fine, natural fabrics.

"We package our shirts with two extra buttons and there's double stitching on the cuffs and collars and 22 stitches per inch on the seams which is all the fabric can take," she explains.

Then there are the sexless items, the rugged sports garb both lines feature with great success.

THE CLOTHES are made from the doers' point of view because, Bert says, "we do almost every sport imaginable and any time there's a zipper or a pocket on our clothes, it's there for a reason, not as decoration."

Look at their $200 Enfield trousers, for instance.

The trousers have bicycle latches to hold up the cuffs; detachable legs so you can convert them into shorts; a detachable pocket to hold the pant legs; one knife pocket, two big cargo pockets and "a double seat so you can sit on wet rocks and not feel them."

No wonder it took them a year and a half to find a manufacturer to produce them.

IF CORRINE is less relaxed than her husband, it's understandable. He's seasoned; she's just coming into her own, against some stiff conditions, at that.

"When we'd go to our factory," Bert says, "people would talk only to me. She was just the boss' wife and they'd call her Mrs. Pulitzer."

And they probably recalled that the former high school teacher began her affiliation with the Pulitzer company as a receptionist one summer, to see how she'd like the business.

"I always wanted to design, but I'm a Cancer and Cancers need time to make decisions."

SOON, SHE WAS dating the boss, however, and eventually snagged him and her own clothing line.

She looks like a teen-ager, which must work against her, too, but she's feisty.

"She was trying to convince one of our New York outlets to put in her line," Bert recalls, chuckling, "and he finally went into my office to get away." Still, she won. Pulitz-Her will appear in that account's Christmas catalogue, as it will in Lord & Taylor's, as it does, with Bert's line, in better department and specialty stores around the country.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

PINSTRIPE cotton shirt features new Brookwood collar to fit Pulitz-Her four-in-hand silk tie, designed by Corinne Pulitzer for new fall look.

CAMPING pant is most unusual. Designed by Enfield, it zips off at the thigh to become shorts and has all kinds of storage pockets when worn as pant, plus bicycle clips.

Her line: neckties for women

by ELLIE GROSSMAN

No, no, no. You twist the wide end around the narrow end, and then you pull the wide end through the loop . . .

Its a good thing Corinne Pulitzer, 29, is providing hang-tag instructions with her Pulitz-Her neckties for women.

Otherwise, how will the ladies down the block manage? And why should they?

"If you're wearing a skirt, a shirt and a vest, a tie just belongs there," says the shirt designer, a gay, self-tied bow-tie sprucing up her own three-piece suit.

"I always loved ties personally and a lot of my line, Pulitz-Her, is very personal, very traditional.

"My tie is shorter than a man's and the neckband fits easily under our shirt collar, but it will take time for women to adjust because a tie has never been given a feminine image."

"NO," SHE ADDS, anticipating the question, "it's not dikey or lesbianish to wear one."

Husband Bert says, "Only to women. Men love ties on women." He the president of the Bert Pulitzer Co., a menswear firm. Taller than his wife, he's still short, balding and easygoing.

Well, time will tell if women's ties will catch on outside the chic tennis and boating crowd the Pulitzers design for and belong to, especially since the Pulitz-Her ties will sell for $12.50 to $20.

Last year, Bert, 34, went back to college to get the degree he never got in business because "the people we socialize with all are Harvard and Dartmouth, and when they start talking, there are a lot of things I don't know about.

Then, too, I don't want to g oup and down in business the way my father and a lot of his generation did. I don't know if they were passed by by technology or what, but I don't want that to happen to me."

KNOWN AS A quality shirt and tie company, the family business started in 1941. At 19, Bert left college to take over when his father became ill. "In '68, I bought the company from him and four months later, Consolidated Foods bought it from me. I was 26 and it was hard to be a millionaire."

Not hard, though, to go through $262,000 in cash in one year, he says, smiling. "I bought a huge house, two boats, I spent a lot on clothing and I lost a lot loaning money to people."

Pulitz-Her is in its fourth season and came about as a result of some persistent nagging.

Corinne says, "When Ber tand I got married in 1974, we bought the company back from Consolidated Foods and I said, 'Why don't you do a ladies line?' "

AS SOON AS we're settled," he said. Then later, she asked again and he replied, "When we get everything going" and she said, "You'll never do it, I'm going to do it."

She did and it is a small, tailored line featuring, for fall, a three-piece corduroy suit for $185, trousers for $95-$125, and lots of classic, man-tailored shirts and sweaters, everything in fine, natural fabrics.

"We package our shirts with two extra buttons and there's double stitching on the cuffs and collars and 22 stitches per inch on the seams which is all the fabric can take," she explains.

Then there are the sexless items, the rugged sports garb both lines feature with great success.

THE CLOTHES are made from the doers' point of view because, Bert says, "we do almost every sport imaginable and any time there's a zipper or a pocket on our clothes, it's there for a reason, not as decoration."

Look at their $200 Enfield trousers, for instance.

The trousers have bicycle latches to hold up the cuffs; detachable legs so you can convert them into shorts; a detachable pocket to hold the pant legs; one knife pocket, two big cargo pockets and "a double seat so you can sit on wet rocks and not feel them."

No wonder it took them a year and a half to find a manufacturer to produce them.

IF CORRINE is less relaxed than her husband, it's understandable. He's seasoned; she's just coming into her own, against some stiff conditions, at that.

"When we'd go to our factory," Bert says, "people would talk only to me. She was just the boss' wife and they'd call her Mrs. Pulitzer."

And they probably recalled that the former high school teacher began her affiliation with the Pulitzer company as a receptionist one summer, to see how she'd like the business.

"I always wanted to design, but I'm a Cancer and Cancers need time to make decisions."

SOON, SHE WAS dating the boss, however, and eventually snagged him and her own clothing line.

She looks like a teen-ager, which must work against her, too, but she's feisty.

"She was trying to convince one of our New York outlets to put in her line," Bert recalls, chuckling, "and he finally went into my office to get away." Still, she won. Pulitz-Her will appear in that account's Christmas catalogue, as it will in Lord & Taylor's, as it does, with Bert's line, in better department and specialty stores around the country.

PINSTRIPE cotton shirt features new Brookwood collar to fit Pulitz-Her four-in-hand silk tie, designed by Corinne Pulitzer for new fall look.

CAMPING pant is most unusual. Designed by Enfield, it zips off at the thigh to become shorts and has all kinds of storage pockets when worn as pant, plus bicycle clips.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Gaining lost weight is familiar story

About three years ago I went to a diet workshop and lost 21 pounds, from 147 to 126 pounds. Two years ago I had my gall bladder removed and I lost another five pounds which brought me down to 121 pounds.

I felt terrific. In two years I've gained about 10 pounds and I'm very uncomfortable. I've tried to lose it, but I've been unsuccessful. Could you please give me some advice as to what I should eat to lose this excess weight?

By the way I'm a 36-year-old female and 5 feet 2. Please try to answer soon before I gain another 10 pounds.

Your story is familiar. Most people who go on a special weight losing diet regain most of the weight because they really didn't modify their living habits. I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, which will give a basic 1200 calories in a balanced diet that you can use for dietary control. You can add the foods you want to increase your calorie intake further if your weight control program will permit it.

I don't like for people to eat fewer than 1200 calories a day unless they do so under a doctor's supervision. You can be on a grossly inadequate diet if you try it alone.

The foods you should avoid are those that provide essentially calories and little else and lots of calories with a minimal amount of bulk. These foods are the fats on meats, in cooking oils and elsewhere. The other such foods are the concentrated sweets and starches. You can eat lots of vegetables, a reasonable amount of raw fruits, a limited amount of bread, fortified skim milk and lean meats, fish and chicken.

The basic diet plan I am sending you shows you how to do this and still have a a balanced diet. Try to use the diet to build a permanent eating program for yourself. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Meanwhile, also start increasing your physical activity. A daily walk will help. Swim and do other activities if you can.

I just found out I have a thyroid nodule. I am anxious to know if it ever leads to an operation.

It depends a great deal on what you mean. If you just have some general enlargement of your thyroid or if you have a simple goiter it may not require surgery. But if you really mean an isolated distinct nodule in the thyroid gland then there is only one way a doctor can be sure of what it is — look at part of it under a microscope.

That is sometimes done with a needle biopsy but more often it is done by surgical removal of the nodule and nearby thyroid tissue. In that case the person may need to take a thyroid replacement thereafter.

The doctor can tell a lot about a thyroid nodule using modern radioisotope techniques, but none of these provide absolute information regarding whether the nodule is benign or malignant. The needle biopsy may miss the important area that shows changes. The end result is that most nodules must be looked at under the microscope.

You may be interested to know that about one in 50 adults develops a thyroid nodule.

Sprays corner fleas better than stalks

Dear Dorothy: Our dog has evidently carried fleas into our home. Short of getting an exterminator, is there any way to get rid of these pests? A friend suggested laying banana stalks around. The vet suggested using the commercial flea spray. We worry about spraying since we have two small children. And what might a spray do to the furniture, woodwork, carpets and so on? — Mrs. B. Barnett

As a rule, it helps to keep a collar on a house pet. But anyway, once fleas get into a house you have to resort to the regular sprays. Do it when the children are out of the house. The residual effect will do the job.

Proper spraying should do no damage to furniture or carpets. You'd have a time finding banana stalks because it's been years since bananas were shipped that way. One treatment is to spread walnut tree branches around. Another is to dip cotton balls in oil of eucalyptus and hang them under furniture, beds and so on.

Dear Dorothy: I've gotten some scratches on a new pair of patent leather shoes. How do I cover these scratches — and how, generally, is this type of leather cared for? — Michael J. Steklac

Get a good, high-grade paste shoe polish. Rub it on the scratches, count to 10, then rub off the polish. You shouldn't be able to see the scratches. To keep patents in good shape wipe them occasionally with petroleum jelly, then wipe off completely. The lanolin in the jelly nourishes and keeps the leather soft.

Dear Dorothy: Thanks to reading your tips on baking squash, I've become an addict — and the family has learned to love it. Usually, I just use brown sugar and butter in serving it. Once in a while, I add a little orange juice. Marvelous. — Patricia Kohler

SCORING STOMP. Conant halfback Tony Stompanato wings his way toward the left sidelines while launching a 40-yard scoring scamper at Buffalo Grove Saturday. Moving over to help pave the way is teammate Jim Heisen (70). The Bison still came away a 33-25 winner in the season-opening contest.

Sox sweep pair

Monroe starts against Royals

Larry Monroe, the 20-year-old Forest View High School product who has been used strictly in relief with the Chicago White Sox, receives his first major league start today. And it's a very big one.

Monroe (0-0) will get the starting call at 1:15 when the White Sox clash with the Kansas City Royals. Andy Hassler will pitch for the Royals.

The contest obviously assumes major significance because Kansas City is battling to maintain its lead over Oakland in the American League West. Oakland was rained out Monday night in Minnesota while the Royals lost two in Chicago. Kansas City holds a lead of only four games.

Jim Spencer slammed a three-run homer off relief pitcher Steve Mingori in the eighth inning for the clinching blow in a 5-4 nightcap. Hits by Jim Essian and Alan Bannister preceded the clutch shot by Spencer.

Lefty Ken Brett went the distance for the White Sox and pitched another strong game, nailing his brother George on an infield grounder for the final out. George had two hits off his brother.

Lamar Johnson smashed a long home run for another White Sox run.

Spencer and Jorge Orta singled to open the eighth and advanced on Johnson's sacrifice. Bill Stein was walked intentionally before Bell flied to short left to drive home Spencer.

Knapp struck out 11 batters in picking up his third victory. Orta hit his 14th homer after a double by Ralph Garr in the third inning and Brian Downing scored the White Sox' third run on a passed ball in the seventh.

Problems

Financial headaches hit Brooks Robinson

by MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Brooks Robinson has the best pair of hands in baseball. They're so good, they've earned him 16 straight "Gold Glove" Awards and nearly $2 million, yet they've also fumbled away all his finances.

Practically all, anyway.

"Ha, ha, your father is going to the poor house!" a neighborhood kid teased his eight-year-old daughter, Diana, the other day.

She ran home to her father.

"Daddy, they aren't going to take our house away, are they?" she asked, fighting to hold back tears.

"Of course not," he reassured her.

Three weeks ago, a circuit court judge ordered Brooks Robinson's home in Lutherville, Md., auctioned off following a mortgage foreclosure suit brought by a York, Pa. bank. The bank charged the Baltimore Orioles' popular third baseman hadn't paid back a $249,585 loan.

Brooks Robinson had obtained the loan for a sporting goods business he operates with two other partners in Timonium, Md. The loan was to have been paid back by April 13, but it wasn't. Robinson challenged the bank's figure. The bank subsequently said he owed only $196,256, but the judge's order to auction his home still stood. Also due to be auctioned was the home of one of his business partners.

Brooks Robinson has a wife and four kids. He's 39 and hasn't been playing much lately for the Orioles. With a .200 batting average and only 10 RBI's he hardly needed another problem.

But he wasn't going to stand by and do nothing, so one day this week, he went to the bank, withdrew his life savings and repaid practically the entire loan.

In so doing, Brooks Robinson made sure he wouldn't lose his home. Neither will his partner now. The loan to Brooks Robinson's Sporting Goods business was made out in Robinson's name and, by repaying it, he saved two homes.

"Poor Brooks," says his wife, Connie. "Now we all know why he hasn't been able to play ball the past two years. I told him he worked 22 years playing ball, saving his money, and now he has to start all over again. If he lives 500 years, he'll never get back all that he put into his business."

Some ballplayers run around, some drink, some like to live big. Brooks never did any of these things. When news of his financial distress came to light, everybody's reaction was "How could it possibly happen to somebody like upstanding, clean-living Brooks Robinson, baseball's All-American Boy?

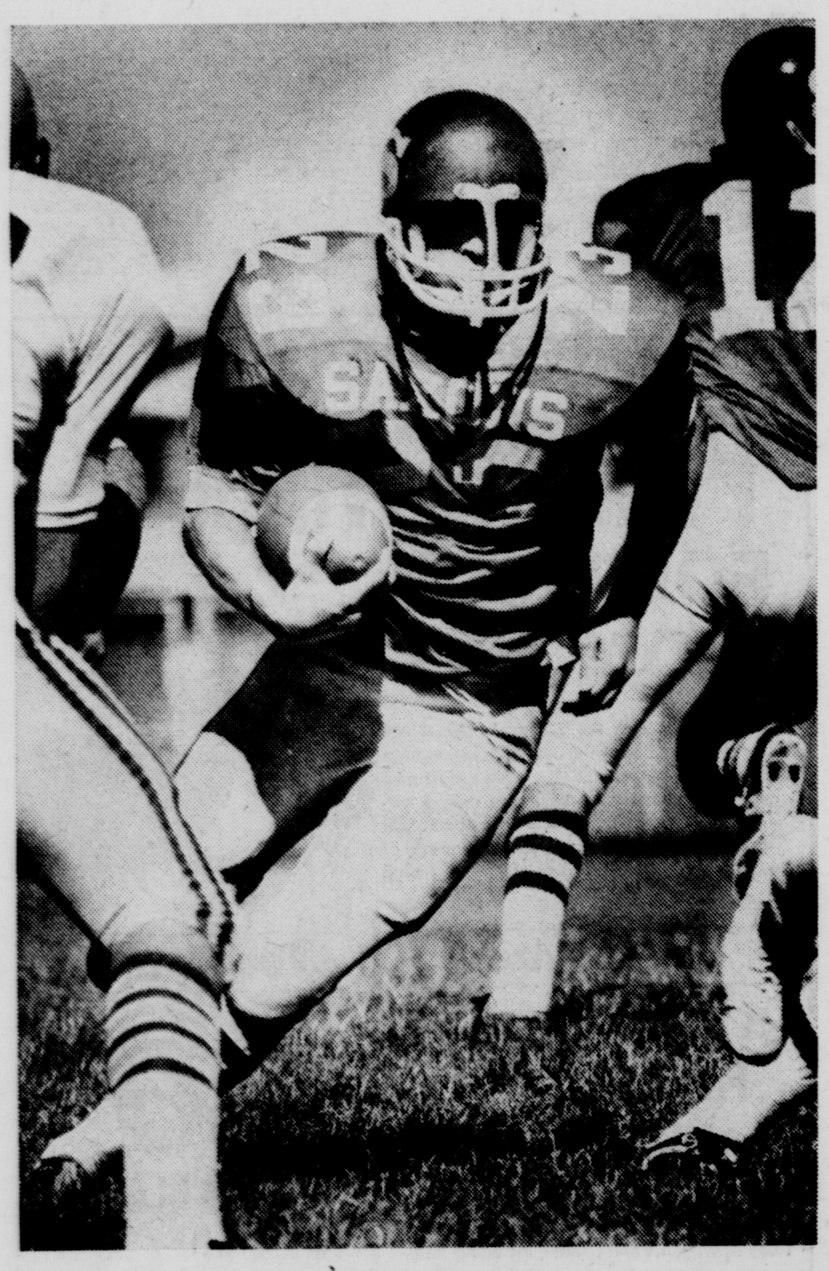
"You just don't know how something like that happens," his wife says. "Brooks couldn't be at his sporting goods business all the time because he had to play ball. You have to put your trust and confidence in someone else in a case like that, and suddenly you're told all the money is gone. Brooks isn't down or depressed at all though. He must keep everything inside him. He's unreal. He looks at me every five minutes and says 'are you all right?' I tell him, yes, until I start thinking about what happened."

Babe Ruth, Lefty Grove and John McGraw all played in Baltimore, but none was more popular than Brooks Robinson. As soon as people in Baltimore learned of his plight, his telephone never stopped ringing.

"They were absolutely incredible," says Connie. "They called up and offered him as much as $5,000 and $10,000 to help him out. They didn't want to lend him the money; they wanted to GIVE it to him. They hated to see Brooks in a mess. But you know Brooks. He wouldn't take a penny. He's such a proud person. This whole thing is a shame. He didn't do anything dishonest or illegal, he only made a bad investment. He was saving that money for his retirement, but now I laugh and tell him he's going to have to take a job and work triple shifts. He's optimistic though. He has his health, he thinks his sporting goods business will be all right now and he'd like to keep playing ball. He certainly doesn't want to retire. With all this off his mind, he's bound to do better."

Soon, Hank Peters, the Orioles' executive vice president and general manager, will sit down with Robinson and the two will talk about Brooks' future.

"He thinks he can play," says Peters, without saying whether he agrees or not. "We've brought Doug DeCinces along this year and he has done an outstanding job. It's hard to know where you could play a Brooks Robinson. We would like to have him with the club, and we want to explore other areas."



STEVE KNUDSON of Schaumburg could have driven a truck through this hole sideways, but all he needed to do was advance himself and the ball past the Fremd defenders. Knudson gained 138 yards in 25 carries Saturday as Schaumburg beat Fremd 14-0 in the season opener.

Illinois puts the rush on Prospect grad Matter

Loren Tate

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Don't call Brian Diedrich and Albert Young second-teamers.

They're "special teams regulars" and they provided the impetus for Illinois' 24-6 opening victory Saturday. Two of Illinois' three touchdowns against Iowa — discounting two earlier TDs which were nullified because of penalties — came as a direct result of consecutive blocked punts in the second quarter.

Diedrich, a Glenbard West senior who would be the Big Ten's special teams all-star if such awards were given, opened the gates with little more than five minutes left in the half. The 215-pound center stormed up the middle as Iowa's Dan Matter, a Prospect High grad who had a banner kicking season in 1975, juggled the long snap, catching the boot flush in the face mask. The impact snapped his chin strap. Illinois took over on the 11 and scored in three plays.

Little more than a minute later, with the Hawkeyes bunching in to cut off Illinois' nine-man rush, Pennsylvanian Young broke free on the right side and smothered Matter again. The tall sophomore, who started six games last season for injured defensive end Dean March, batted the ball all the way back to the seven.

Illinois capitalized again on Kurt Steger's fourth-down pass of six yards to Jeff Stewart of Elk Grove Village, and the 17-0 halftime spread settled the issue.

Matter hadn't had a punt blocked in 56 kicks a year ago, but these weren't accidents according to tri-captain March.

"Coach (Dave) Adolph has been working on this every night, and those guys block about three night in practice. The work paid off. They won the game for us."

Statistics bear out the importance of perfecting all phases of the kicking game. Records show that roughly one out of every six plays is a kick of some kind. This percentage was borne out Saturday as the two teams rushed 97 times, passed 34 and kicked 24. Thus, 24 of 155 plays were boots, or approximately one-sixth.

The two blocks were the equivalent of 60-yard marches, and served to offset a generally unimpressive Illini offensive showing.

As is often typical of an opener, the timing was off and small mistakes became glaring against the gambling, stunting Hawkeye defense. The visitors consistently guessed right on Illini third down bids.

Then too, customarily sure-handed receivers Frank Johnson, Eric Rouse and Marty Friel (Hersey) dropped bullseye passes, leaving junior quarterback Kurt Steger a disappointing 5-for-13.

Nor did the runners appear sharp until late in the third quarter when first Chubby Phillips and then James Coleman began to scratch for extra yardage.

Illinois' most impressive surges came in the final stanza when Phillips dashed around end for a nine-yard TD and Colmean exploded for a non-scoring 41-yarder. Prior to that, the hosts put the ball in play 47 times in three quarters with just three plays netting more than seven yards: a 15-yard run by Phillips, a 10-yard burst by fullback Larry Schulz and an 11-yard pass to Rouse, all in the scoreless

from Herald Wire Services

ST. LOUIS — Vic Harris hit a two-run single in the sixth inning Monday night pacing the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-3 victory over the Cubs as Bob Forsch pitched his first complete game of the season.

Forsch, 6-10, allowed 11 hits, walking one and striking out five, as he broke a season-long hex and finished his first game since Sept. 26, 1975. He also doubled home the eventual winning run in the eighth inning.

Keith Hernandez and Ted Simmons singled to open the sixth and starter and loser Bill Bonham loaded the bases with a walk to Willie Crawford. Hernandez and Simmons scored on Harris' single but Crawford was thrown out at third. Don Kessinger singled, knocking out Bonham, and reliever Paul Reuschel reloaded the bases with a walk before ending the rally by getting Forsch to hit into a double play.

Cubs outfielder Jose Cardenal will be sidelined for the remaining two weeks of the season due to an injury sustained Saturday in a game at Philadelphia's Veterans Stadium, the club announced Monday.

Team physician Dr. Jacob Suker said Cardenal suffered a severe sprain of the medical collateral ligament of his left knee during a pickoff play at first base. His left leg has been placed in a plastic cast, Suker said, and would be reexamined in two weeks.

Sox sweep pair

Monroe starts against Royals

Larry Monroe, the 20-year-old Forest View High School product who has been used strictly in relief with the Chicago White Sox, receives his first major league start today. And it's a very big one.

Monroe (0-0) will get the starting call at 1:15 when the White Sox clash with the Kansas City Royals. Andy Hassler will pitch for the Royals.

The contest obviously assumes major significance because Kansas City is battling to maintain its lead over Oakland in the American League West. Oakland was rained out Monday night in Minnesota while the Royals lost two in Chicago. Kansas City holds a lead of only four games.

Jim Spencer slammed a three-run homer off relief pitcher Steve Mingori in the eighth inning for the clinching blow in a 5-4 nightcap. Hits by Jim Essian and Alan Bannister preceded the clutch shot by Spencer.

Lefty Ken Brett went the distance for the White Sox and pitched another strong game, nailing his brother George on an infield grounder for the final out. George had two hits off his brother.

Lamar Johnson smashed a long home run for another White Sox run.

Spencer and Jorge Orta singled to open the eighth and advanced on Johnson's sacrifice. Bill Stein was walked intentionally before Bell flied to short left to drive home Spencer.

Knapp struck out 11 batters in picking up his third victory. Orta hit his 14th homer after a double by Ralph Garr in the third inning and Brian Downing scored the White Sox' third run on a passed ball in the seventh.

Opportunity knocks

STEVE KNUDSON of Schaumburg could have driven a truck through this hole sideways, but all he needed to do was advance himself and the ball past the Fremd defenders. Knudson gained 138 yards in 25 carries Saturday as Schaumburg beat Fremd 14-0 in the season opener.

Problems

Financial headaches hit Brooks Robinson

by MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Brooks Robinson has the best pair of hands in baseball. They're so good, they've earned him 16 straight "Gold Glove" Awards and nearly $2 million, yet they've also fumbled away all his finances.

Practically all, anyway.

"Ha, ha, your father is going to the poor house!" a neighborhood kid teased his eight-year-old daughter, Diana, the other day.

She ran home to her father.

"Daddy, they aren't going to take our house away, are they?" she asked, fighting to hold back tears.

"Of course not," he reassured her.

Three weeks ago, a circuit court judge ordered Brooks Robinson's home in Lutherville, Md., auctioned off following a mortgage foreclosure suit brought by a York, Pa. bank. The bank charged the Baltimore Orioles' popular third baseman hadn't paid back a $249,585 loan.

Brooks Robinson had obtained the loan for a sporting goods business he operates with two other partners in Timonium, Md. The loan was to have been paid back by April 13, but it wasn't. Robinson challenged the bank's figure. The bank subsequently said he owed only $196,256, but the judge's order to auction his home still stood. Also due to be auctioned was the home of one of his business partners.

Brooks Robinson has a wife and four kids. He's 39 and hasn't been playing much lately for the Orioles. With a .200 batting average and only 10 RBI's he hardly needed another problem.

But he wasn't going to stand by and do nothing, so one day this week, he went to the bank, withdrew his life savings and repaid practically the entire loan.

In so doing, Brooks Robinson made sure he wouldn't lose his home. Neither will his partner now. The loan to Brooks Robinson's Sporting Goods business was made out in Robinson's name and, by repaying it, he saved two homes.

"Poor Brooks," says his wife, Connie. "Now we all know why he hasn't been able to play ball the past two years. I told him he worked 22 years playing ball, saving his money, and now he has to start all over again. If he lives 500 years, he'll never get back all that he put into his business."

Some ballplayers run around, some drink, some like to live big. Brooks never did any of these things. When news of his financial distress came to light, everybody's reaction was "How could it possibly happen to somebody like upstanding, clean-living Brooks Robinson, baseball's All-American Boy?

"You just don't know how something like that happens," his wife says. "Brooks couldn't be at his sporting goods business all the time because he had to play ball. You have to put your trust and confidence in someone else in a case like that, and suddenly you're told all the money is gone. Brooks isn't down or depressed at all though. He must keep everything inside him. He's unreal. He looks at me every five minutes and says 'are you all right?' I tell him, yes, until I start thinking about what happened."

Babe Ruth, Lefty Grove and John McGraw all played in Baltimore, but none was more popular than Brooks Robinson. As soon as people in Baltimore learned of his plight, his telephone never stopped ringing.

"They were absolutely incredible," says Connie. "They called up and offered him as much as $5,000 and $10,000 to help him out. They didn't want to lend him the money; they wanted to GIVE it to him. They hated to see Brooks in a mess. But you know Brooks. He wouldn't take a penny. He's such a proud person. This whole thing is a shame. He didn't do anything dishonest or illegal, he only made a bad investment. He was saving that money for his retirement, but now I laugh and tell him he's going to have to take a job and work triple shifts. He's optimistic though. He has his health, he thinks his sporting goods business will be all right now and he'd like to keep playing ball. He certainly doesn't want to retire. With all this off his mind, he's bound to do better."

Soon, Hank Peters, the Orioles' executive vice president and general manager, will sit down with Robinson and the two will talk about Brooks' future.

"He thinks he can play," says Peters, without saying whether he agrees or not. "We've brought Doug DeCinces along this year and he has done an outstanding job. It's hard to know where you could play a Brooks Robinson. We would like to have him with the club, and we want to explore other areas."

Illinois puts the rush on Prospect grad Matter

Loren Tate

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Don't call Brian Diedrich and Albert Young second-teamers.

They're "special teams regulars" and they provided the impetus for Illinois' 24-6 opening victory Saturday. Two of Illinois' three touchdowns against Iowa — discounting two earlier TDs which were nullfied because of penalties — came as a direct result of consecutive blocked punts in the second quarter.

Diedrich, a Glenbard West senior who would be the Big Ten's special teams all-star if such awards were given, opened the gates with little more than five minutes left in the half. The 215-pound center stormed up the middle as Iowa's Dan Matter, a Prospect High grad who had a banner kicking season in 1975, juggled the long snap, catching the boot flush in the face mask. The impact snapped his chin strap. Illinois took over on the 11 and scored in three plays.

Little more than a minute later, with the Hawkeyes bunching in to cut off Illinois' nine-man rush, Pennsylvanian Young broke free on the right side and smothered Matter again. The tall sophomore, who started six games last season for injured defensive end Dean March, batted the ball all the way back to the seven.

Illinois capitalized again on Kurt Steger's fourth-down pass of six yards to Jeff Stewart of Elk Grove Village, and the 17-0 halftime spread settled the issue.

Matter hadn't had a punt blocked in 56 kicks a year ago, but these weren't accidents according to tri-captain March.

"Coach (Dave) Adolph has been working on this every night, and those guys block about three night in practice. The work paid off. They won the game for us."

Statistics bear out the importance of perfecting all phases of the kicking game. Records show that roughly one out of every six plays is a kick of some kind. This percentage was borne out Saturday as the two teams rushed 97 times, passed 34 and kicked 24. Thus, 24 of 155 plays were boots, or approximately one-sixth.

The two blocks were the equivalent of 60-yard marches, and served to offset a generally unimpressive Illini offensive showing.

As is often typical of an opener, the timing was off and small mistakes became glaring against the gambling, stunting Hawkeye defense. The visitors consistently guessed right on Illini third down bids.

Then too, customarily sure-handed receivers Frank Johnson, Eric Rouse and Marty Friel (Hersey) dropped bullseye passes, leaving junior quarterback Kurt Steger a disappointing 5-for-13.

Nor did the runners appear sharp until late in the third quarter when first Chubby Phillips and then James Coleman began to scratch for extra yardage.

Illinois' most impressive surges came in the final stanza when Phillips dashed around end for a nine-yard TD and Colmean exploded for a non-scoring 41-yarder. Prior to that, the hosts put the ball in play 47 times in three quarters with just three plays netting more than seven yards: a 15-yard run by Phillips, a 10-yard burst by fullback Larry Schulz and an 11-yard pass to Rouse, all in the scoreless

from Herald Wire Services

ST. LOUIS — Vic Harris hit a two-run single in the sixth inning Monday night pacing the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-3 victory over the Cubs as Bob Forsch pitched his first complete game of the season.

Forsch, 6-10, allowed 11 hits, walking one and striking out five, as he broke a season-long hex and finished his first game since Sept. 26, 1975. He also doubled home the eventual winning run in the eighth inning.

Keith Hernandez and Ted Simmons singled to open the sixth and starter and loser Bill Bonham loaded the bases with a walk to Willie Crawford. Hernandez and Simmons scored on Harris' single but Crawford was thrown out at third. Don Kessinger singled, knocking out Bonham, and reliever Paul Reuschel reloaded the bases with a walk before ending the rally by getting Forsch to hit into a double play.

Cubs outfielder Jose Cardenal will be sidelined for the remaining two weeks of the season due to an injury sustained Saturday in a game at Philadelphia's Veterans Stadium, the club announced Monday.

Butkus settlement reaches $600,000

Dick Butkus, former star middle linebacker for the Chicago Bears, Monday accepted a $600,000 out of court settlement of his $1.6 million damage suit against the team.

The settlement was agreed upon hours before his suit against the Bears and team physician Theodore Fox was to go to trial in circuit court. The suit charged that Butkus was forced to play football from 1966 to 1973 with a knee injury which caused irreparable damage and ended his playing career.

He also sought damages for breach of contract, charging the Bears refused to honor the final four years of a five year contract after his last knee injury in November, 1973.

Butkus, who has moved his home from the Chicago area to Florida, has been working as a TV color commentator on football programs and has played several dramatic roles in TV and films.

He was a linebacking star at Illinois before he became one of the Bears top draft picks at the end of his college career and was an all pro linebacker in the National Football League until he was injured.

Mets stop Pirates, 5-0; Phillies lead by 5 games

Tom Seaver pitched a five-hitter and Felix Millan's two-run single keyed a five-run seventh inning rally Monday night to lead the New York Mets to a 5-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in Pittsburgh.

Seaver struck out 12 as he picked up his 13th win against 10 losses and dropped the Pirates five games behind the Philadelphia Phillies in the National League East.

Mike Schmidt drove in four runs with a pair of home runs as the Phillies defeated the Montreal Expos 7-2 in Philadelphia.

Schmidt's home runs, his 34th and 35th of the year, moved him into the National League lead and enabled Steve Carlton to pick up his 17th victory against six defeats.

The Mets, who have won six of their last seven games, will send Craig Swan (5-8) against the Pirates and Jim Rooker (13-7) tonight. Philadelphia's Jim Lonborg (15-9) faces Montreal's Don Carrithers (6-12).

Orr scores two; Team Canada wins

TORONTO — Bobby Orr scored his first two goals in nearly a year Monday night to lead Team Canada to a 6-0 victory over Czechoslovakia in the first game of the best-of-three Canada Cup finals.

Orr last scored as a member of the Boston Bruins on Nov. 26, 1975, against the New York Rangers, his last NHL game before undergoing knee surgery for the fifth time. The 28-year old defenseman, now a member of the Chicago Black Hawks, netted a 25-foot power-play goal at 13:34 of the first period to boost Canada's lead to 3-0.

Orr's second goal was also on a Canada power play and came from the blue line at 11:31 of the final period.

Canada Cup netminder Rogie Vachon fashioned his second tournament shutout, but was barely tested as the Canada defense bottled up the Czech forwards time and again.

O. J. is back but Miami triumphs

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Bob Griese threw a 30-yard scoring pass to wide receiver Nat Moore early in the third quarter and Garo Yepremian kicked three field goals to give the Miami Dolphins a 30-21 victory Monday night over the Buffalo Bills in the nationally-televised season opener for both clubs.

The Bills, buoyed by the return of premier running back O. J. Simpson, tied the powerful Dolphins twice at 7-7 and 14-14 in the first half, but a late second-quarter field goal by Yepremian and Griese's touchdown pass to Moore at 1:03 of the third quarter gave the Dolphins a 24-14 lead. The Bills closed to 27-21, but a field goal helped settle the issue.

Simpson saw more action in the game than expected, largely because of a knee injury to fullback Jim Braxton that took him out of the game.

Simpson, who rejoined the Bills late Sunday, gained 28 yards in five rushing attempts and electrified the near-sellout crowd of 78,321 with a 43-yard pass play late in the game.

'Criminal element' in NFL today?

PITTSBURGH — An infuriated Chuck Noll, head coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers, accused the Oakland Raiders' defensive secondary of trying to maim Lynn Swann and other Steeler wide receivers, adding there was apparently a "criminal element" within the National Football League.

Noll alleged there was a pattern of illegal hitting by members of the Oakland defensive secondary against Swann, in particular, that continued Sunday in the Raiders' 31-28 victory.

Swann suffered a concussion when he was struck in the head from behind illegally, according to Noll.

He suffered a similar injury in the American Conference title game against Oakland in January when his head was slammed into the frozen artificial turf at Three Rivers Stadium.

"I think people like that should be kicked out of football," Noll said.

Bulls acquire 'Jerry Sloan type'

Chicago Bulls Coach Ed Badger Monday announced the acquisition of second-year guard Tom Kropp from the Washington Bullets in exchange for future consideration.

Kropp, 6-foot-3, 205 pounds, the Bullets' third draft pick in 1975, saw only 72 minutes of action in 25 games.

The 1971 "Nebraska athlete of the year" enjoyed a brilliant career as an NAIA all-American in both football and basketball at Kearney State, the Bulls said. He averaged 20.5 points and 11.1 rebounds in his four years at college.

Badger described Kropp as "a Jerry Sloan type who will run through a wall if you ask him."

Butkus settlement reaches $600,000

Dick Butkus, former star middle linebacker for the Chicago Bears, Monday accepted a $600,000 out of court settlement of his $1.6 million damage suit against the team.

The settlement was agreed upon hours before his suit against the Bears and team physician Theodore Fox was to go to trial in circuit court. The suit charged that Butkus was forced to play football from 1966 to 1973 with a knee injury which caused irreparable damage and ended his playing career.

He also sought damages for breach of contract, charging the Bears refused to honor the final four years of a five year contract after his last knee injury in November, 1973.

Butkus, who has moved his home from the Chicago area to Florida, has been working as a TV color commentator on football programs and has played several dramatic roles in TV and films.

He was a linebacking star at Illinois before he became one of the Bears top draft picks at the end of his college career and was an all pro linebacker in the National Football League until he was injured.

Mets stop Pirates, 5-0; Phillies lead by 5 games

Tom Seaver pitched a five-hitter and Felix Millan's two-run single keyed a five-run seventh inning rally Monday night to lead the New York Mets to a 5-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in Pittsburgh.

Seaver struck out 12 as he picked up his 13th win against 10 losses and dropped the Pirates five games behind the Philadelphia Phillies in the National League East.

Mike Schmidt drove in four runs with a pair of home runs as the Phillies defeated the Montreal Expos 7-2 in Philadelphia.

Schmidt's home runs, his 34th and 35th of the year, moved him into the National League lead and enabled Steve Carlton to pick up his 17th victory against six defeats.

The Mets, who have won six of their last seven games, will send Craig Swan (5-8) against the Pirates and Jim Rooker (13-7) tonight. Philadelphia's Jim Lonborg (15-9) faces Montreal's Don Carrithers (6-12).

Orr scores two; Team Canada wins

TORONTO — Bobby Orr scored his first two goals in nearly a year Monday night to lead Team Canada to a 6-0 victory over Czechoslovakia in the first game of the best-of-three Canada Cup finals.

Orr last scored as a member of the Boston Bruins on Nov. 26, 1975, against the New York Rangers, his last NHL game before undergoing knee surgery for the fifth time. The 28-year old defenseman, now a member of the Chicago Black Hawks, netted a 25-foot power-play goal at 13:34 of the first period to boost Canada's lead to 3-0.

Orr's second goal was also on a Canada power play and came from the blue line at 11:31 of the final period.

Canada Cup netminder Rogie Vachon fashioned his second tournament shutout, but was barely tested as the Canada defense bottled up the Czech forwards time and again.

O. J. is back but Miami triumphs

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Bob Griese threw a 30-yard scoring pass to wide receiver Nat Moore early in the third quarter and Garo Yepremian kicked three field goals to give the Miami Dolphins a 30-21 victory Monday night over the Buffalo Bills in the nationally-televised season opener for both clubs.

The Bills, buoyed by the return of premier running back O. J. Simpson, tied the powerful Dolphins twice at 7-7 and 14-14 in the first half, but a late second-quarter field goal by Yepremian and Griese's touchdown pass to Moore at 1:03 of the third quarter gave the Dolphins a 24-14 lead. The Bills closed to 27-21, but a field goal helped settle the issue.

Simpson saw more action in the game than expected, largely because of a knee injury to fullback Jim Braxton that took him out of the game.

Simpson, who rejoined the Bills late Sunday, gained 28 yards in five rushing attempts and electrified the near-sellout crowd of 78,321 with a 43-yard pass play late in the game.

'Criminal element' in NFL today?

PITTSBURGH — An infuriated Chuck Noll, head coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers, accused the Oakland Raiders' defensive secondary of trying to maim Lynn Swann and other Steeler wide receivers, adding there was apparently a "criminal element" within the National Football League.

Noll alleged there was a pattern of illegal hitting by members of the Oakland defensive secondary against Swann, in particular, that continued Sunday in the Raiders' 31-28 victory.

Swann suffered a concussion when he was struck in the head from behind illegally, according to Noll.

He suffered a similar injury in the American Conference title game against Oakland in January when his head was slammed into the frozen artificial turf at Three Rivers Stadium.

"I think people like that should be kicked out of football," Noll said.

Bulls acquire 'Jerry Sloan type'

Chicago Bulls Coach Ed Badger Monday announced the acquisition of second-year guard Tom Kropp from the Washington Bullets in exchange for future consideration.

Kropp, 6-foot-3, 205 pounds, the Bullets' third draft pick in 1975, saw only 72 minutes of action in 25 games.

The 1971 "Nebraska athlete of the year" enjoyed a brilliant career as an NAIA all-American in both football and basketball at Kearney State, the Bulls said. He averaged 20.5 points and 11.1 rebounds in his four years at college.

Badger described Kropp as "a Jerry Sloan type who will run through a wall if you ask him."

Other news in the sports world . . .

A Louisiana State linebacker who blocked a field goal to help the unranked Tigers tie No. 1 Nebraska last weekend was free under $5,000 bond Monday on charges he stabbed a fellow student after the game . . . Russell "Rusty" Domingue was accused of second-degree attempted murder in the stabbing of a 24-year-old LSU senior.

Ron Jaworski, the starting quarterback for the Los Angeles Rams in their season opener, will be lost to the team for about six weeks because of a broken shoulder suffered in the game . . . Wide receiver J.D. Hill, for whom the Detroit Lions gave the Buffalo Bills a first-round choice this summer, is scheduled to undergo knee surgery Tuesday to correct ligament damage suffered against the Bears.

The New England Patriots obtained veteran running back Jess Phillips on waivers Monday from the Oakland Raiders . . . Phillips is the 11th leading rusher among active National Football League backs.

Schaumburg Kings enter 7th season

The Schaumburg Hockey League, entering its seventh year of amateur hockey competition, has announced its plans for the 1976-77 hockey season.

The Kings will provide programs for pre-mites, mites, squirts, pee-wees, bantams, midgets, juniors and seniors. The program covers amateur hockey players from four years old through adult.

MITES THROUGH BANTAMS

Players between the ages of 7 and 15 will skate four times each week during the 25 week hockey season. The program consists of 20 individual skill clinics, 25 team practices, and competition in the Northern Illinois Hockey League and in the North-Suburban Hockey League. Additionally, players will skate in the annual AHAI state tournament.

The Schaumburg Hockey League will provide players with jerseys, stockings and helmets. Players are also provided with a comprehensive insurance program.

Clinic activities will be held at the Woodfield Ice-Arena in Woodfield Shopping Center. All other practices and game activities will be conducted at the Polar Dome in East Dundee.

The total program cost, including fund raising activities, will be $275 per player.

MITE "A," MIDGETS, JUNIORS

The Mite A program, designed for beginning skaters from 6 through 8 years old, and the midget and junior programs will be somewhat reduced programs.

For the younger playess, the program will consist of clinics, practices and participation in the North Suburban Hockey League. The cost of the program for the Mite A team will be $175 per player, including fund raising activities.

The midget and junior programs are compatible with high school hockey, and the teams will hit the ice approximately 40 times during the season, including competition in the Northern Illinois Hockey League. The cost per player for midgets and juniors is $175.

LI'L KINGS

The Li'l King program is especially for the beginning skater who is 4 through 6 years old. The program teaches players, and parents, the basics of hockey during thirteen weekly sessions. The Schaumburg Hockey League provides players with jerseys, an instructional manual, and insurance coverage. The cost per player for Li'l Kings is $55. All sessions will be conducted at the Woodfield Ice Arena.

FUND RAISING

The Schaumburg Hockey League will conduct a limited number of fund raising events during the year. Through participation in these events, players have the opportunity to totally defray their tuition fees.

Defensively the Illini lived up to expectations. Except for the 48-yard TD bomb from Iowa substitute Tom McLaughlin to Bill Schultz at the outset of the second half, the Illini were near-perfect. In 14 possessions, the Hawkeyes penetrated the Illini 40-yard line on just two other occasions and netted only nine first downs all day.

Tackle John DiFeliciantonio had three unassisted sacks and the ruggedness of UI linebackers Scott Studwell, John Sullivan and Mac McCracken forced Iowa into a generally ineffective passing game (5-for-18) after intermission.

It was, as coach Bob Blackman pointed out, "a game to build on"...a decisive victory but with a level of performance that will allow no one to become complacent about game No. 2 at touted Missouri.

In fact, improvevment is imperative if Illinois is to break its five-game losing streak to the Tigers.

Palatine girls swim to victory

Palatine kicked off the prep girls' swimming season over the weekend with a convincing 61-21 victory over neighboring rival Fremd.

The Saturday meet was the only competition of the weekend. The girls' schedule doesn't get into full swing until Sept. 21.

"The times were very slow. It was more or less just time trials for us," said Palatine head coach Karen Brookwell. "We haven't even begun to taper yet and I'm sure the times will drop as the season goes along."

Palatine took firsts in all events except the 100-yard butterfly, which was taken by Fremd. The next area girls' meet will be Saturday when Fremd will host Rolling Meadows at the St. Viator pool beginning at 9 a.m.

Elk Grove wins soccer opener

Elk Grove successfully opened its soccer program with a varsity and under-level sweep of host Rolling Meadows.

The Grenadier varsity earned a slim 1-0 triumph with a goal in the fourth minute of the first period. Tony Kees notched the score, assisted by Greg Wellman.

Elk Grove goalie Phil Willis was brilliant in earning the shutout. Willis turned aside 13 Meadows shots. Elk Grove also netted a shutout on the freshman-sophomore level, 6-0.

Ask Andy

Hummingbird lives on nectar diet

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Barbara and Lee Ulery, Costa Mesa, Calif., for their question:
DO HUMMINGBIRDS EAT ANYTHING BESIDES NECTAR?

A hummingbird is a miniature package of dynamic energy and endurance. If the bird world had Olympic Games, he would surely win countless gold medals. Beginning his active day at sunrise, he flits from blossom to blossom with wings beating as fast as 60 times a second. Darting through the air upward, downward, backward or forward, he visits hundreds of nectar-filled flowers each day.

The hummer has a long, slender bill especially suited for sipping nectar. His tongue, unlike any other animal's, curves upward and inward to form a tube. The forked ends form a double straw through which the sweet nourishment is sucked into his mouth.

Many times tiny insects within the petals will be sucked up along with the nectar. These mini-morsels give our hummer his much-needed protein, and he also may seize them with his flashing sticky tongue while he hovers, catch them on the wing or even steal them from spider webs.

Many of these jewels of the air weigh just a fraction of an ounce. Although his tiny body requires less food than a larger bird, he needs more nourishment in proportion to his size than any other creature. Beginning life as a bitsy fledgling about the size of your little fingernail, he is fed sweet nectar from his mother.

Hovering over her nest, beating her wings like a miniature helicopter, she uncoils her tongue to release a drop or two of the sweet liquid to her waiting chick below. She may make as many as 60 trips a day to feed her one or two featherless offspring. Usually the chicks are fully decked in feathers at three weeks. Then they begin to assert themselves in the world of bright flowers and juicy insects.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Brian Carswell, 12, of Ottawa, Ont., Canada, for his question:
HOW DOES THE WATER PURIFICATION PROCESS WORK?

Chances are, the water you drink comes out of the tap in your kitchen, or perhaps from a bottle of water you buy. No matter, one thing you can count on is that it not only tastes good, but it is safe. And this is very important.

Everyone wants water that is free from bacteria. And we certainly don't want to drink water with an objectionable taste or odor. The water in your home has gone through many processes to assure that it is just so. The treatment water gets depends on where it comes from, and different cities use varying methods to make sure the water is pure. Many cities first aerate the water. Then they add chemicals to make impurities lump together and sink to the bottom. The water is then allowed to sit in a settling tank before it is pumped through filters of sand and gravel. Finally, a disinfecting agent, usually chlorine, is added to the water to kill any remaining microorganisms. The thirst-quenching liquid makes its last trip to your home via a network of pipes.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Beginning his active day at sunrise, he flits from blossom to blossom with wings beating as fast as 60 times a second. Darting through the air upward, down ward, backward or forward, he visits hundreds of nectar-filled flowers each day.

The hummer has a long, slender bill especially suited for sipping nectar. His tongue, unlike any other animal's, curves upward and inward to form a tube. The forked ends form a double straw through which the sweet nourishment is sucked into his mouth.

Many times tiny insects within the petals will be sucked up along with the nectar. These mini-morsels give our hummer his much-needed protein, and he also may seize them with his flashing sticky tongue while he hovers, catch them on the wing or even steal them from spider webs.

Many of these jewels of the air weigh just a fraction of an ounce. Although his tiny body requires less food than a larger bird, he needs more nourishment in proportion to his size than any other creature. Beginning life as a bitsy fledgling about the size of your little fingernail, he is fed sweet nectar from his mother.

Hovering over her nest, beating her wings like a miniature helicopter, she uncoils her tongue to release a drop or two of the sweet liquid to her waiting chick below. She may make as many as 60 trips a day to feed her one or two featherless offspring. Usually the chicks are fully decked in feathers at three weeks. Then they begin to assert themselves in the world of bright flowers and juicy insects.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Brian Carswell, 12, of Ottawa, Ont., Canada, for his question:
HOW DOES THE WATER PURIFICATION PROCESS WORK?

Chances are, the water you drink comes out of the tap in your kitchen, or perhaps from a bottle of water you buy. No matter, one thing you can count on is that it not only tastes good, but it is safe. And this is very important.

Everyone wants water that is free from bacteria. And we certainly don't want to drink water with an objectionable taste or odor. The water in your home has gone through many processes to assure that it is just so. The treatment water gets depends on where it comes from, and different cities use varying methods to make sure the water is pure. Many cities first aerate the water. Then they add chemicals to make impurities lump together and sink to the bottom. The water is then allowed to sit in a settling tank before it is pumped through filters of sand and gravel. Finally, a disinfecting agent, usually chlorine, is added to the water to kill any remaining microorganisms. The thirst-quenching liquid makes its last trip to your home via a network of pipes.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

'Showboat' high on spirit despite flaws in staging

Mid-week review

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

One of community theater's biggest drawing cards is its enthusiasm. While acting and staging may not be of Broadway caliber, the spirit of the cast and its audience usually runs high.

There was plenty of enthusiasm at the opening night performance of "Showboat," Des Plaines Theater Guild's first offering of its 31st season. The orchestra had its weak spots, the props and scenery were somewhat skimpy, and the lines could have been delivered with a little less force. Nevertheless, the actors and chorus members were obviously having a ball, and the audience responded to their efforts with smiles and applause.

The DPTG made a good choice in its opening fare. According to the Guild, "what Broadway regards as running from relevant to irreverent, our Guild audience regards as running from tasteless to junk." But there's no need to worry about tastelessness with Oscar Hammerstein's and Jerome Kern's musical.

THE SHENANIGANS and heartthrobs of the Hawkes family and friends on the Cotton Blossom floating theater in the late 1920s brings in plenty of chuckles a few decades later, and the audience reaction proved that good clean fun is still a saleable commodity.

Two of the cast members are making their DPTG debut in "Showboat." Kathleen Lubinski, a Palatine High School graduate, boasts the strongest voice in the show as innocent Magnolia Hawkes, the piano-playing daughter who marries a slick riverboat gambler and goes on to make it as a singer in her own right.

Ron Nicholas, Arlington Heights, also puts in a strong performance in his first DPTG role as Captain Andy, the raucous Cotton Blossom director. Nicholas' earnest improvisations during an ill-fated fight scene in one of the Cotton Blossom's plays is particularly well-done. One has to wonder how many hours of practice he put into those punches and stage tumbles!

Also deserving kudos is Vince Bonata as Frank, the good-natured villain of the Cotton Blossom troupe. In addition to his diabolical moustache-twirling, Bonata does a credible hoofing job in the dance numbers.

DESPITE THE acting, "Showboat" suffers from a spotty musical accompaniment and minimal sets. The Mississippi mood might have been better projected with the addition of more props than a bale of cotton and a small table or two up front.

Even so, the grins were genuine and the chorus provided the cast members with a strong backup on the musical numbers.

"Showboat" is playing at the Guild playhouse on Lee Street in Des Plaines weekends through Sept. 26.

Paramedics to pilot test U.S. exam

Paramedics from the Northwest suburbs will help test a national examination that someday may be used to set uniform standards for the training and certifying of paramedics nationwide.

The test will be administered Wednesday and Thursday at Ingalls Memorial Hospital, Harvey, one of three sites in the nation selected to pilot test the proposed national exam.

A total of 200 Illinois-certified paramedics from programs at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights; Silver Cross Hospital, Joliet; and Ingalls will be tested on written and practical exams.

The test was developed by the University of Kansas and is sponsored by the National Registry of Emergency Medical Technicians. Presently, each state has its own requirements for training and certifying paramedics.

A national exam would make the standards uniform across the country.

Dr. Stanley Zydlo Jr., director of the mobile intensive care program based at Northwest Community, said the test would help ensure the competency of paramedics nationally.

In addition to Ingalls, the exam has been pilot tested at the University of Kansas and the University of Colorado Medical Center.

If the results of the Ingalls test are acceptable, the exam will be submitted to the National Registry of Emergency Medical Technicians for possible adoption as a national standard.

C&NW offers train-bus service to Bears' games

Chicago Bears football fans can ride to home games using the coordinated train-bus service operated by the Chicago and North Western Ry. and the Chicago Transit Authority.

Special CTA buses will carry riders from North Western's downtown station directly to Soldier Field. After the game, the buses will make the return trip to coordinate with outbound suburban trains.

The North Western will operate its regularly scheduled Sunday trains with additional double-deck coaches to accommodate extra riders. Trains will arrive downtown between 12:10 and 12:20 p.m.

Trains scheduled to depart from the North Western station between 4:30 and 4:40 p.m. after the games will be held until 4:45 p.m.

Signal for suit preference

Mike Lawrence has a really excellent discussion of the suit-preference signal in "Judgment at Bridge."

His first example is a good introduction. West opens his singleton heart against South's four-spade contract. East takes his ace and leads back the suit for West to ruff. If West proceeds to lead a diamond, East will take his ace and lead another heart. West will ruff and North and South will have justifiable complaints about bad luck.

The suit-preference signal makes it possible for East to tell West what to lead back. He leads his highest heart — the 10 spot. This calls for the higher of the two suits that West can lead. If East wanted a club return he would have led his lowest heart — the deuce. If West didn't care what was returned he would lead some sort of middle heart like the five.

This particular example shows this convention at its simplest and best. East doesn't want to do anything except to tell his partner which suit to lead and there is no way to confuse his partner.

Do you know about the home heating system that pulls energy out of thin air?

Introducing the heat pump.

Scientists have known for centuries that the air around us is a storehouse of heat energy. But it's only been in recent years that they were able to develop an efficient way to tap that abundant resource—the heat pump. Today, it is the only commercially available heating system that provides an answer to shrinking supplies of other fuels.

How the heat pump works:
Basically, the heat pump moves heat from one place to another. It uses electricity to extract heat from a limitless source—the heat in outdoor air. During winter, enough heat remains in the air—even on the coldest and cloudiest days—to be extracted by the pump and transferred indoors as clean, flameless heat.

And during warm weather, the process automatically reverses, removing excess indoor heat and humidity like an air conditioner.

Better efficiency.
In short, the heat pump does the job of both a furnace and an air conditioner. But there's an important difference. In northern Illinois the heat pump can produce more than 1½ units of heat energy for every unit it consumes. That's better efficiency than any other current heating system. That could mean significant long-term savings on heating costs.

To get the full advantages of the heat pump, it's important to get a quality product, properly installed and reliably serviced. For the name of qualified installers in your area, call G. W. Berkheimer Co. (Westinghouse Distributors), 312-374-4111; General Electric Co., 312-496-6356; Lennox Industries, Inc., 312-593-2820; or Temperature Equipment Corp. (Carrier Distributors), 312-681-6220. If you want additional heat pump information, call your local Commonwealth Edison office and talk to one of our marketing engineers.

'Showboat' high on spirit despite flaws in staging

Mid-week review

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

One of community theater's biggest drawing cards is its enthusiasm. While acting and staging may not be of Broadway caliber, the spirit of the cast and its audience usually runs high.

There was plenty of enthusiasm at the opening night performance of "Showboat," Des Plaines Theater Guild's first offering of its 31st season. The orchestra had its weak spots, the props and scenery were somewhat skimpy, and the lines could have been delivered with a little less force. Nevertheless, the actors and chorus members were obviously having a ball, and the audience responded to their efforts with smiles and applause.

The DPTG made a good choice in its opening fare. According to the Guild, "what Broadway regards as running from relevant to irreverent, our Guild audience regards as running from tasteless to junk." But there's no need to worry about tastelessness with Oscar Hammerstein's and Jerome Kern's musical.

THE SHENANIGANS and heart-throbs of the Hawkes family and friends on the Cotton Blossom floating theater in the late 1920s brings in plenty of chuckles a few decades later, and the audience reaction proved that good clean fun is still a saleable commodity.

Two of the cast members are making their DPTG debut in "Showboat." Kathleen Lubinski, a Palatine High School graduate, boasts the strongest voice in the show as innocent Magnolia Hawkes, the piano-playing daughter who marries a slick riverboat gambler and goes on to make it as a singer in her own right.

Ron Nicholas, Arlington Heights, also puts in a strong performance in his first DPTG role as Captain Andy, the raucous Cotton Blossom director. Nicholas' earnest improvisations during an ill-fated fight scene in one of the Cotton Blossom's plays is particularly well-done. One has to wonder how many hours of practice he put into those punches and stage tumbles!

Also deserving kudos is Vince Bonata as Frank, the good-natured villain of the Cotton Blossom troupe. In addition to his diabolical moustache-twirling, Bonata does a credible hoofing job in the dance numbers.

DESPITE THE acting, "Showboat" suffers from a spotty musical accompaniment and minimal sets. The Mississippi mood might have been better projected with the addition of more props than a bale of cotton and a small table or two up front.

Even so, the grins were genuine and the chorus provided the cast members with a strong backup on the musical numbers.

"Showboat" is playing at the Guild playhouse on Lee Street in Des Plaines weekends through Sept. 26.

Paramedics to pilot test U.S. exam

Paramedics from the Northwest suburbs will help test a national examination that someday may be used to set uniform standards for the training and certifying of paramedics nationwide.

The test will be administered Wednesday and Thursday at Ingalls Memorial Hospital, Harvey, one of three sites in the nation selected to pilot test the proposed national exam.

A total of 200 Illinois-certified paramedics from programs at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights; Silver Cross Hospital, Joliet; and Ingalls will be tested on written and practical exams.

The test was developed by the University of Kansas and is sponsored by the National Registry of Emergency Medical Technicians. Presently, each state has its own requirements for training and certifying paramedics.

A national exam would make the standards uniform across the country.

Dr. Stanley Zydlo Jr., director of the mobile intensive care program based at Northwest Community, said the test would help ensure the competency of paramedics nationally.

In addition to Ingalls, the exam has been pilot tested at the University of Kansas and the University of Colorado Medical Center.

If the results of the Ingalls test are acceptable, the exam will be submitted to the National Registry of Emergency Medical Technicians for possible adoption as a national standard.

C&NW offers train-bus service to Bears' games

Chicago Bears football fans can ride to home games using the coordinated train-bus service operated by the Chicago and North Western Ry. and the Chicago Transit Authority.

Special CTA buses will carry riders from North Western's downtown station directly to Soldier Field. After the game, the buses will make the return trip to coordinate with outbound suburban trains.

The North Western will operate its regularly scheduled Sunday trains with additional double-deck coaches to accommodate extra riders. Trains will arrive downtown between 12:10 and 12:20 p.m.

Trains scheduled to depart from the North Western station between 4:30 and 4:40 p.m. after the games will be held until 4:45 p.m.

Signal for suit preference

Mike Lawrence has a really excellent discussion of the suit-preference signal in "Judgment at Bridge."

His first example is a good introduction. West opens his singleton heart against South's four-spade contract. East takes his ace and leads back the suit for West to ruff. If West proceeds to lead a diamond, East will take his ace and lead another heart. West will ruff and North and South will have justifiable complaints about bad luck.

The suit-preference signal makes it possible for East to tell West what to lead back. He leads his highest heart — the 10 spot. This calls for the higher of the two suits that West can lead. If East wanted a club return he would have led his lowest heart — the deuce. If West didn't care what was returned he would lead some sort of middle heart like the five.

This particular example shows this convention at its simplest and best. East doesn't want to do anything except to tell his partner which suit to lead and there is no way to confuse his partner.

Do you know about the home heating system that pulls energy out of thin air?

Introducing the heat pump.

Scientists have known for centuries that the air around us is a storehouse of heat energy. But it's only been in recent years that they were able to develop an efficient way to tap that abundant resource—the heat pump. Today, it is the only commercially available heating system that provides an answer to shrinking supplies of other fuels.

How the heat pump works:
Basically, the heat pump moves heat from one place to another. It uses electricity to extract heat from a limitless source—the heat in outdoor air. During winter, enough heat remains in the air—even on the coldest and cloudiest days—to be extracted by the pump and transferred indoors as clean, flameless heat.

And during warm weather, the process automatically reverses, removing excess indoor heat and humidity like an air conditioner.

Better efficiency.
In short, the heat pump does the job of both a furnace and an air conditioner. But there's an important difference. In northern Illinois the heat pump can produce more than 1½ units of heat energy for every unit it consumes. That's better efficiency than any other current heating system. That could mean significant long-term savings on heating costs.

To get the full advantages of the heat pump, it's important to get a quality product, properly installed and reliably serviced. For the name of qualified installers in your area, call G. W. Berkheimer Co. (Westinghouse Distributors), 312-374-4111; General Electric Co., 312-496-6356; Lennox Industries, Inc., 312-593-2820; or Temperature Equipment Corp. (Carrier Distributors), 312-681-6220. If you want additional heat pump information, call your local Commonwealth Edison office and talk to one of our marketing engineers.

LOT & HOME — $9,995
We must sell our 10 remaining sites within 200 yards of a lake near the Wisconsin Dells. This is about 3 hours from Chicago. These will be sold individually with an owner completion home of the purchaser's choice at 1 total package price. We will sell our 2 bedroom A-frame and basic 3/4 acre site for $9,995. 2 and 3 bedroom ranch homes, log cabins, 3 bedroom A-frames and premium lots are also available at slightly higher prices. Prosecution of white collar crime easier under new law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White collar criminals will be a little easier to catch under Supreme Court rulings handed down in the recently completed term.

The justices provided new tools for prosecutors tracking down white collar crime by allowing them to seize personal business records and bank accounts for use as evidence.

In addition, an accountant's records can be obtained and, in many instances, records left with a lawyer.

The court ruled in the bank records case that a depositor has no "legitimate expectation of privacy" once he uses a third party — the bank — in his transactions.

JUSTICE LEWIS F. Powell Jr. said "the depositor takes the risk" and police, the Internal Revenue Service, the FBI and other law enforcers can subpoena bank records. Under a federal law upheld by the high court two years ago, banks are required to keep microfilmed records of major transactions — again making white collar crime a little easier to discover.

A decision rendered last month by Justice Harry A. Blackmun is likely to be even more far-reaching. Blackmun said a person's Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination is not infringed when poice seize personal business papers.

Although the ruling merely affirmed the conviction of a Maryland lawyer for land fraud, its impact will permit prosecutors to use personally dictated memoranda and notes at trial even if the material is, in effect, a confession.

Blackmun said the Fifth Amendment is not violated by the use of such evidence if the defendant made the statements voluntarily, long before there was any danger police may have coerced an incriminating statement.

WHILE DEALING sharply with those who intentionally defraud the public, the court was far more lenient interpreting ambiguous portions of federal securities law, ruling against stockholders in two cases.

In a 6-2 decision last March, with Powell again writing the opinion, it held stockholders may not recover damages against accounting firms for failing to dicover a corporate stock fraud.

In a sweeping interpretation of a portion of the 1934 Securities and Exchange Act, Powell said it must be proven the accountant intended to deceive stockholders before they can recover damages. Mere incompetence, Powell said, is not covered by the law no matter how extreme the losses.

The Securities and Exchange Commission had argued for a tougher interpretation. Blackmun, siding with the SEC in dissent, said "an investor can be victimized just as much by negligent conduct as by positive deception" and should have the help of the law in either case.

THE COURT addressed another section of the securities law in June. Faced with two kinds of tests for corporate disclosure in proxy statements, the court chose the less demanding. This time, however, the court took the SEC's advice.

Justice Thurgood Marshall said corporate officers cannot be held liable for failing to provide stockholders with all conceivable information involved in a proxy vote. Rather, they must provide only information which a stockholder would probably rely on in casting his proxy.

Marshall said a more strict disclosure standard would "simply bury the shareholder in an avalanche of trivial information — a result that is hardly conducive to decision aking."

Prosecution of white collar crime easier under new law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White collar criminals will be a little easier to catch under Supreme Court rulings handed down in the recently completed term.

The justices provided new tools for prosecutors tracking down white collar crime by allowing them to seize personal business records and bank accounts for use as evidence.

In addition, an accountant's records can be obtained and, in many instances, records left with a lawyer.

The court ruled in the bank records case that a depositor has no "legitimate expectation of privacy" once he uses a third party — the bank — in his transactions.

JUSTICE LEWIS F. Powell Jr. said "the depositor takes the risk" and police, the Internal Revenue Service, the FBI and other law enforcers can subpoena bank records. Under a federal law upheld by the high court two years ago, banks are required to keep microfilmed records of major transactions — again making white collar crime a little easier to discover.

A decision rendered last month by Justice Harry A. Blackmun is likely to be even more far-reaching. Blackmun said a person's Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination is not infringed when poice seize personal business papers.

Although the ruling merely affirmed the conviction of a Maryland lawyer for land fraud, its impact will permit prosecutors to use personally dictated memoranda and notes at trial even if the material is, in effect, a confession.

Blackmun said the Fifth Amendment is not violated by the use of such evidence if the defendant made the statements voluntarily, long before there was any danger police may have coerced an incriminating statement.

WHILE DEALING sharply with those who intentionally defraud the public, the court was far more lenient interpreting ambiguous portions of federal securities law, ruling against stockholders in two cases.

In a 6-2 decision last March, with Powell again writing the opinion, it held stockholders may not recover damages against accounting firms for failing to dicover a corporate stock fraud.

In a sweeping interpretation of a portion of the 1934 Securities and Exchange Act, Powell said it must be proven the accountant intended to deceive stockholders before they can recover damages. Mere incompetence, Powell said, is not covered by the law no matter how extreme the losses.

The Securities and Exchange Commission had argued for a tougher interpretation. Blackmun, siding with the SEC in dissent, said "an investor can be victimized just as much by negligent conduct as by positive deception" and should have the help of the law in either case.

THE COURT addressed another section of the securities law in June. Faced with two kinds of tests for corporate disclosure in proxy statements, the court chose the less demanding. This time, however, the court took the SEC's advice.

Justice Thurgood Marshall said corporate officers cannot be held liable for failing to provide stockholders with all conceivable information involved in a proxy vote. Rather, they must provide only information which a stockholder would probably rely on in casting his proxy.

Marshall said a more strict disclosure standard would "simply bury the shareholder in an avalanche of trivial information — a result that is hardly conducive to decision aking."

Bed linens basic for home

IF YOU'VE just taken your own apartment, are making wedding plans or going off to school, you'll need certain bed linen basics. These include pillows, a comforter, and a mattress pad as well as linens.

The rule of thumb for buying sheets and pillowcases is to have one set on the bed, one in the laundry and one set in the closet. This way you'll always have clean linens in case you don't have a chance to do a laundry or if you have unexpected company.

COMPANY CAN always camp out on the sofa unless you have the room for overnight guests on a regular basis. If you do, you'll want to have an extra set of sheets, extra pillows and an extra comforter.

When you're starting out it pays to buy good quality items. The better pillow and comforter will give you more years of comfortable sleep and actually cost you less because they will last longer than the less expensive ones.

ALSO WE spend one third or more of our lives sleeping and if you don't get a good night's sleep you won't have a good day. An investment in your sleep is really one in your working and leisure time hours too.

There are certain tips to keep in mind when you select a pillow.

There's no perfect bed pillow for everyone and there's no way to tell about a pillow by just looking at it. You have to pick it up and handle it to see if it is comfortable to your touch.

SEE IF IT has the feel, elevation and firmness you like in a pillow. Then place your head on it and see if it still feels comfortable.

Pillows come in a wide range of prices, types and sizes so you should consider how you want to sleep and what size bed you have.

Most manufacturers offer pillows which meet your firmness, elevation and size needs.

The top of the line is a down pillow; it is luxuriously soft and lightweight.

NEXT ARE the blends of feathers and down in various combinations which determine the firmness. More feathers in the blend will make the pillow firmer.

There are also goose or duck feather pillows. These are the firmest and will also give you many years of comfortable sleep. They are less expensive than an all down or blended feather and down pillow.

Pillows are also made of polyester fills or foam rubber. A good pillow should be odorless, resilient and free from lumps regardless of the filling.

COMFORTERS ARE the most popular bedcovers today because they give a finished look to your bedroom without the nuisance of using both a blanket and bedspread. They also save time in making up the bed.

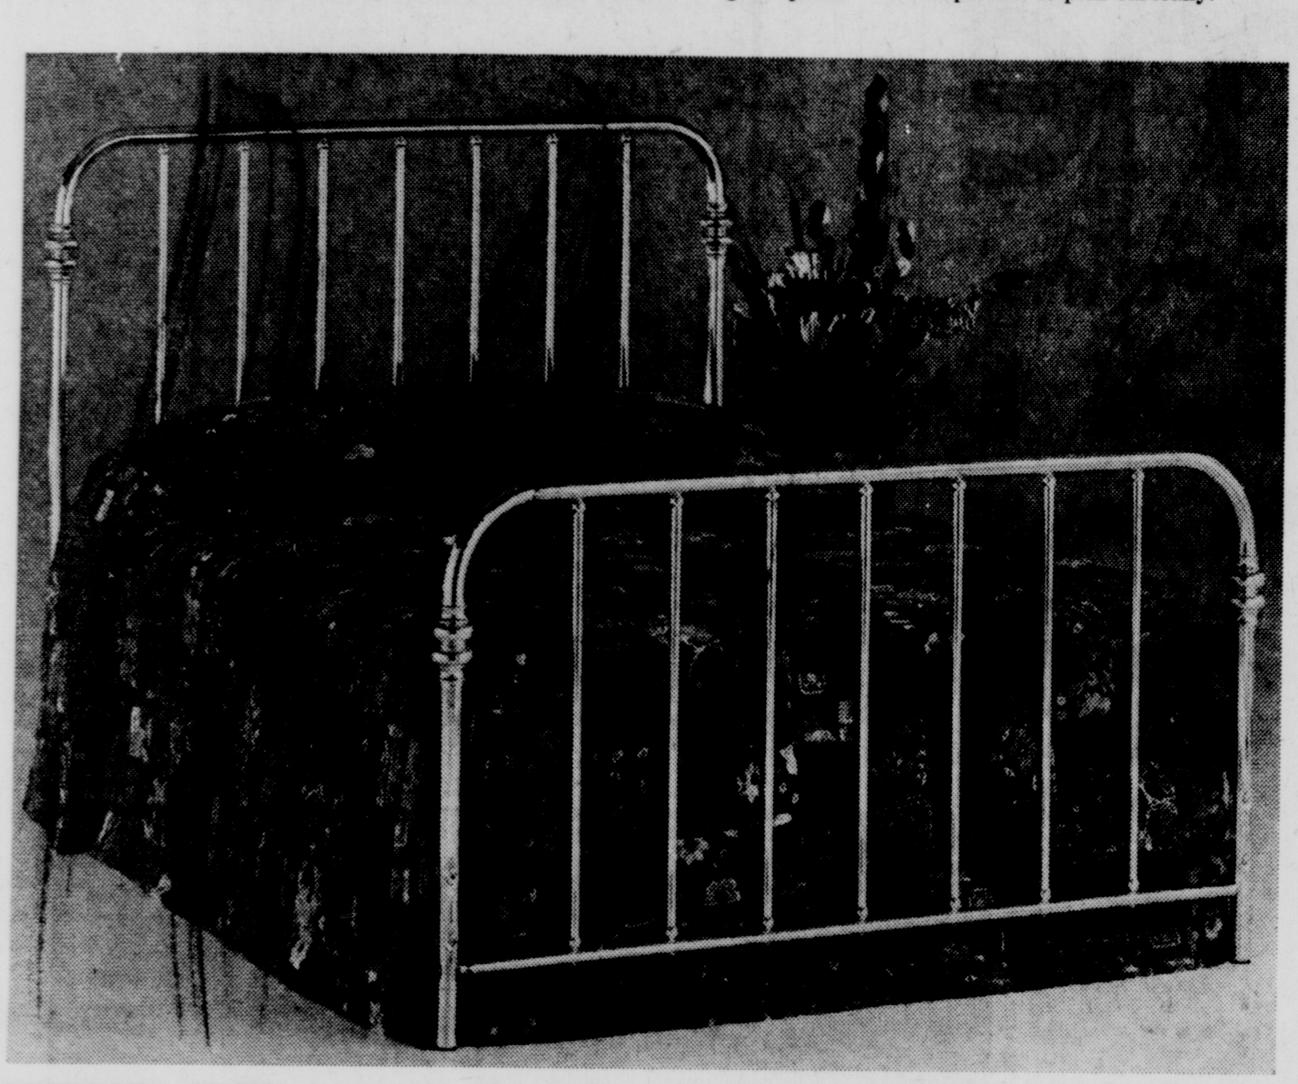
When you select a comforter keep in mind that there are down comforters, down and feather comforters and some filled with polyester.

The comforter filled with natural materials will drape to your body and insulate you so that you are warm in the winter and comfortable in the warmer months.

A POLYESTER fill comforter will be best in the warmer months. A good comforter will give you years of service and still look fluffy while it keeps you comfortable.

With all the wonderful sheet patterns on the marekt today, it makes sense to buy a solid color coordinate with the basic color scheme in your bedroom.

Remember, in selecting your bed linen basics, it is smart to buy good quality items that will give you years of comfort and service. That's why it's important to pick carefully.



REMINISCENT OF BEDS found in the old west, this curved-line design is a statement of simplicity. Sleek brass tubing with slender spindles lend a stately quality. This classic look is certain to be at home in traditional or contemporary settings. It is available in twin, full, queen and king sizes at Sit, Stack, & Sleep Inc. The store at 1015 S. Arlington Heights Road, Arlington Heights, specializes in genuine brass and brass-plated beds.

Check list for quality furniture

With more time to do their own thing, informed suburban shoppers know quality and value better than ever before. That's why when looking for new upholstered furniture, they insist on seeing the written warranty on fabrics.

A small number of dependable upholstery makers take the second guessing out of fabric durability by guaranteeing the fabric in writing.

How are fabrics guaranteed? Here are excerpts from the fabric warranty offered by the upholstery maker who is rated "most dependable" by the National Home Furnishings Association. A customer receives the following two-year fabric assurances for sofas and chairs under conditions of normal use and cleaning:

Weakness . . . everyday use will not produce ripping or shredding.

Seam slippage . . . seams will not open at beading or welts.

Shrinkage . . . fabrics will not shrink when cleaned as directed.

Stretch . . . fabrics will not stretch excessively, although they will not fit cushions as tightly after normal aging.

Abrasion wear . . . fabrics will not wear through under normal use.

Permanent soil . . . fabrics will not be damaged by reliable professional cleaning.

Color transfer . . . colors will not transfer from upholstery to clothing under normal conditions.

The upholstery manufacturer makes no labor or material charges for repairing any defects in workmanship or fabrics as noted above. No transportation charges are made.

Sofas and chairs with the unique two-year fabric assurance of quality are displayed in the galleries of Smithe and Shanahan, Chicago.

ASID selects seven top creations

T-BASE LAMP manufactured by Cedric Hartman, Inc.

Home furnishing design this year is a collage of seemingly contradictory materials, textures and patterns combined in the most space-saving, practical arrangements.

Graphic elegance is backed by the beauty of nature. Bold, directing lines are coupled with subdued natural tones. Gleaming chrome and rustic wood are intermixed in simple, uncluttered settings.

Complex arrangements of wall groupings and shelving modules achieve a tidy durability. The total look is aimed at generating opulence at an affordable price.

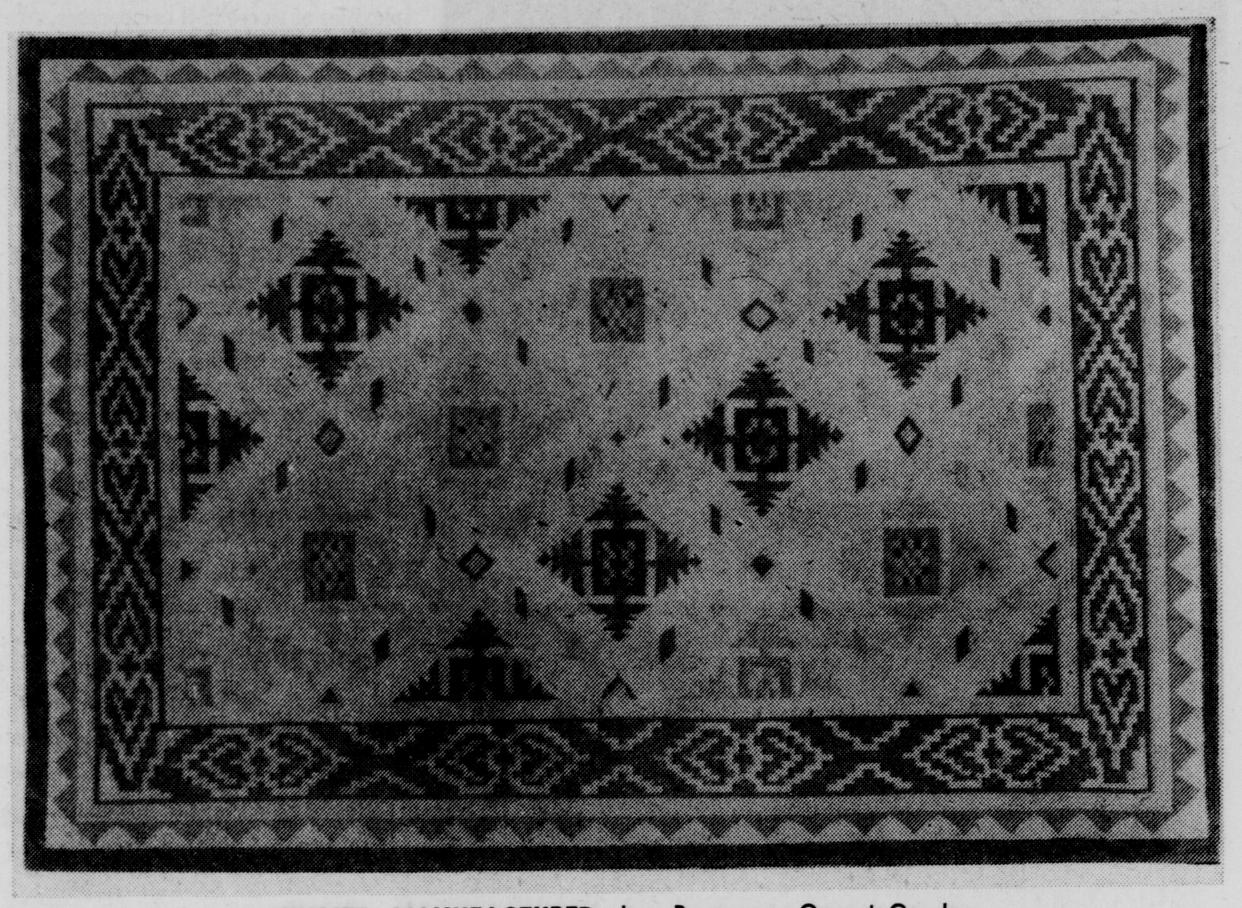
This trend was further emphasized when the American Society of Interior Designers (ASID) chose the seven top home furnishing designs at the first International Residential Product Design Awards cermonies.

IN THE FURNITURE category, a simple, elegant table designed by the late Corbusier and manufactured for Atelier International by Cassina in Italy, was selected for its classic, enduring design.

Proving that good design need not be expensive, a casual folding chair, called the Canyon Chair, which retails for under $100, won the award in the seating category. Produced by Gold Medal, Inc., it is available in natural canvas on natural or oil-stained Danish walnut.

A combination of durability, easy maintenance and creativity won the hard-surface floor covering award for Hastings Module 42. The round tiles are made of impervious vitrified glass resulting in a bright white tile that stays bright white.

It also comes in beige, pumpkin and Montreal Blend, a combination of earthy tones, and can be special ordered in any color.



KISMET MANUFACTURED by Rosecore Carpet Co., Inc.

HASTINGS MODULE 24 manufactured by Briare Company of France.

It lends itself to a wide variety of graphic designs on floors and walls. It can be used anywhere, but is exceptionally well suited to terrace floors, kitchens, bathrooms, and foyers.

THE ROSECORE Carpet Co., Inc., won the award for its Kismet carpet, a subtle pattern with timeless charm that is suitable for virtually every decor.

It was chosen in shades of natural and beige, but is also available in blue and pink colorways and o nspecial order in any chosen color. Kismet is a Wool Dhurrie, handwoven in India in five stock sizes.

A unique, easy-to-use tongue and groove Aspenwood Wall Planking won the wall covering award for the Great Scot Timber and Logging Co., Inc. Solid lumber reversible planks with a satin smooth side and a rough sawn side display the special grain configurations and knot characteristics found only in Quaking Aspen wood.

Available in natural and five finishes, stained on the smooth side only, it retails for about 90 cents a square foot.

PROBABLY THE MOST difficult choice for the professional designers was the category of textiles but the preference for natural tones and texture over colorful patterns was predominant. The Focus 1 collection by Carnegie, with 13 wool designs in 25 tones of natural and earth colors plus three solid weaves, won the award.

Function and versatility won the lighting award for Cedric Hartman, Inc., for its T-Base Lamp. Executed in a variety of solid metals, it stands 37" high, and is available in a variety of colors. The T-Base Lamp is part of the permanent design collection at the Museum of Modern Art in New York.

The competition was initiated by the American Societh of Interior Designers, the largest organization of professional designers in the world, to encourage better design of interior products at all price levels.

Sheets come in SHEETS HAVE come from the days of a linen closet necessity to one of the hottest in the retail market!

Sheets are in. There are now designer sheets, washable satin sheets, sheets with museum print reproductions, round sheets, waterbed sheets, even heart-shaped sheets!

With such a sheet boom in progress, it's only natural that decorators and designers everywhere are coming up with hundreds of unique ideas for taking the sheet off the bed and putting it into the total decor of the home.

ONE FAVORITE non-bed use of sheets is for wall-hangings: sheets can be gathered slightly and hung from the ceiling of one or more walls of a room for a richly-draped, coordinated effect.

Sheets can be purchased in mix and match styles and colors for pillow covers — especially popular are the large, overstuffed floor pillows scattered around a room.

The only limit is your own creativity!

A wee bit of Ireland for every room in your home

Living Room — Waterford crystal lamps, original oil paintings and hand colored prints, wall plaques, hand woven tweed mats and pillow covers.

Dining Room — Waterford crystal, Belleek and Aynsley China, Irish linen tablecloths.

Kitchen — hand knitted tea cosies, hand woven toaster covers and place mat sets and napkins, Irish aluminum tea pots and kettles, hand woven pot holders and aprons.

Bedrooms — hand woven bedspreads, blankets and throws, chrome cured lambskins in white and decorator colors.

All the charm, grace and splendor of Louis XV furniture is readily apparent in Camille. Graceful serpentine fronts of cases, richly carved cabriole legs, carved base rails and door moldings with floral detailing give a distinctive custom look. Fine craftsmanship is seen in the artful selection of figured walnut veneers and pecan solids. Painstakingly-matched walnut parquetry is featured; a rich, brown wood tone, hand-rubbed to a sparkling sheen, gives the look of custom finishing. Sound solution for stereo selection

ACCORDING TO a report in a leading electronics publication, there are a substantial number of consumers who are frightened by the complexities of stereo hi-fi components.

They are put off by the seemingly indecipherable dials and buttons of the typical component system.

One baffled shopper reports that some stereo receivers resembled the cockpit of a 747, and the instructions that went with them were difficult to understand.

MAGNAVOX is offering a line of audio equipment which may offer a solution to these music lovers who want great sound but with less complex installation and operation than is required with separate components.

Stereo consoles have been popular choices in many homes where music is enjoyed by the whole family, and Magnavox consoles are handsome pieces of furniture as well as the source for fine music reproduction.

A stereo console can be a good buy when one considers that an Early American dry sink, for example, with no electronic equipment, retails for not a great deal less than the Dry Sink stereo console which serves a double purpose.

ASIDE FROM THE fine furniture qualities of a well-designed stereo console, the equipment has been engineered to be easily accessible, uncomplicated to operate and to produce true high fidelity stereo sound.

A quality stereo system contains acoustically prematched components which are then built into a fine furniture cabinet that has been designed expressly for those particular components.

The electronics in a Magnavox console include solid state FM/AM radios with illuminated, easy-to-read dials.

THE FULL-SIZE automatic stereo record changer is also handy and simple to operate, with clearly marked controls.

Console styles range from a space-saving Early American pedestal with an FM/AM radio and 8-track tape player; small-scale breakfront in Italian, French, and Mediterranean styling with FM/AM radio, automatic turntable and 8-track players; the regal, Concert Grand Horizontal consoles containing high-fidelity, high performance components of exacting specifications; and the luxurious stereo theaters featuring color television as well as outstanding audio equipment.

The classic horizontal consoles offer the widest style range available . . . Italian Provincial, Mediterranean, French Provincial, 18th Century English, Early American and Contemporary.

Current stereo consoles feature FM/AM radios, automatic record changers and 8-track tape players, high performance speaker systems and a full range of auxiliary connections.

MODULAR WALL UNITS are an ideal solution to the problem of diminishing interior living space. These 30½" units can cover any length of wall, giving a built-in look, yet are free-standing so no carpentry expertise is needed. The hand-painted gilt accenting on the bookcase reflects an Oriental influence. The cabinets are available at Plunkett Furniture in Arlington Heights.

Checking energy costs saves cash

IN MANY PARTS of the country today, home energy costs are nearly as high as property taxes. In a few places, they equal mortgage payments. With that in mind, it's vitally important to ask about the energy efficiency of your new home," says Sharon Kay Ritchie, director of the CertainTeed Home Institute. "You may find that what appears to be a bargain to buy turns into a budget-drainer when it comes to heating and cooling," she adds.

Many savings and loan associations are using a method called life-cycle cost analysis to determine whether prospective buyers can afford a new mortgage and the rising utility costs as well. Frequently, they urge new homeowners to invest immediately in at least six inches of fiber glass insulation on the attic floor, to help reduce energy consumption up to 30%. In some areas of the country, they even loan the money for such energy-conserving improvements at much more favorable terms than conventional home-improvement loans.

"YOU MAY NOT BE ready for the complicated life-cycle cost analysis method of determining your long-term energy costs," Miss Ritchie notes.

It's clear that attic insulation, higher efficiency heating and cooling systems, storm windows, and other energy improvements help pay for themselves quickly in reduced utility bills. They help make your home more practical and comfortable while you're there — and more salable when you're ready to move elsewhere.

For more information on home energy-savings write for booklets "Insulating for Maximum Economic Return" and "Insulation Savings Plan." They're free from the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, Pa., 19482.

Sound solution for stereo selection

ACCORDING TO a report in a leading electronics publication, there are a substantial number of consumers who are frightened by the complexities of stereo hi-fi components.

They are put off by the seemingly indecipherable dials and buttons of the typical component system.

One baffled shopper reports that some stereo receivers resembled the cockpit of a 747, and the instructions that went with them were difficult to understand.

MAGNAVOX is offering a line of audio equipment which may offer a solution to these music lovers who want great sound but with less complex installation and operation than is required with separate components.

Stereo consoles have been popular choices in many homes where music is enjoyed by the whole family, and Magnavox consoles are handsome pieces of furniture as well as the source for fine music reproduction.

A stereo console can be a good buy when one considers that an Early American dry sink, for example, with no electronic equipment, retails for not a great deal less than the Dry Sink stereo console which serves a double purpose.

ASIDE FROM THE fine furniture qualities of a well-designed stereo console, the equipment has been engineered to be easily accessible, uncomplicated to operate and to produce true high fidelity stereo sound.

A quality stereo system contains acoustically prematched components which are then built into a fine furniture cabinet that has been designed expressly for those particular components.

The electronics in a Magnavox console include solid state FM/AM radios with illuminated, easy-to-read dials.

THE FULL-SIZE automatic stereo record changer is also handy and simple to operate, with clearly marked controls.

In most Maganvox stereo consoles, the speaker system projects dimensional sound from the front and sides of the cabinet for added stereo separation.

Console styles range from a space-saving Early American pedestal with an FM/AM radio and 8-track tape player; small-scale breakfront in Italian, French, and Mediterranean styling with FM/AM radio, automatic turntable and 8-track players; the regal, Concert Grand Horizontal consoles containing high-fidelity, high performance components of exacting specifications; and the luxurious stereo theaters featuring color television as well as outstanding audio equipment.

WHAT A PRETTY place for just relaxing! Shorty draperies let in all the morning sun — just touch the clever storage ledge. The fabric's also carried on the corner wall to keep the windows unified. The drapery treatment is suggested by Arlington Draperies, a division of Arlington Carpet & Tile in Arlington Market shopping center.

Spark dining creativity

NO MATTER HOW proficient one may be at whipping up gourmet meals in the kitchen, the effort is lost in the dining room if it isn't served in an attractive atmosphere.

Think for a moment about your most memorable dining out experience. You may remember how tasty the food was, but you'll definitely recall the glitter and the romance of the service and the decor.

The dining room is the one place in the home that permits the hostess to exercise her creativity in a dramatic way.

A table set with the shimmer and shine of sparkling crystal and elegant silver placed against the soft swirls of wood-like grain in the table top would make hamburger seem closer to chateaubriand.

EVEN HOMES that must contend with a section of the living room as a dining area can make it seem like a separate room for dining but part of the living room at other times, with a little imagination.

Howell, St. Charles, Ill., suggests choosing a dining group that provides styling suitable for living room use, too. The "Move-About" group, for instance, features armed seating pieces with castered, pedestal bases that ride easily over thick carpeting or hard surfaces.

The chairs also swivel and are upholstered in softly padded cleanable vinyl that looks like more expensive leather. The styling brings the chairs right into the living room for use as occasional chairs, TV chairs, desk chairs.

The rich, simulated fire pecan laminate table top sits on a Chromsteel(R) dual-pedestal base and is contemporary enough to blend with modern or traditional styling in the living room. Consider it as a desk or utility table for the living room, too.

THE LIVING room-dining area can be made to appear as a separate room by surrounding it with decorative screens. Regular doors, bought for a few dollars at a hardware store, can be hinged togther, varnished, wallpapered, painted, or left bare.

Louvered doors hinged together make an attractive room divider, and left in the natural finish will highlight the earth tones of the dining group.

The area can also be highlighted by placing a circle, an oval, or a square area rug beneath the group in a shade slightly lighter or darker than the carpeting. Or mirror a wall at the dining end of the room to make the area appear larger and as a reflector for the candlelight and crystal at serving time.

For more dining decor ideas and a Zodiac Guide to Dining, send 50 cents to Howell, 410 South First Street, St. Charles, Ill. 60174.

Consider dining comfort

THE STRIKING DESIGN from Karastan's new "Eastern Primitives" collection of rugs adds a warm note to this den. The Oriental-patterned carpets, available at Pedian Rug Co., Arlington Heights, are woven of pure wool pile yarns and fringed on the ends.

DINING ROOMS are back! Separate and apart from living rooms, the dining room is again given status in total home furnishings arrangements.

Homemakers have realized that the small area at the other end of the living room doesn't always serve today's lifestyles that call for more entertainment at home. Dinner parties offer a chance to try out the new colorful kitchenware with menus served creatively in the dining room.

Attractive table settings are giving more leisure-time to meal-time, and whether the dining group chosen is informal or formal, three ingredients must be taken into consideration when shopping for the new set — style, beauty and comfort.

Probably the most important element is the latter, comfort. Other than the living room or family room, you'll probably spend more time each day sitting at the dining room table than anywhere else in the house.

COMFORTABLE CHAIRS that fit the natural contours of the body and sit at the proper height in relation to the table will find guests enjoying what's served a lot better and will keep the family together for longer periods of sharing the day's events.

Think of the dining chair as a piece of living room furniture and shop accordingly. Sit in it for as long as possible and test the seat and back position. Do your legs rest comfortably against deep cushioning or well-contoured seats? Is the seat deep enough to let you sit back in ease? Does the chair back mold to your back, and is it high enough for good support? Does it have arms and longer relaxation?

After comfort, consider style. The dining group should coordinate with the rest of your furnishings. And that does not mean everything has to match. A coordinated blend can add dimension to ordinary arrangements. If you're not quite sure of your taste, consider contemporary styling that lends itself to modern as well as more traditional accessories.

SELECT A GROUP that offers a lasting style — one you won't tire of too soon. Choose upholstery colors to blend with a variety of backgrounds. Walls and accessories, after all, are easier and less expensive to change for a new look than buying a whole new dining group everytime you want to redecorate.

For more dining decor ideas and a Zodiac Guide to Dining send 50 cents to Howell, 410 South First St., St. Charles, Ill. 60174.

COLOR COORDINATION is the key to home furnishing success. The Carpet Shop in Elk Grove Village will provide all the materials and assistance you need to match carpeting, wallcoverings, draperies and bedspreads for any room decor.

Something really new

The informed suburban shopper knows value and quality better than ever before. That's why when she shops for new upholstered furniture she insists on seeing the written manufacturers' warranty on fabrics. That's the intelligent thing to do.

Today, a very small number of dependable upholstery manufacturers take the second-guessing out of fabric durability by guaranteeing the fabric in writing. At Smithe and Shanahan, choose from over 1000 fabrics and 600 sofa and chair designs.

When you ask a salesperson to show you a written fabric guarantee, you will usually be told that no one guarantees fabric; no one knows how you're going to treat the fabric . . . at Smithe and Shanahan we'll show you the written two year Assurance of Quality. The reason we can offer a written fabric warranty is found in the fact that we test our fabric samples in a fabric testing laboratory before any yardage is purchased from a mill. Only the fabrics which pass the extensive laboratory testing (simulating conditions in your home) are offered for your selection by Smithe and Shanahan.

More facts. Here's how fabrics are guaranteed in excerpts from the fabric warranty offered by the manufacturer found to be "most dependable" by a national furnishings association. Under liberal conditions of normal use and cleaning, Smithe and Shanahan Customers receive the following written fabric assurances for two years: Weakness . . . everyday use will not produce ripping or shredding. Abrasion Wear . . . fabrics will not wear through. Seam Slippage . . . seams will not open. Shrinkage . . . fabrics will not shrink when cleaned as directed. Permanent Soil . . . fabrics will not be damaged by reliable professional cleaning. Color Transfer . . . colors will not transfer to clothing.

Now it's time to put us to the test. Come in during the next ten days for important 20% savings on all elegant, custom ordered sofas and chairs. Custom sofa prices range from $263 to $769 (regular $962 value). Call 685-3900 for more details . . . come in now!

Consider dining comfort

THE STRIKING DESIGN from Karastan's new "Eastern Primitives" collection of rugs adds a warm note to this den. The Oriental-patterned carpets, available at Pedian Rug Co., Arlington Heights, are woven of pure wool pile yarns and fringed on the ends.

DINING ROOMS are back! Separate and apart from living rooms, the dining room is again given status in total home furnishings arrangements.

Homemakers have realized that the small area at the other end of the living room doesn't always serve today's lifestyles that call for more entertainment at home. Dinner parties offer a chance to try out the new colorful kitchenware with menus served creatively in the dining room.

Attractive table settings are giving more leisure-time to meal-time, and whether the dining group chosen is informal or formal, three ingredients must be taken into consideration when shopping for the new set — style, beauty and comfort.

Probably the most important element is the latter, comfort. Other than the living room or family room, you'll probably spend more time each day sitting at the dining room table than anywhere else in the house.

COMFORTABLE CHAIRS that fit the natural contours of the body and sit at the proper height in relation to the table will find guests enjoying what's served a lot better and will keep the family together for longer periods of sharing the day's events.

Think of the dining chair as a piece of living room furniture and shop accordingly. Sit in it for as long as possible and test the seat and back position. Do your legs rest comfortably against deep cushioning or well-contoured seats? Is the seat deep enough to let you sit back in ease? Does the chair back mold to your back, and is it high enough for good support? Does it have arms and longer relaxation?

After comfort, consider style. The dining group should coordinate with the rest of your furnishings. And that does not mean everything has to match. A coordinated blend can add dimension to ordinary arrangements. If you're not quite sure of your taste, consider contemporary styling that lends itself to modern as well as more traditional accessories.

SELECT A GROUP that offers a lasting style — one you won't tire of too soon. Choose upholstery colors to blend with a variety of backgrounds. Walls and accessories, after all, are easier and less expensive to change for a new look than buying a whole new dining group everytime you want to redecorate.

Cues for your carpet I.Q.

IN THE MARKET for new carpeting? Then you'll want to boost your carpet IQ with these tips on the newest trends in woven floor coverings, compiled by the Eureka Home Care Institute:

Saxonies are the big news in carpeting this season. Dense, with lots of twist so that each fiber stands out, the saxony weave resembles a short, fine shag. Carpet industry experts are predicting that it will soon replace long shags in popularity.

"The long shag has had its big day," says Ned Hopper of the Carpet and Rug Institute. Shag sales skyrocketed in the early 1970s, Hopper reports, but are now declining slowly each year as designers fashion ingenious new weaves and colorations for low-pile carpeting.

SPEAKING OF designers, you can expect to see rugs and carpet patterns created by famous name designers in stores soon. It's in line with the trend toward designer sheets, towels and upholstery fabrics.

There's a color revolution in carpets and rugs, thanks to new dyeing techniques. Lovely random designs are created by TAK-dyeing, a new process which "drops" color onto the face of the carpet after it's woven.

Computers are even getting into the coloring game. It's possible to dye any design in the world into a rug with a computer, even a portrait of your family dog. Unique abstract patterns created by a computer dye-injection process are on the market now.

IF YOU'VE been in an old hotel or restaurant recently, chances are you've walked on an Axminster rug — the kind with huge flowers on it. Outdated? Not so. Scaled-down versions of the Axminster will be aavilable this season and the carpet industry expects them to sell briskly.

Printed rugs, until recently confined to the kitchen, will be showing up in well-appointed living rooms this year. Oriental floral and animal-skin designs can be reproduced with fool-the-eye accuracy by printing.

Whatever type of short pile carpeting you choose, you'll find caring for it is easier than a shag. "We have much less trouble cleaning the new styles," reports Earl Jeffires, chief field engineer for The Eureka Company, who with his staff regularly tests about 250 different carpet samples. "Not only are the short piles easier to vacuum, but carpet manufacturers now pretreat fibers with a dirt repellant," Jeffries says.

TO INSURE THAT your new carpet or rug will stay bright and beautiful, The Eureka Home Care Institute recommends that you check before purchase to make sure that the backing is tightly woven and the tufts are firmly anchored. Invest in a rug pad; it will fill in uneven spaces in the floor and help prevent worn spots. A pad also adds softness and absorbs noise.

New carpets generally fluff until all the loose bits of pile have come to the surface. Vacuuming regularly will speed up the process and will make fluffing stop sooner. But the Institute warns that vacuum-cleaner bags need to be emptied often with a new carpet.

Som tufts in new carpets tend to "sprout" or stand up above others after vacuuming. Never try to pull these out, says the Institute — just trim them to conform to the others.

WHEN WAS THE LAST TIME you saw an antique pie safe? This reproduction, stained blue green, is ready for your scrutiny at Something Special in Arlington Heights. The pierced metal inserts in the upper doors gave it the ventilating qualities so practical when pies of the frozen variety were yet unheard of.

Attic offers big savings

PEOPLE USED to hide their valuables in the attic. Curiously, one of our most valuable commodities today is invisible . . . so it's hard to hide it anywhere. It's used for heating and cooling energy. But, you can still keep it in your home and comfortably reduce energy consumption by up to 30 per cent, according to the CertainTeed Home Institute, Valley Forge, Pa. "All you need to do is insulate the attic floor," notes Sharon Kay Ritchie, director of the Institute. "In addition, you will find you may earn more on your money in the attic than you will if you put it in the bank."

The cost of installing at least six inches of fiber glass insulation in an average 1400 square-foot, ranch-style home is about $250, if you do the job yourself. If you put the same $250 in the bank the average annual yield would be about $14, and you'd have to pay taxes on it. Invested in attic insulation, the same dollars could provide you with a much greater, tax-free annual return even if you live in a moderate climate.

IN LEXINGTON, Kentucky, for example, in a gas-heated, uninsulated home, you'd recoup $144 annually on heating and air-conditioning bills. People who live where it's very hot or very cold save even more. In Milwaukee, insulating with six inches of fiber glass insulation will save you about $183 on gas heating bills and another $22 on cooling. The annual return is a total of $205. (This assumes, again, that the house has no attic insulation to begin with.) In Dallas the same house will save over $200 on air conditioning and $40 on heating.

Additional savings are possible if you add at least 9½ inches of fiber glass batt insulation, or its R-30 equivalent.

"The nice thing about saving in your attic is that you never pay taxes on the investment and it continues to return handsomely year after year, for the life of your home," Miss Ritchie says.

For more information write for the Insulation Savings Plan. It's free from the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, Pa. 19482.

Shades are nice

Functionalism plus . . . the window shade. It adds privacy, filters light, helps energy control by keeping temperature on an even keel in winter or summer, and usually is washable.

Who could ask for more? Homemakers did! So window shades are now beautiful, too — in a wonderful range of mix-and-match colors and patterns that make you forget how utilitarian they are.

Don't despair if the budget is out of whack by the time you get around to planning your window treatment.

Even penny-pinchers can keep in step by choosing colorful, raady-made window shades to add a new and charming note to their decorating scheme.

Frame your scarf

Do you have an extra-pretty scarf — one that's just too pretty to fold into a knot or tie in a triangle and wear? Don't stash it away for that "special occasion" which may never come. Give it a light pressing, frame it, and you'll have a great new look for a room!

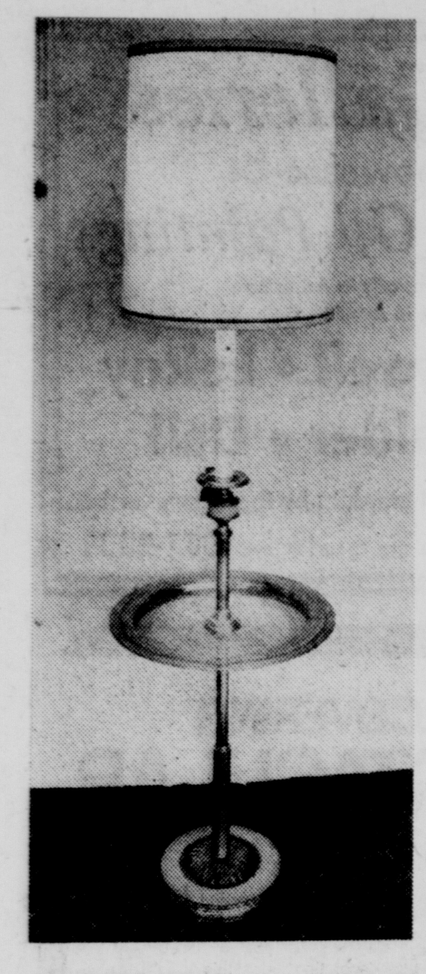
Old World charm gets modern look



A SHOWPIECE is this weathered brass and antique white floor lamp. Made by Acme Lighting, it stands 54 inches high and is on sale for $69.95 at Lamps 'n Plants 'n Things in Arlington Heights.

TEXTILE wallcoverings are increasingly in demand by architects and interior designers, as well as individual home decorators, not only because they can easily adapt them to present day needs, but because they all understand and appreciate the intrinsic qualities of the fibers.

The enormous expansion on the use of Belgian linen wallcoverings, for example, is due to the specific qualities of linen and its excellent adaptability to custom designs.

Included among the most important characteristics of linen wallcoverings are:

- Dimensional stability: Among all natural fibers, linen is the least elastic.
- Luster: Linen fibers have a silky luster.
- Solidity of color: It has a special affinity for dyes thus retaining its freshness. Surfaces do not become dull as a result of exposure and wear.
- Anti-static power: Being a material that tends to absorb moisture, linen fabrics by nature have an excellent anti-static power. Linen wallcoverings do not attract dust, but repel it.
- Strength and resistance to tearing: Pure-linen is one of the strongest of natural materials. It is resistant to tears, shocks, and friction.
- Sound-proofing: Because pure linen fibers are thick, the acoustics are much improved.
- Mildew: Linen is quite resistant to attack by bacteria and mildew.

Belgian linens are available in textures, damasks, prints (both screen and pigment dyed), solid colors in all shades of natural and vivid hues, and sheer casements — all adaptable as wallcovering.

THIS VARIETY gives the decorator the flexibility of coordinating the wallcoverings with draperies and upholstery. All are appropriate for both contemporary and traditional interiors.

Belgian linen wallcoverings are installed in various ways, depending on the backing or the effects one wants to achieve.

Fabrics can be stapled to walls with or without a lining or padding. A padding usually increases the insulation and acoustical properties of the area treated in this way.

Fabrics can also be glued directly to a smooth surfaced wall. If paper-backed or acrylic backed, use installation techniques and adhesives suggested by the manufacturer.

BECAUSE LINEN does not attract dust, maintenance of Belgian linen wallcoverings is simple. Twice a year use a vacuum cleaner (the brushless attachment).

Spots are removed by means of a damp sponge and mild detergent. Rinse dry, dabbing gently with a towel. Some stubborn stains are removable with a solvent cleaner.

The strength of linen, solidity of color, its dimensional stability, its anti-static power, and its adaptability — all combine to make it a material chosen by the astute decorator.

Like a fine piece of furniture, its surfaces age well and evenly, lending a more personal atmosphere to any room of the home.

For more ideas on decorating with linen, the Belgian Linen Association has a new 16-page brochure, illustrated in color, entitled "Belgian Linen Wallcoverings." For your copy write the Belgian Linen Association, 280 Madison Avenue, New York, New York 10016. Please enclose 50 cents for postage and handling.

KEEPING YOUR carpeting clean is a breeze when you have the right equipment. This light-weight Royal vacuum is easy to operate and adjusts to many carpet heights. See it and many others at Mobile Vacuum Service in Arlington Heights.

Hold it!

Don't buy that vacuum cleaner.

Portable vacuum cleaners have a lot of faults that you really don't have to live with. That's true regardless of how famous or expensive the brand you are considering. What faults? They make a deafening amount of noise. They re-circulate dust in the room you are trying to clean . . . a nuisance to anyone but a horror for families with allergies. They are cumbersome to lug around. Some have only marginal vacuum power. They wear out too fast, require repairs, and depreciate rapidly in value. Face it, they are no bargain. What's the alternative? For about the same cost as the best portables you could have a quality, central vacuum cleaning system installed in your house, any house, old or new, large or small. The built-in system is absolutely silent. It removes all the dirt to a central receptacle in basement or garage, hence no re-circulation of dust. A 30 foot featherlight hose reaches everywhere, even up the longest staircase. No lugging, tugging and tangled cords. And power! You get 100% more than many portables. Ours is built to last decades and, instead of depreciating, it actually increases the value of your house. Central systems used to be a luxury for the wealthy, but now you can have a quality Cyclone system for only $449. A 3-inlet system professionally installed, or do it yourself and save $100.

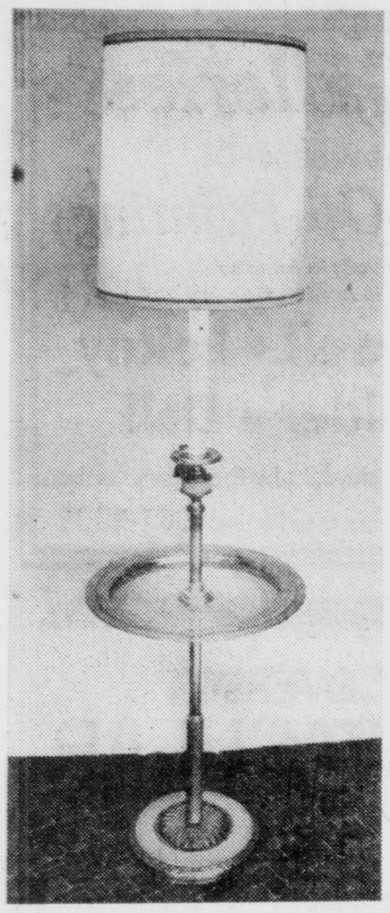
Old World charm gets modern look



A SHOWPIECE is this weathered brass and antique white floor lamp. Made by Acme Lighting, it stands 54 inches high and is on sale for $69.95 at Lamps 'n Plants 'n Things in Arlington Heights.

TEXTILE wallcoverings are increasingly in demand by architects and interior designers, as well as individual home decorators, not only because they can easily adapt them to present day needs, but because they all understand and appreciate the intrinsic qualities of the fibers.

The enormous expansion on the use of Belgian linen wallcoverings, for example, is due to the specific qualities of linen and its excellent adaptability to custom designs.

Included among the most important characteristics of linen wallcoverings are:

- Dimensional stability: Among all natural fibers, linen is the least elastic.
- Luster: Linen fibers have a silky luster.
- Solidity of color: It has a special affinity for dyes thus retaining its freshness. Surfaces do not become dull as a result of exposure and wear.
- Anti-static power: Being a material that tends to absorb moisture, linen fabrics by nature have an excellent anti-static power. Linen wallcoverings do not attract dust, but repel it.
- Strength and resistance to tearing: Pure-linen is one of the strongest of natural materials. It is resistant to tears, shocks, and friction.
- Sound-proofing: Because pure linen fibers are thick, the acoustics are much improved.
- Mildew: Linen is quite resistant to attack by bacteria and mildew.

Belgian linens are available in textures, damasks, prints (both screen and pigment dyed), solid colors in all shades of natural and vivid hues, and sheer casements — all adaptable as wallcovering.

THIS VARIETY gives the decorator the flexibility of coordinating the wallcoverings with draperies and upholstery. All are appropriate for both contemporary and traditional interiors.

Belgian linen wallcoverings are installed in various ways, depending on the backing or the effects one wants to achieve.

Fabrics can be stapled to walls with or without a lining or padding. A padding usually increases the insulation and acoustical properties of the area treated in this way.

Fabrics can also be glued directly to a smooth surfaced wall. If paper-backed or acrylic backed, use installation techniques and adhesives suggested by the manufacturer.

BECAUSE LINEN does not attract dust, maintenance of Belgian linen wallcoverings is simple. Twice a year use a vacuum cleaner (the brushless attachment).

Cupboards not just kitchen material

THE CUPBOARD is coming out of the kitchen. It's moving into the living room, dining room, master bedroom, children's rooms, family room, den.

The move is on because the cupboard is no longer a cupboard, it's a cabinet. About 99 per cent of the time it's a built-in, not a free-standing unit, and it's furniture, embodying the same characteristics of style and finish as furniture for any other room of the home.

No longer is your choice confined to colonial, contemporary, mediterranean or provincial: you can have 'most any exterior styling your eye finds appealing, be it oriental or alpine!

AND INSIDE, manufacturers offer all kinds of options to organize storage: revolving racks, roll-out shelves and trays vertical dividers, drawer dividers, letter files, food files, wine racks, can racks, cutting boards, towel bars.

What makes these and other fittings good for the kitchen — the fact that what was once fixed is now flexible — makes them useful in other rooms, too. And the same people who plan cabinetry for kitchens design its installation in these other rooms.

Many of the country's "space specialists" are members of the American Institute of Kitchen Dealers, who operate as independent retailers or are affiliated with a lumber yard, or an appliance or home center.

THESE PROFESSIONALS are equipped to plan and install, or to plan the cabinetry and let you install it.

From AIKD members come these beyond-the-kitchen storage suggestions.

Master Bedroom: Transform a sleeping room into a 24-hour-a-day room by building in niches for stereo and TV; nightstands with bookshelves above.

Install a small refrigerator for midnight snacks, in a cabinet that by day is a desk.

Library or Den: Use cabinets and shelves to comtain books of all sizes and to keep paperwork in place: to house stereo equipment, television set, tapes and tape deck; to store and keep records at hand.

Build in a desk with a letter file above; a bar with roll-out bottle shelf and wine rack.

Family or Hobby Room: Use a plastic vegetable bin to hold yarns; drawer dividers to keep art supplies orderly; a pull-out shelf as a game table.

Child's Room: End chaos with cabinets for records, pictures, toys and games, and the various oddments that children collect — from stamps to stuffed animals.

Consider roll-outs for clothes and collectibles: they're more fun than conventional drawers, and more convenient.

Laundry/Utility Room: With cabinets, create a sewing center, where the sewing machine disappears when not in use; a potting shed, with roll-out and revolving shelves for lawn and garden supplies.

Have a drop-down ironing board that hides behind its own door; a corner carrousel for soaps and detergents.

These are just a few of many ways that professionals "find" space and use it all over the house, in cabinets that no longer are cupboards.

REMOVING SNOW from sidewalks and driveways is back-breaking work. Not so with a reliable Toro snowblower. The people at Denna Lawn and Sports in Bensenville will be happy to show you the advantages of their complete line of the latest in snow-removal equipment.

THINKING AHEAD to the holiday entertaining season, Northwest Metalcraft, Arlington Heights, suggests a customized bar as useful addition to your home. The bar shown, a combination of an angle bar and a straight bar, is one of many combinations and shapes available. Bars may include sinks and refrigerators; there is a wide selection of bar stools as well.

AN INNOVATION by Monarch is the mirror door for a walk-in closet. The mirror door will add an elegant, spacious feeling to your dressing area as well as giving the convenience of full-length views. Heights Glass & Mirror Co., Arlington Heights, carries the complete Monarch line.

Vacuum system makes clean sweep

At last, there is a high performance, low cost, central vacuum cleaning system that can be easily installed in any house, regardless of age or size. Cyclone Distributors, Arlington Heights, states that your purchase of a Cyclone Built-in Vacuum System is the last vacuum cleaner purchase you'll ever have to make!

Cyclone's advanced design has brought the total cost of a high quality system down to levels competitive with many portable vacuum cleaners. A Cyclone System enjoys a factory lifetime motor warranty.

Cyclone's flex hose threaded connector system makes installation fast, clean and easy in any house, regardless of age or size, and can be installed by the handy homeowner. The vacuum-producing motor and dust collection tank are installed in the basement, garage or utility room.

With no restrictions in size or weight to permit portability, the motor and suction are much more powerful than the best of portables. Vacuum inlets, strategically located through the house, allow you to clean every room, even up long staircases, without dragging portable motors, canisters, cords or hoses.

A feather-light 30' vacuum hose goes easily wherever you do. A built-in vacuum removes all the dust and dirt through sealed piping to the remote filtering station.

It's clean enough for you. But is it clean enough for him?

You can clean the carpet. But a vacuum can do only so much. There's still ground-in dirt that only a professional machine like Steamex can get out.

Steamex is the home rental carpet cleaner that lets you do-it-yourself at a faction of professional cost, using the most effective carpet cleaning method available.

Steamex powerjets and Good Housekeeping-approved chemicals work deep to flush out ground-in dirt, then the vacuum action sucks up the deep down dirt. And your carpet dries fast!

Steamex sanitizes carpets, making them safer for your children - and more pleasant for you. Rent a Steamex today, and see the difference it makes to you, and yours.

Box lovers make great organizers

B.

ARE YOU A box-lover? If you're one of those people who can't bear to throw out a good box because someday it might come in handy — this is for you.

Picture all those assorted dress boxes, hat boxes, shoe boxes and what-not boxes languishing in your closet right now. And now picture them as a matched set . . . they'd look like custom-made closet organizers, the kind you'd pay a small fortune for in a store.

To turn them into elegant closet accessories, all you need to do is cover them with pretty fabric (even inexpensive dress goods could be elegant), and add trimmings or ribbon and lace.

IT TAKES NO special talent, no fancy cutting — just a little time and some glue.

Here's how:

1. Lay out fabric, face down.
2. Position box on it in a way that leaves enough fabric to bring up over all sides, allowing for 1" turn-ins at all sides. Mark position. Cut off excess fabric. (See diagram A.) Shaded areas show fabric to be cut off.
3. Apply glue around edges of box base. Replace box on fabric.
4. Bring fabric up on two opposite sides of box. Turn over top edges and glue. Smooth fabric as you go.
5. Bring 1" turn-ins around remaining two sides of box, and glue. Also glue along fabric edges, forming hems. Then turn fabric up over sides of box, and glue as before. (See diagram B.)

For outsize boxes, or round ones, use separate fabric pieces for bottom and sides. First do sides, wrapping a length of fabric around box.

FABRIC SHOULD BE 2" wider than needed — 1" to turn under top edge, the other 1" to turn under bottom. When this is glued, trace bottom, cut a separate piece of fabric to fit and glue in place.

Glued-down fabric edges won't fray, so there's no need to turn under.

To line boxes, it's easier to work on cardboard cut to fit loosely on each side and bottom. Cover the cardboard, then glue in the box.

Spray-painting the insides is one alternative to lining. Use a fast-drying paint and spray two coats to get a lustrous and sturdy finish.

AN INVITINGLY COMFORTABLE, yet durable, family room setting at Lynell Furniture in Rolling Meadows, features both sofa and love seat in earth-toned plaid of heavy-duty Herculon. The group is complimented by nylon-print chair, sturdy wooden tables and open etagere wall units.

THIS BEAUTIFULLY-shaped wall cabinet is one of a group of display cabinets, medicine chests, spice racks and boxes that will show off your collectibles and add so much to the Early American or French country decor. Priced from $18, this case with glass door is $50 at both locations of Wood 'n Cloth, Arlington Market and Buffalo Grove Mall.

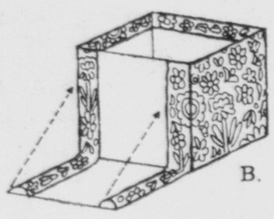
A.



B.

ARE YOU A box-lover? If you're one of those people who can't bear to throw out a good box because someday it might come in handy — this is for you.

Picture all those assorted dress boxes, hat boxes, shoe boxes and what-not boxes languishing in your closet right now. And now picture them as a matched set . . . they'd look like custom-made closet organizers, the kind you'd pay a small fortune for in a store.

To turn them into elegant closet accessories, all you need to do is cover them with pretty fabric (even inexpensive dress goods could be elegant), and add trimmings or ribbon and lace.

IT TAKES NO special talent, no fancy cutting — just a little time and some glue.

Here's how:

1. Lay out fabric, face down.
2. Position box on it in a way that leaves enough fabric to bring up over all sides, allowing for 1" turn-ins at all sides. Mark position. Cut off excess fabric. (See diagram A.) Shaded areas show fabric to be cut off.
3. Apply glue around edges of box base. Replace box on fabric.
4. Bring fabric up on two opposite sides of box. Turn over top edges and glue. Smooth fabric as you go.
5. Bring 1" turn-ins around remaining two sides of box, and glue. Also glue along fabric edges, forming hems. Then turn fabric up over sides of box, and glue as before. (See diagram B.)

For outsize boxes, or round ones, use separate fabric pieces for bottom and sides. First do sides, wrapping a length of fabric around box.

FABRIC SHOULD BE 2" wider than needed — 1" to turn under top edge, the other 1" to turn under bottom. When this is glued, trace bottom, cut a separate piece of fabric to fit and glue in place.

Glued-down fabric edges won't fray, so there's no need to turn under.

To line boxes, it's easier to work on cardboard cut to fit loosely on each side and bottom. Cover the cardboard, then glue in the box.

Spray-painting the insides is one alternative to lining. Use a fast-drying paint and spray two coats to get a lustrous and sturdy finish.

Update your policies

THE VALUE OF your home has gone up tremendously within the last few years. But has your home owner's insurance reflected this increase?

Bob Keller of Keller-Schaumburg Insurance Services cautions home owners to update their policies annually in order to keep pace with the rise in real estate values each year.

Bob Keller

"If you have not updated your particular policy within the past 10 years, you could be subject to losses of as much as $30,000 depending on the extent of the property damage incurred," Keller warns. All it takes is one phone call to your insurance representative to clear up this matter.

Keller and Keller — Schaumburg Insurance Services in Schaumburg recently celebrated their second anniversary. Keller-Schaumburg is a division of Fred B. Keller & Co. which was established in 1910 and has been serving Chicago and the suburbs for nearly 70 years.

Make a valuable investment

ONCE UPON A TIME, most women waited until their silver anniversary to acquire some of the sterling they'd always wanted.

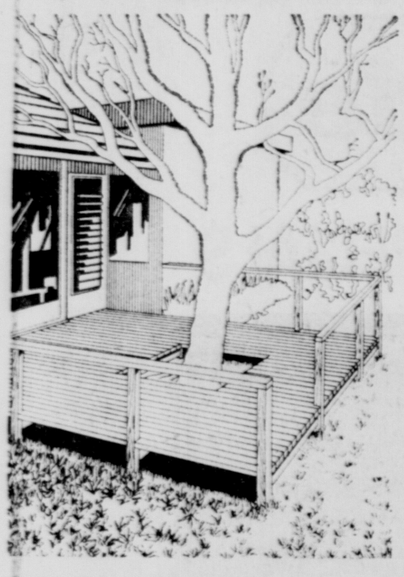
These days, 25 years of waiting is out of the question for the woman who has her own job and the means to acquire sterling for her table. Retailers confirm the fact that today it's the woman who works, either single or married, who finds the sterling flatware counters a fascinating place to browse — and a good place to invest some of their income.

And "invest" is a term well-chosen for this lovely, warm, light-catching metal. For solid silver is not just a thing of beauty, but a precious metal with intrinsic value that promises to increase over the years. This means that, while it's used and enjoyed for all those special occasions, it not only retains its value, but stands to become a possession of even greater worth by the time it's turned over to the next generation.

ANOTHER PLUS for solid silver is its surprising strength. Sterling is one of the few household items that never deteriorates with mere use or age. Those almost imperceptible surface scratches that catch the light only enhance its beauty, giving it the patina so admired in pieces of antique silver.

So, among those young home-owners who place a high premium on possessions that have both utility and quality, solid silver ownership makes sense. Adding even further to sterling's siren call is the fact that now, many stores make special purchase plans available. These are certainly worth looking into, for they offer extended time payments — often with no interest or carrying charges.

Sterling is truly one of the most pleasurable things anyone can own — a treasure to be enjoyed for a lifetime. And more and more working women today are discovering that it's a treasure they can have, not just hope for.



THERE IS STILL time to add and enjoy a patio deck this fall. It is relatively inexpensive, easy to construct and you'll never have to worry about costly maintenance or repair. Heller Lumber has free plans available for this deck and many other backyard projects.

Update your policies

THE VALUE OF your home has gone up tremendously within the last few years. But has your home owner's insurance reflected this increase?

Bob Keller of Keller-Schaumburg Insurance Services cautions home owners to update their policies annually in order to keep pace with the rise in real estate values each year.

Bob Keller

"If you have not updated your particular policy within the past 10 years, you could be subject to losses of as much as $30,000 depending on the extent of the property damage incurred," Keller warns. All it takes is one phone call to your insurance representative to clear up this matter.

Keller and Keller — Schaumburg Insurance Services in Schaumburg recently celebrated their second anniversary. Keller-Schaumburg is a division of Fred B. Keller & Co. which was established in 1910 and has been serving Chicago and the suburbs for nearly 70 years.

Make a valuable investment

ONCE UPON A TIME, most women waited until their silver anniversary to acquire some of the sterling they'd always wanted.

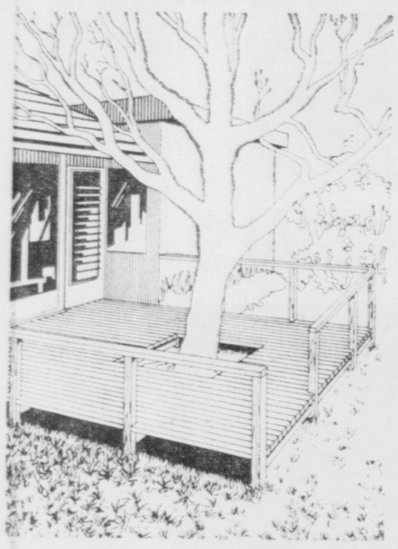
These days, 25 years of waiting is out of the question for the woman who has her own job and the means to acquire sterling for her table. Retailers confirm the fact that today it's the woman who works, either single or married, who finds the sterling flatware counters a fascinating place to browse — and a good place to invest some of their income.

And "invest" is a term well-chosen for this lovely, warm, light-catching metal. For solid silver is not just a thing of beauty, but a precious metal with intrinsic value that promises to increase over the years. This means that, while it's used and enjoyed for all those special occasions, it not only retains its value, but stands to become a possession of even greater worth by the time it's turned over to the next generation.

ANOTHER PLUS for solid silver is its surprising strength. Sterling is one of the few household items that never deteriorates with mere use or age. Those almost imperceptible surface scratches that catch the light only enhance its beauty, giving it the patina so admired in pieces of antique silver.

So, among those young home-owners who place a high premium on possessions that have both utility and quality, solid silver ownership makes sense. Adding even further to sterling's siren call is the fact that now, many stores make special purchase plans available. These are certainly worth looking into, for they offer extended time payments — often with no interest or carrying charges.

Sterling is truly one of the most pleasurable things anyone can own — a treasure to be enjoyed for a lifetime. And more and more working women today are discovering that it's a treasure they can have, not just hope for.



THERE IS STILL time to add and enjoy a patio deck this fall. It is relatively inexpensive, easy to construct and you'll never have to worry about costly maintenance or repair. Heller Lumber has free plans available for this deck and many other backyard projects.

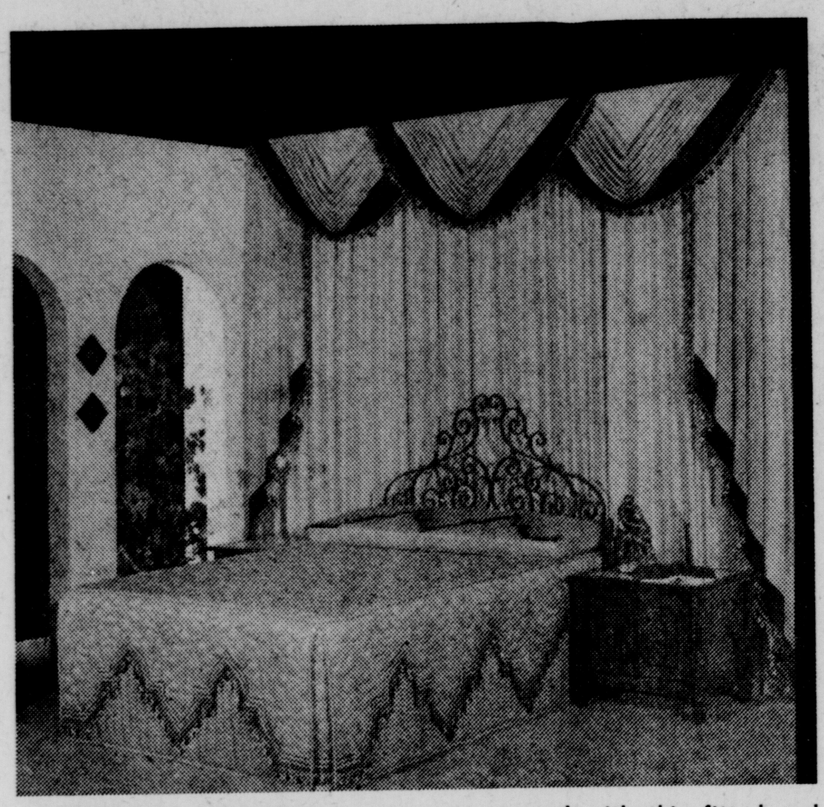
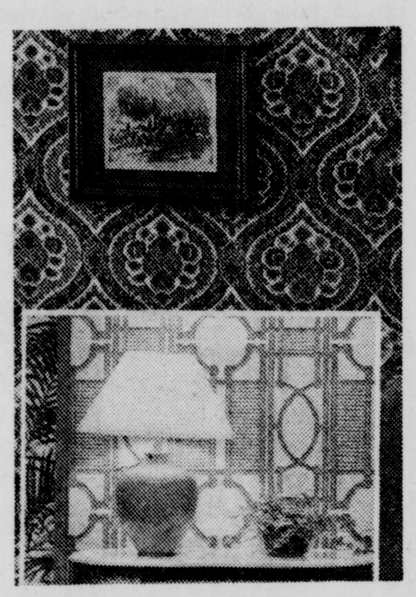
THIS SECRETARY-DESK provides a focal point of interest for living room, bedroom or library. Actually a separate base and top, this solid cherry piece stands 92 inches high. A reproduction of an antique circa 1770-1780, it is available at Schneller Furniture Co., Arlington Heights.



AN ELEGANT BEDROOM treatment is created with this fitted and quilted bed throw that is decorated with fringe and shown with one flat pillow. Complementing it are the two-tone window festoons and jabots, also fringed and edged in a contrasting color. Correlated sheer draperies complete the picture, from Bar-Mel Interiors, Arlington Heights.



THE VISUAL EFFECT you create in entrances and hallways sets the mood for the rest of the house or apartment. Two Sunworthy patterns, combining a reddish brown with slate blue, effects a warm, cozy feeling in this foyer. See the displays at Maloney's Wallcoverings & Paints, Surrey Ridge Shopping Center, Arlington Heights.

ROLLS OF CARPET everywhere . . . and that's not all there is to Tidy Carpets in Elgin. Besides a large selection of floor coverings at reasonable prices, they have a decorating center to coordinate interiors and a staff of installers whose work is guaranteed.

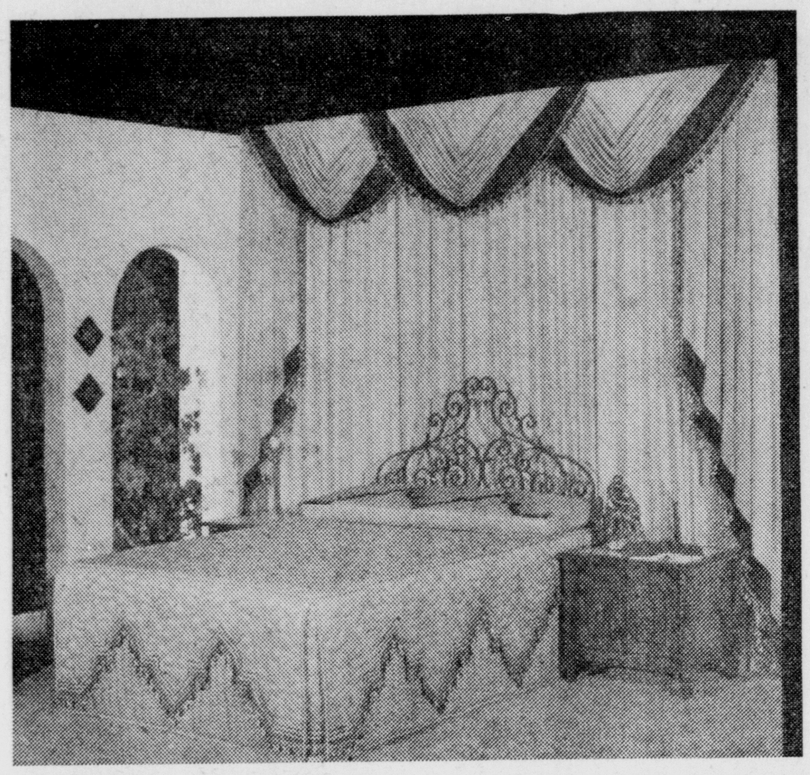
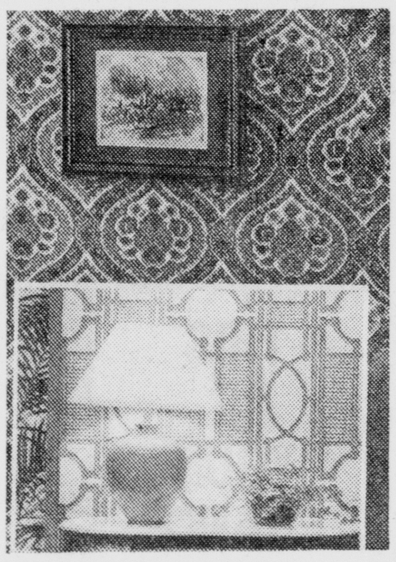
THIS SECRETARY-DESK provides a focal point of interest for living room, bedroom or library. Actually a separate base and top, this solid cherry piece stands 92 inches high. A reproduction of an antique circa 1770-1780, it is available at Schneller Furniture Co., Arlington Heights.



AN ELEGANT BEDROOM treatment is created with this fitted and quilted bed throw that is decorated with fringe and shown with one flat pillow. Complementing it are the two-tone window festoons and jabots, also fringed and edged in a contrasting color. Correlated sheer draperies complete the picture, from Bar-Mel Interiors, Arlington Heights.



THE VISUAL EFFECT you create in entrances and hallways sets the mood for the rest of the house or apartment. Two Sunworthy patterns, combining a reddish brown with slate blue, effects a warm, cozy feeling in this foyer. See the displays at Maloney's Wallcoverings & Paints, Surrey Ridge Shopping Center, Arlington Heights.

ROLLS OF CARPET everywhere . . . and that's not all there is to Tidy Carpets in Elgin. Besides a large selection of floor coverings at reasonable prices, they have a decorating center to coordinate interiors and a staff of installers whose work is guaranteed.

DO YOU LIKE patchwork quilts? Then you'll like Interior Landscapes in Arlington Heights. Besides the intricate patchwork items, they feature a variety of unusually lovely home-gift ideas. But be careful! Most things you will be tempted to keep for yourself.

Blazing hearth warms spirits

GATHERING AROUND the blazing hearth has been a human instinct since man discovered fire. And as the winter months draw near, fireplaces become focuses once more — even in places where leaves don't fall and the landscape isn't white.

Many an unlit chimney piece has the same magnetic attraction as the flickering flames.

Rooms take on a different look when they focus on the fireplace, sofa and chairs are pulled closer together within easy conversation distance of each other.

Casual tables are brought within handy reach so that they can offer a convenient place for lamps, books, magazines, drinks, snacks. And helping to complete the cozy circle is the "hearth" rug, traditional for centuries, lately re-discovered all over the house as the area rug.

The cool, bare floors of summer get a sudden splash of warm color from the right rug. It can help heat up the room before you even light the logs!

Area rug pioneers Edge Rya, came from Denmark a few years ago to change American ideas about floor decoration. With their thick, shaggy textures and richly-colored yarns, the rya rugs have since become a decorating basic, with modern designs and fibers continuing the old Viking tradition.

Recent introductions of many unusual and beautiful patterns, based on ethnic designs or adapted from historical motifs, assure something for every room's style and everybody's personal taste.

So gather round — home is home is where the hearth is!

A FRESH, NEW look in vinyl wallcoverings and correlated fabrics is being shown at Webber Paint Co. in Arlington Heights. The collection of small cottage prints with a country elegance are the creation of Welsh designer Laura Ashley.

Mattress exercise

Don't forget to flip your mattress occasionally. Aside from the obvious benefits — it extends the life of the mattress and prevents saggy pockets from forming — it's a great way to get some exercise! And it gives all of your bedding at chance to really air out.

Schaumburg Mattress Factory

Thoughts on a Mattress

Today's thoughts begin with a one question quiz. Whose endorsement would most induce you to buy a mattress? Some famous athlete? Doctor? Movie star? Space man? Politician???

I have often wondered how some famous ball player or tennis star became such an authority on mattresses. Maybe their authority is based on the amount of money paid for their endorsements — the more money, the better authorities they are.

And the doctors — some of them could probably give up practicing medicine and make a living endorsing mattresses.

The best endorsement should really come from the politicians because they are usually authorities on everything.

We wanted to line up a real endorsement team — two athletes, two movie stars, the whole crew from the last space flight, Miss America, and a couple of famous doctors, but the whole program cost too much.

Then we thought maybe all the Presidential candidates would endorse our mattresses for nothing just to get the publicity, but we didn't have enough room to list all of them.

So I guess we will have to continue with the best endorsement of all — our own customers. Every week we get more customers who come in because their friends or neighbors bought a mattress from us and are very pleased with it.

And this endorsement doesn't cost anything except the extra effort we put in to make a fine product. That way we keep the circle going — satisfied customers sending us more customers.
